Bush Fined $100 by Heydler

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP.)—Donie Bush, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, today was fined $100 by President Heydler of the National League for "violation of the playing rules and bad conduct" in yesterday's game with the Giants. Bush was banished for protesting a decision in the first inning.

No suspension is attached to President Heydler's action nor would the league executive elaborate on the brief statement of his reasons.

Bush appeared in a belligerent attitude from the start of the game, marking the opening of the Pirates' eastern invasion. He objected first to the way Virgil Barnes, Giant pitcher, used his feet in the box. Later, when Lloyd Waner was thrown out at third base on a close play, Bush raised so vehement a protest that he was ordered from the park by Ernie Quigley, chief umpire. The Pirates lost the game, 8 to 1.

MISS ELEANOR VOHN

DRIVER HELD IN DEATH OF FATHER OF 11

The law today set out to avenge the death of Martin Lydon, father of 11, by placing a charge of murder beside the name of Ray Rahn, 24, of 130 South Fairmont avenue, who drove the auto which crashed into the Pittsburgh Railways Company welder as he worked in the street in Wilkinsburg.

A coroner's jury heard the evidence, read a physician's certificate that Rahn had been intoxicated, and agreed on the charge. Rahn was held without bail.

Motorcycle Patrolman John W. Dyer testified that he had chased Rahn and had to fire four shots, one of which nipped Rahn in the wrist, to stop him.

The names of Lieuts. Peter Lehney and Luke Connors were not mentioned in the testimony, although they were suspended when young Rahn claimed the fatal crash would have been avoided had the officers arrested him for drunkenness when they stopped his machine a few minutes before the accident. The policemen will face the police trial board tomorrow.

Rahn's two companions on that fatal ride, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gorman of Buffalo, failed to appear, although subpenaed.

Lydon lived at 1405 Nixon street in a mortgaged home. Since his death, public donations have made it possible for his widow to erase that mortgage.

THE WEATHER.

Showers late tonight and Thursday; not much change in temperature.

Hill Goes On Mound For Bucs

POLO GROUNDS, New York, Aug. 17.—The assignment of stopping the Giants, a trifling affair at the start of the season but serious business in these days of McGraw's masterful master mindig, was drawn by Carmen Hill as the Pirates squared off for their second fight with the Giants this afternoon. Fred Fitzsimmons, the McGraw selection, will endeavor to hurl the Polo Grounders to their seventh straight triumph.

"Eight fifty-nine a. m., Pacific time—The position of the airplane Woolarac is latitude 24:35 north, longitude 150:30 west. Am receiving radio beacon faintly."

On the basis of radio reports, the army calculated that the average speed of the Woolaroc since leaving Oakland was 83 miles an hour. They estimated that the plane would arive at Wheeler Field, 25 miles from the city, about 11 A. M., Honolulu time, (4:30 P. M., Pittsburgh Daylight time).

aroc with Art Goebel as pilot. Fourth in the race was believed the Miss Doran, piloted by Augy Pedlar and carrying Miss Mildred Doran, Flint, Mich., school teacher, as a passenger.

In the absence of direct news, official observers believed the fourth racer, the Miss Doran, in which Miss Mildred Doran is a passenger, was following the trail of the Woolaroc. The Miss Doran followed the pacesetters after losing an hour and a half through a forced landing after the takeoff yesterday.

Contradicting a report relayed by the Esther Dollar, the City of Los Angeles, working directly with the Oakland station, said that she had sighted two planes high overhead at 7:05 a. m. (Pittsburgh daylight time). The City of Los Angeles is bound for San Pedro, however, indicating that two of the ships, probably the Woolaroc and the Miss Doran, have deviated nearly 65 miles off course.

From the only plane carrying sending apparatus came a message through the United States Naval Radio station at Wailupe, at 11 a. m., announcing that the Woolaroc was then 1,650 miles out of San Francisco and stating that "everything was running on schedule" on the last 700-mile lap.

MISS DORAN TRAILING.

Inasmuch as the fragmentary wireless reports of ships had placed both the Golden Eagle and Aloha ahead of the Woolaroc and the Miss Doran well behind Goebel's plane, it was believed these positions were being maintained on the last leg of the race.

In effect the Golden Eagle and the Aloha are "sister ships," although built by different manufacturers and of slightly different type. Both are the work of the same designer, however. The Golden Eagle has shown its speed ability by setting a new record between San Francisco and Los Angeles.

Shanklin, of Mercer, oil promoter, sentenced in Mercer to two to four years in the Western Penitentiary and fined $500 after conviction for forgery and fraudulent conversion. PRISONER IDENTIFIED AS POLICEMAN'S SLAYER

Philip Butler, 42, of Sachem way, was identified today, police say, as the slayer of Patrolman James Farrell, shot to death July 5 at Claim and Lowrie street, by a Negro whom he had attempted to question.

Butler, arrested for Baltimore police in connection with the murder of his wife in Baltimore six months ago, was identified by M. P. Thompson, a witness of the policeman's slaying. He was not questioned concerning the local murder pending an attempt to have him identified by two others who witnessed Patrolman Farrell's killing.

Lieut. Detective David Corbett and Detective Jerry Deasy, who arrested Butler after a search which lasted three weeks, say Butler admitted slaying his wife and being a participant in a gun battle between a bootlegger band and Baltimore prohibition officers in which a bootlegger was killed and a prohibition officer wounded. Butler is being held in the county jail.

THREE CAMPERS KILLED BY MOONSHINERS

LOGAN, W. Va., Aug. 17.—A posse of 40 citizens and officers today was combing the hills in the vicinity of Island Creek, near here, for a group of supposed moonshiners who yesterday attacked a party of 10 campers with rifles from ambush, killing three of the campers, and wounding a fourth man.

The campers, who said they were hunting ginseng, included a state prohibition officer, and his son, both of whom were killed. Officers are working on the theory that the attackers believing the party was hunting for moonshine stills, of which several were later found in the vicinity, organized the attack to protect their stills.

Those killed were: Edward Hensley, 53, prohibition officer; his son, Donald, 19, and Ernest Marcum. Howard Tomblin, seriously injured, was brought to a hospital here.

The attack occurred at a remote spot in the forest at noon yesterday, and the first news was brought here late last night by David Hensley, a brother of Edward Hensley who made his way from the camp on foot to Logan, to obtain help. A posse was quickly formed, and the bodies were brought here.

Two suspects were arrested in the vicinity when the posse arrived, but no charges have been filed against them, and officers said they had little evidence to connect them with the shooting.

M'GOVERN PROBE OFF FOR DAY

The public audit of county financial affairs, which opened yesterday in the office of Controller C. C. McGovern, probably will be resumed tomorrow afternoon, a session today being postponed because of the opening of the new Evergreen boulevard by county commissioners.

The admission that the Commissioners and the Department of Public Works maintained two separate bookkeeping systems in addition to the Controller's; that a debt statement was submitted by the Commissioners to the Union Trust Company at the time of the purchase of the new parks, and that he did not know whether this statement was filed with the Quarter Sessions Court, were made by Chairman Joseph G. Armstrong. He was questioned closely by McGovern, the cross-examination taking up practically the entire session.

ARMSTRONG QUIZZED

The separate bookkeeping systems came in for most consideration. Armstrong was asked about the legality of establishing independent records, the cost of maintaining them and numerous other questions by Controller McGovern. Against McGovern's assertion that this extra work cost the county $100,000 annually, Armstrong declared that the system in the Commissioners' office cost about $28,000 and the one in Director Brown's office cost "something less." Armstrong also pointed out that by discounting bills under his system the county saves $60,000 a year, which could not be done under the old plan.

Several specific accounts were brought up for consideration, among which was the Eighth avenue, Homestead, job. McGovern pointed out that the original estimate was $117,880 and the final cost $452,228. Replying to the Controller's questions about this, Armstrong said, "common sense would seem to dictate that this piece of work could not be done for the original contract price." It was during the discussion of this job, after McGovern asked for detailed specifications of the job, that the hearing was adjourned.

GREAT WELCOME PLANNED IN HAWAII

WHEELER FIELD, ISLAND OF OAHU, Hawaii, Aug. 17.—(AP.)—Through rain squalls descending intermittently along the 25-mile road between here and Honolulu scores of automobiles loaded with aviation enthusiasts began a hegira soon after midnight to witness the arrival of the planes in the James D. Dole $35,000 air race from Oakland, Cal.

The Army made ample preparations for feeding the multitude expected at the field. To prove provender for the thousands, field kitchens had been placed in strategic positions and were doing a land-office business.

Although hundreds of cars were parked by midnight in the field east of the hangars few civilians were in evidence about the landing field. Most of those who had arrived early slept in their automobiles. The night was cool for Oahu and the sleepers made good use of their blankets.

Maps prepared by Maj. Henry J. Miller, commander of the field, and kept posted with the position of the aircraft, were centers of interest for the crowds that began to gather soon after daybreak at the Sixth Pursuit Squadron hangar at the edge of the field.

ALIBI DEFENSE IN FLOGGING

SOPERTON, Ga., Aug. 17.—(AP.)—Identified in court as the masked flogger of Editor H. M. Flanders near here on the night of February 25, Raymond Lee sought to establish proof in continuation of his trial here today that he remained home the evening of the flogging.

Flanders, editor of the Soperton News, severely beaten by a band of hooded men, took the stand yesterday as the sole witness of the prosecution, conducted by Solicitor General M. H. Boyer.

POINTS TO LEE.

Asked by Solicitor Boyer if he could identify the man who struck him, Flanders replied in the affirmative.

"Who is he?" the solicitor questioned.

"Raymond Lee," Flanders answered in pointing his finger at the defendant.

The state rested its case with this testimony, while the defense introduced six witnesses in seeking to prove that Lee was seen at various hours near his home at the time of the flogging.

Lee was indicted for the flogging, together with Sheriff W. L. Thigper, Henry McLendon and Joe Lee, the defendant's son.

Victim

PINNED TO POLE

John Stockunas, 22, 2308 Larkins way, instantly killed when an automobile and a truck collided and pinned him against a pole on Neville Island. Stockunas, a lineman, was working with Norman Allen, 23, 78 Briggs street, Overbrook, who was injured when hurled to the ground from the top of the pole when it was broken off by the crash.

Waynesburg Bank Closed to Defeat Run

THE SUN-TELEGRAPH
GENERAL NEWS SECTION
WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 17, 1927

BANK EXAMINER DESIGNATED RECEIVER

WAYNESBURG, Pa., Aug. 17.—The Citizens National bank of Waynesburg is closed today. Following a meeting of the directors last night it was announced that the doors would not be opened again until a complete reorganization is effected.

Jesse L. Girard, president, stated today that he believed when the bank is reopened it will be in a position to pay off all depositors in full. A. J. White, special bank examiner, is in charge.

DEPOSITORS START RUN.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—A run by depositors caused the closing of the Citizens National Bank of Waynesburg, Pa., it was stated today at the office of the controller of the currency. The action in closing the institution was taken by the board of directors when they realized that to continue handing out money would endanger the institution's future. It was not known at the controller's office how much had been paid out before the directors took action, but the sum is believed to have been considerable.

A. J. White, a national bank examiner in the Pittsburgh district, was designated as permanent receiver. He will co-operate with President J. L. Gerard and the directors in efforts to reorganize. The bank was capitalized at $500,000, with a surplus of $2,000,000 and deposits of $5,000,000.

This is the second bank crash Waynesburg and Greene county have experienced. The closing of the Farmers and Drovers National Bank a number of years ago brought about the conviction and imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary of J. B. F. Rinehart, the cashier. Its closing also wrecked many business men of the town and county and brought about suicides of others who had been depositors and creditors of the institution. The Farmers and Drovers failure followed a heated judicial election in which great sums of money were spent by those active in the fight.

"No Woman Hater," Lindy Tells One

By ALMA SIOUX SCARBERRY,
Staff Correspondent.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 17.—"Please tell them that I'm not a woman hater, will you? I'm sorry if I've given that impression."

There, girls, you have Lindy's word for it. Beside his Spirit of St. Louis, in its hangar at Lambert Field yesterday afternoon, he vowed that he had been sorely misjudged. The other half of "We" looked on solemnly. As Lindy explained: "You see, aeronautics and girls do not mix well. A fellow can't take any business seriously if he has women on his mind. I am wrapped up, heart and soul, in this business of aeronautics. I am as human and as liable to fall in love some day as any man, but I'm too busy right now."

It was a remarkable day, and luck played a charming trick. I had been invited by the Chamber of Commerce to attend the luncheon for Col. Lindbergh and sat facing the guest of honor, about four feet from the speakers' table. Brig. Gen. W. A. Raupp, commanding officer of the Missouri National Guard, came down afterward to shake hands, mistaking me for someone he had met before. A special invitation to go out to Lambert Field was the result of our chat.

There was "Slim," the lion of the air in his den, surrounded by his comrades, smiling like a school boy and playing about the field. He had not smiled when he came in to the luncheon and had fingered his chair nervously when he stood up to speak. But he was a new Lindy on the field. Maj. C. Ray Wassell, commanding officer of the Thirty-fifth Air Corps, and the general took me to Lindy's tent.

"You see," smiled the major," he is treated like the rest of us, except perhaps that his tent may be in a little rougher spot."

Inside was a cot and a chair and there was a rough board on the ground. Lindy's colonel's uniform hung spick and span beside the cot. Gen. Raupp laughed.

"Slim would rather live here and sleep in this tent than anywhere in the world. And he will never change."

Lindy introduced Maj. Lambert, father of the air corps and owner of the field, with:

"Here is the man who brought me up in aeronautics. I feel like his child." Later "Slim" spoke of his trip to Pittsburgh.

"That's a nice place. It can be a great air center, too. But, of course, you folks have the disadvantage of so many hills. It will take a lot of money to develop Pittsburgh from an aeronautical standpoint on account of that."

He grinned boyishly:

"But, I've heard a lot about all the money around Pittsburgh. I guess they could afford it."

His friends say he looks much better than he did when here before. Asked if he can't be tired of all the ceremony, Lindy confessed:

"I'd like to rest here a little while. I feel at home with my buddies. It would do me good."

A "rookie" flyer voiced the opinion of all the aviators at Lambert Field, apparently, when he declared hotly:

"For crying out loud, who started that bunk about 'Slim' being such an angel. He's a real two-fisted guy and them reformers is going to make him so sick he'll bust out for fair some of these days."

"Lindy" himself admitted that being made a little tin model of virtue was a bit wearying. For emphasis he threw up his hands hopelessly.

During the chat Maj. Wassell suggested:

"Better ask him whether he prefers blondes or brunets. I'm sure that would be original."

"Lindy" grinned:

"If I ever fall in love I suppose I'll be blind, just like everybody else is, and I won't notice little things like that. Isn't that nonsense, anyway?"

"Slim" tinkered with his airplane lovingly as he talked.

It looks hopeless for Cupid. America's kid brother seems to be married to his job.

NEW CASTLE WILL NOT IMPOUND VARE BALLOTS

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Aug. 17.—The request of David Barry, sergeant-at-arms of the United States Senate, that the ballot boxes containing the votes of the general election of November, 1926, be impounded for use in the Wilson-Vare controversy, likely will not be heeded here. Instead, it is believed that the ballots will be taken from the boxes and kept in heavy envelopes.

FASHION QUEEN SEES LINDY AGAIN

By ALFHILD LARSON,
Pittsburgh's Queen of Fashion.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Aug. 17.—I saw Lindy yesterday. It was the biggest thrill of my life, even if I didn't get to shake hands with him, as we had all hoped to. He was so busy at the Chamber of Commerce luncheon that all we could do was stand in the lobby of the Statler Hotel and watch him pass through.

I thought he looked very tired. He grinned just once, then sobered up quickly and hurried past.

ONE MORE NIGHT.

It was very exciting at the Garden Theater. The applause gets heavier as the time for the closing of the contest nears. Only one more night—and then the end. Thursday night we will know who is to be national queen of fashion.

I am holding my breath. For I know I stand such a wonderful chance the suspense is maddening. A thousand-dollar prize means a great deal to a girl who is but a clerk in a department store.

But that isn't the only reason—by any means. I want Pittsburgh to be proud of me, and I want to win for the sake of those who made it possible for me to have this wonderful trip. We will be home Saturday morning, according to plans. Pull for me, folks!

Gary Tribute Paid By Mr. Hearst

The following telegram was sent Tuesday to Mrs. Elbert H. Gary by William Randolph Hearst:

LOS ANGELES, CAL.
August 16, 1927.

MRS. ELBERT H. GARY,
856 Fifth Avenue,
New York, N. Y.

I am grieved beyond expression to hear of the death of your wonderful husband and my dear friend, Judge Gary. His departure from this life is a very serious loss to the country.

He was one of the nation's truly great men.

All the heroes of the nation are not presidents and generals and political figures. On the contrary in this immense industrial nation and in this era of big business some of the greatest of our national figures are to be found among the captains of industry.

Judge Gary was a great captain, a great leader of men, a profound and progressive thinker advancing new and sound ideas. He was a wonderful executive and a clear, logical and convincing speaker. He not only did as much as any man living to advance the interests of big business, and the interests of the country dependent upon big business, but he did an enormous amount to popularize big business to make the captains of industry and finance appreciate their obligations to the public, and, on the other hand, to make the public realize the value of these great captains to the progress and prosperity of the nation.

The whole country will mourn Judge Gary's death and will miss his powerful influence so valuable to the nation. His friends will mourn him most because they know how kindly and how loyal he was in his friendships, how genial and generous he was in his social relations. No one will take Judge Gary's place, but it is to be hoped that someone will be found to carry on his goal and great work.

I beg to offer you my deepest sympathy and sincerest condolence.

"WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST."

PIRATES GREET PITTSBURGH FASHION ENTRANT

CHEER EACH OTHER ON IN ST. LOUIS

Members of the Pittsburgh baseball club greeted Miss Alfhild Larson, Pittsburgh's entrant in the St. Louis fashion model pageant, when she attended a Pirate-Cardinal game there. Above are shown Lloyd Waner, Miss Larson, Miss Alma Sioux Scarberry, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph feature writer, and Paul Waner. The Pirates are "rooting" for Miss Larson in her quest for the national fashion queen title.

ASSESSMENT INCREASE SEEN

Property owners may expect a slight raise in property assessment this year as a result of Pittsburgh's triennial survey of valuations by the property assessors, it was indicated today.

The assessment is being carried on by the 10 property assessors working in pairs. It is expected that the entire city will be covered before October 1 so that hearings of appeals on increased assessments may be heard during October. Only where the valuation has been raised considerably will the owner be notified of such increase. The assessors plan a readjustment generally to eliminate inequalities in building valuations, basing the assessment, where possible, on the income derived from the property concerned.

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—James M. Darnell, the marrying parson, was sentenced to 18 months in Joliet prison when he pleaded guilty to petty larceny. He asked that he be not sent to prison, as he had to support his wife and children. The judge replied that he was sending him to prison as his wife will be better off without him.

John Francies Quits As Clerk of Courts

John Francies today announced his resignation as clerk of courts of Allegheny County. The resignation, which is effective November 1, has been accepted by Gov. John S. Fisher.

Mr. Francies is the unopposed candidate for the Republican nomination for county treasurer and resigned in order to comply with state laws governing aspirants for that position.

The law declares that "no judge, clerk or prothonotary of any court, register of wills, recorder of deeds, county commissioner or county auditor shall be eligible to election as county treasurer during their continuance in office.

The resignation goes into effect one week before the general election of November 8. It is understood that if S. J. Topley, Republican organization candidate for clerk of courts, is nominated and elected, he will be appointed by the Governor a few days after Francies' resignation is effective.

DERELICT SUBMARINE MAY BE HOLLAND'S

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—The derelict submarine O-2, which was found adrift in the Pacific 1,500 miles west by north of Honolulu, may belong to the Dutch, a search of Navy records has revealed. The only submersible of this designation was laid down by the Netherlands in 1911.

Coolidge May Get New Indian Title Today

PINE RIDGE, S. D., Aug. 17.—(UP.)—Chiefs in war feathers, squaws with pappooses on their backs and younger Indians in collegiate attire assembled at this Sioux reservation today from all parts of the West to stage for their new chief, President Coolidge, the biggest war dance since the battle of Wounded Knee.

Here on the battle site where many of them staged their last big insurrection against the coming of white men in 1890 they came again to revive their ancient tribal customs and hear Mr. Coolidge. For days they have been thronging over the country roads in wagons, camping in tepees along the way.

Mr. Coolidge is coming down to Rushville, Neb., by special train from his summer White House and will drive 30 miles in an automobile to this little town which has but one telephone line for communication with the outside world.

Arrangements have been made for a massive Indian pageant in the fair grounds near an Indian agency where Chief Blackhorn will give the address of welcome. There is also some talk that another Sioux name will be conferred upon Mr. Coolidge. At Deadwood recently he was made a chief and named "Leading Eagle."

Some Indians, however, objected that Chauncey Yellow Robe who arranged the affair was not a chief under the rules of the tribe and complained that he had married a white girl. They are talking of doing the induction ceremony over again and changing the President's name to "Flying Eagle."

Fisher Favors Rooftop Naming of Cities To Aid Flyers

HARRISBURG, Aug. 17.—Suggestion of Secretary of Commerce Hoover that municipalities in Pennsylvania paint the name of the city on the roofs of the highest buildings to aid aviators has met with the approval of Gov. Fisher, the latter announced today. The Governor's office made public a letter from the Cabinet officer to Mr. Fisher in which he urged that towns paint their names on roofs to be of assistance to flyers.

Reply to Secretary Hoover's letter was delayed because of the Governor's absence in the West. The suggestion was referred to the State Chamber of Commerce with a view of having local groups take up the matter in their own communities.

McCANN'S SHOPPERS PARKING LOT

Parking Lanes at McCann's Parking Lot Provide Safety for Cars!

McCANN'S Shoppers' Parking Lot—the first of its kind, to our knowledge, in the United States—located right next door, places the treasures of McCann's good things within easy reach of any car owner. Strong fences and plainly marked parking lanes protect your car from injury and theft. Experienced drivers take your car at the gate and carefully park it in its own marked stall. Over 900 cars have been parked in this lot in one day without a scratch!

An exceedingly low rate for short time parking (15c the first hour) enables the Pierce or the Ford to stop long enough to do a whole week's buying in McCann's at a charge which is more than offset by the saving possible through low prices and the unusual quality of the foods. Purchases are delivered to the Lot and placed in your car. Simply check them at rear of store.

"Bill," the smiling face inserted above, typifies the spirit you find at McCann's Parking Lot—that of interested, willing service. Every man is there to make shopping as convenient as possible for you. Won't you permit him to do so?

OPEN FIGHT FOR LIGHT WINE AND BEER

By International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—A new attack on the Volstead act by Col. James C. Waddell, federal alcohol and brewery control chief, and an announcement at the office of Senator Edwards (democrat) of New Jersey that he would press for passage a light wine and beer bill today added fuel to what promises to be the most lively congressional prohibition fight since adoption of the eighteenth amendment.

Waddell who declared the Volstead act is not enforceable unless 2¾ per cent beer is legalized added that there is no reason why this beverage should not be sold in lunch counters, drug stores and grocery stores.

"My advocacy of 2¾ per cent beer simply is a suggestion to those Americans who want to see prohibition enforced to bring about prevention of drunkenness," Waddell said. "It obviously is no wedge to pave the way for return of the old saloon, because beverages intoxicating in fact are prohibited by the eighteenth amendment.

"The United States is dry. The eighteenth amendment can't be repealed—at least not now. But the Volstead act can be amended."

FIREMEN HURT AT BLAZE

Two firemen were injured last night while fighting a fire in the workshop of the Foster and Auld Furniture Company, Walnut street, McKeesport, which caused $[illegible] damage. Michael McDermott, of Engine Company No. 1, McKeesport, was cut on the head by a falling chimney. James Coughlin, of the same company, suffered a laceration over the right eye.

E. S. POWERS, FIGURE IN OIL FIELD, DIES

TITUSVILLE, Aug. 17.—Edward S. Powers, 51, secretary for 30 years to Joseph Seep, leading oil figure, and known to oil men throughout Northwestern Pennsylvania, died last night at his home here. He had been in ill health since February 6, 1918, when he was injured in a Pennsylvania Railroad wreck near Petroleum Center. He leaves three brothers and a sister.

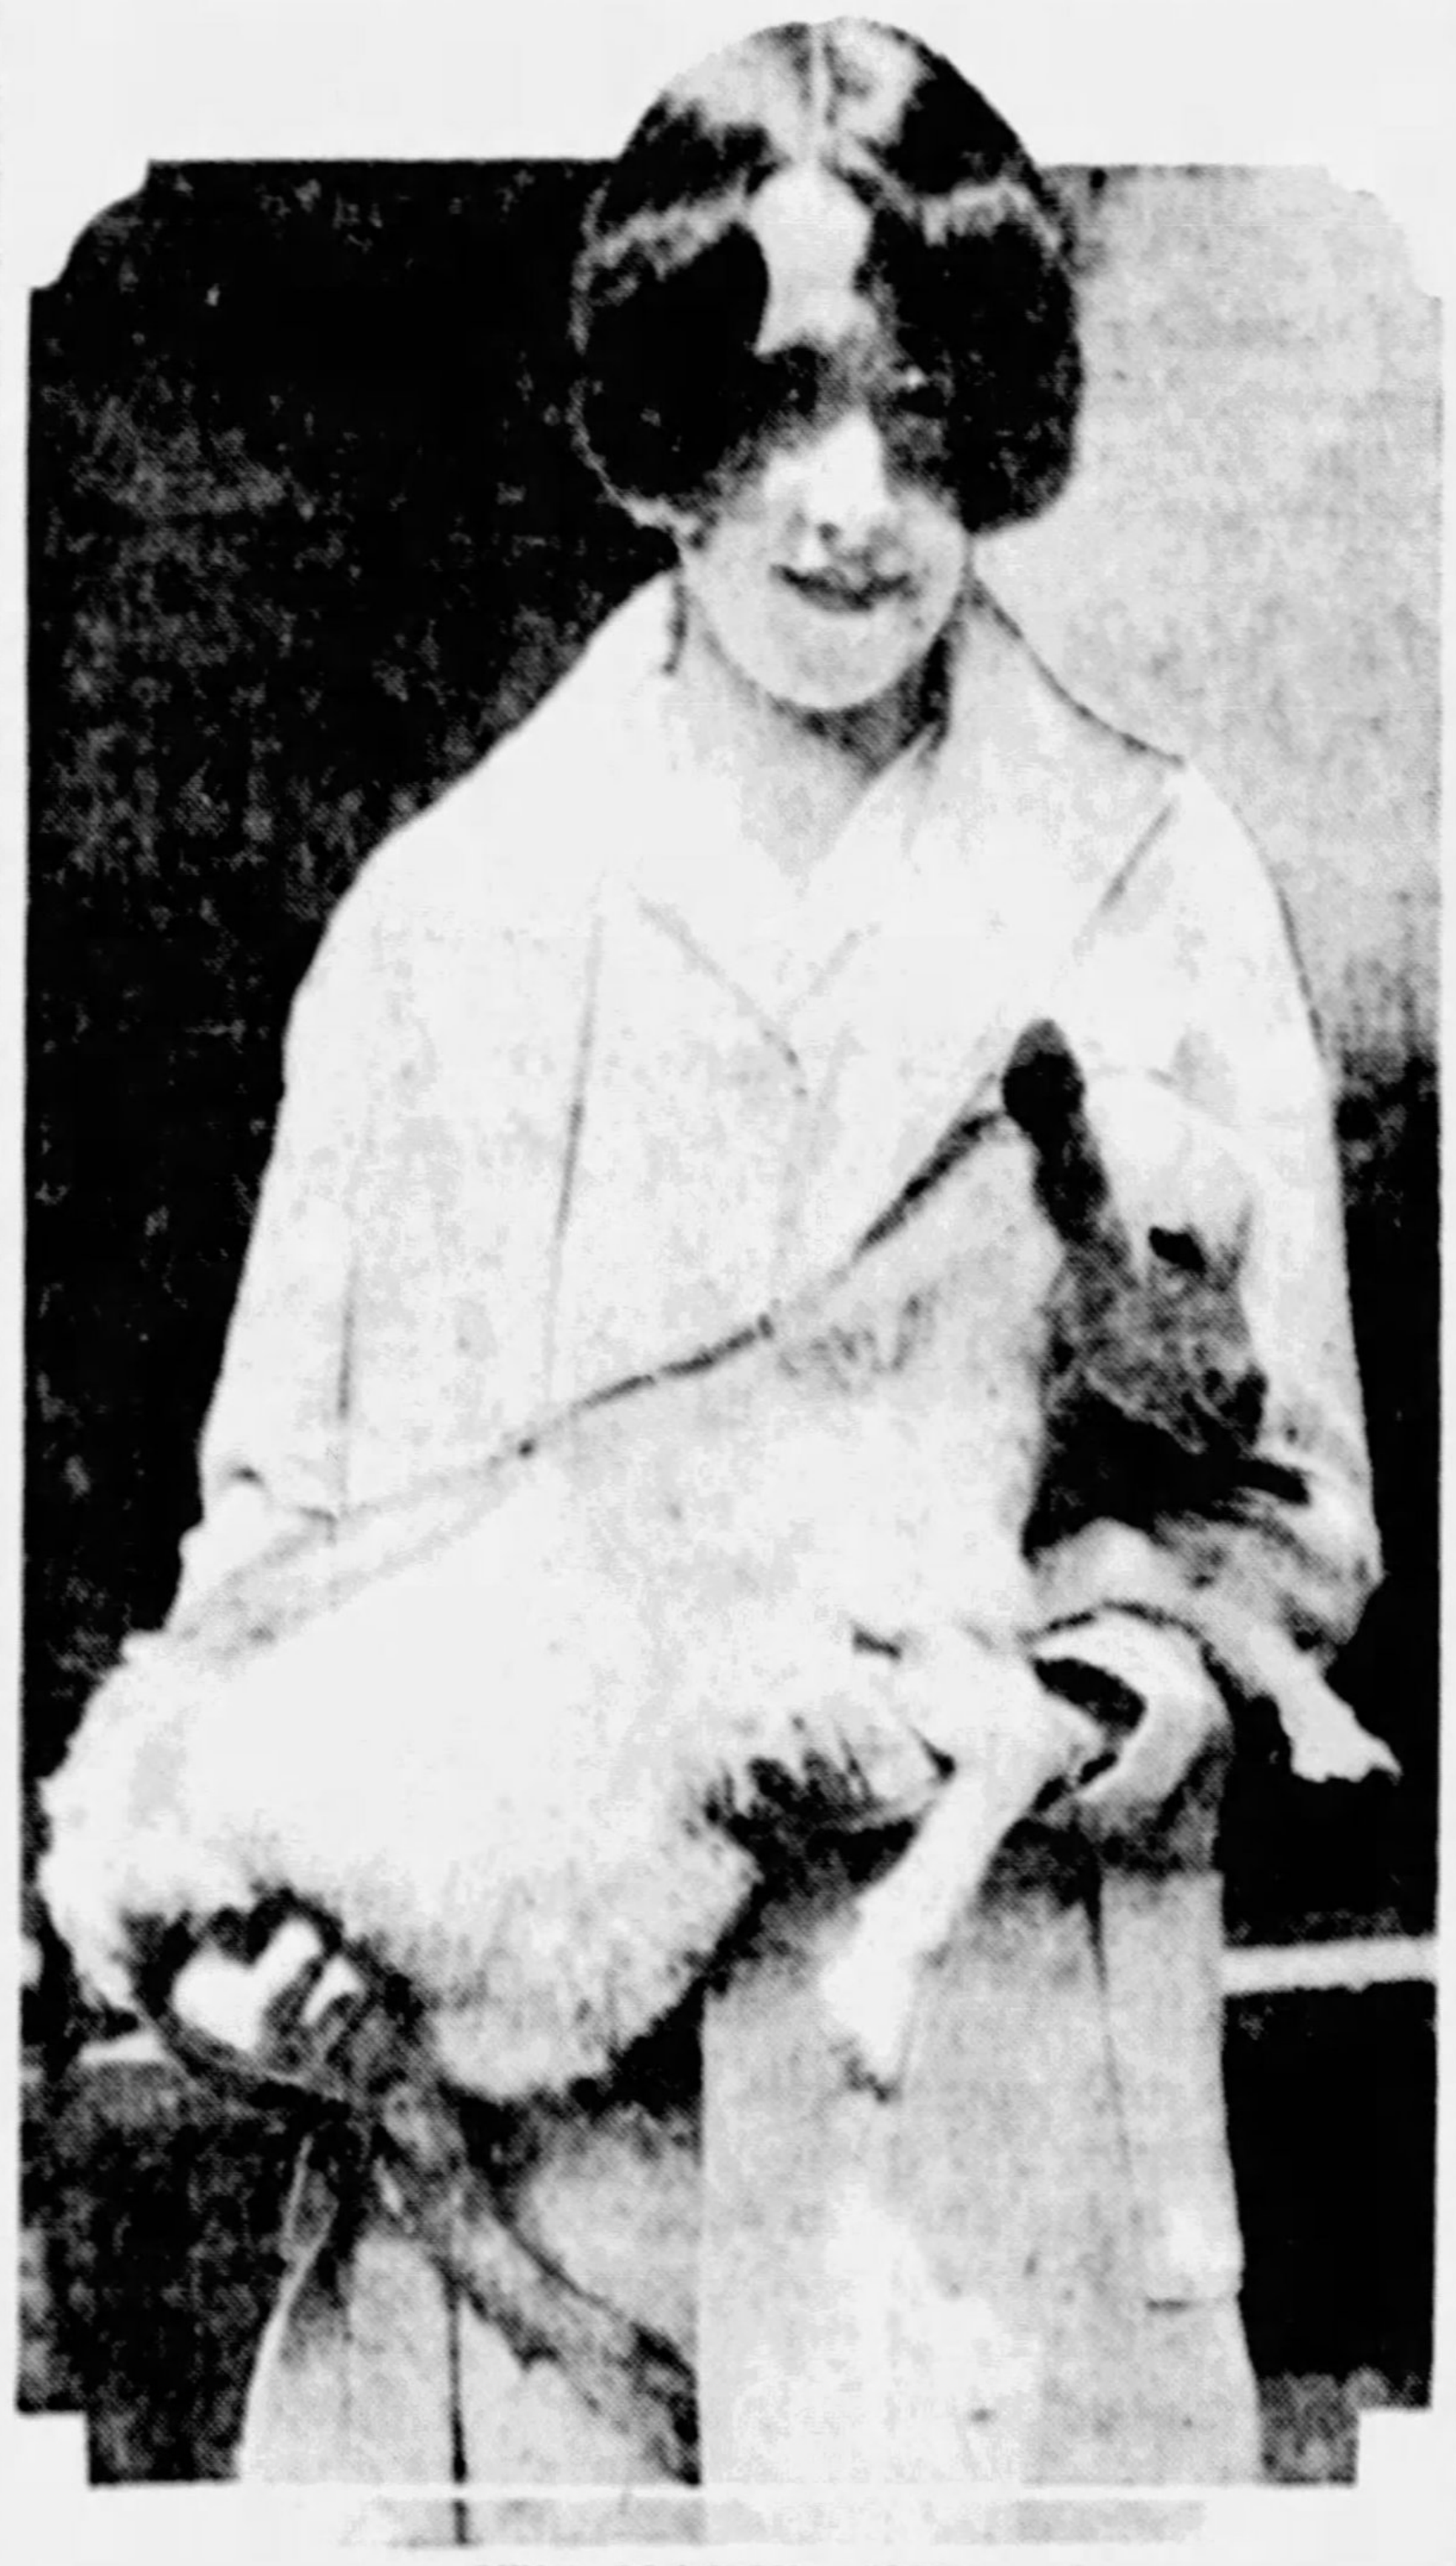
NOT MARY'S LAMB



IT'S MARY'S KID

Miss Mary Foy of Tretow street admits that these little kids never went to school, but, says she, they do "follow" to many homes. Kids, such as these, are in heavy demand in the Penn avenue wholesale produce district. When sold they are wrapped in pieces of burlap and many are carried away in street cars.

Final Aircraft Plans To Appear Thursday

The last of the series of The Sun-Telegraph articles illustrating the construction of model airplanes will be published tomorrow.

And from then until the following Thursday, August 24, entrants in the national Aircraft Model contest being conducted by the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph and the Bureau of Recreation will have only a week to complete their model planes.

With the district contests slated for August 24, the finishing touches on the models of Lindy's plane or the other types must be put on during that time. The articles that have been printed in the Fiction Section of The Sun-Telegraph for the past 10 days by P. E. Garber have been complete and simple in every detail. Whether or not they have been followed will determine to a great extent the success of the districts and final championships.

Many reports from young builders give promise of unusually fine model planes being in the competition. Hundreds have entered, and many who have not still can do so by filling out the blank on the Fiction Page and sending it to the Aircraft Editor of this paper. Entry blanks will be continued until Saturday.

DEATH MARS EXCURSION

A week-end excursion trip to New York by a mother and son reached a sequel today when Mrs. Stephen Connolly, of Corey avenue and First street, Braddock, walked into a morgue in New York City and saw the body of her 19-year-old son, Joe.

The boy was drowned while bathing alone on Sunday at a New York beach. When he didn't return Mrs. Connolly spent two days searching for him. It was said to be their first visit to New York.

SHOE INDUSTRY SHOWS SPURT

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—While business generally in the United States during July was passing through the usual summer doldrums, there was decided improvement in the boot and shoe industry, the Department of Labor reports.

Many shoe factories in New England had been operating on part-time schedules before the spurt set in during July. Forces have been noticeably increased.

PILGRIMS END THIRTY-DAY TOUR

The Lourdes pilgrimage, headed by the Rev. James R. Cox, pastor of St. Patrick's Roman Catholic Church, is back home today after 30 days of sight-seeing.

There were 146 persons in the party and they were on the "go" continually from the time they left Pittsburgh last month.

Three important relics were presented to Father Cox during the pilgrimage and the entire party was received by the Pope and Cardinal Vincent Vannutelli, dean of the Sacred College of Cardinals, the highest dignitary next to the Pope in the Roman Catholic Church.

The most valued relic given to the Pittsburgh pastor was a piece of the manger which held the Christ child.

SHIRT TALE SAD FOR HILL MAN

Gabriel Koran, 1521 Bedford avenue, contracted to buy 102 shirts for $4, Koran told Magistrate W. J. Soost in Oakland Police Court this morning, testifying against Herman Nelms, Negro, 1220 Hazel street, the salesman in the transaction.

Nelms, police say they believe, is the Negro who victimized a dozen or more Hill district residents by offering to turn over half of a mythical shipment of 17 dozen shirts in return for a $4 advance. On each occasion the Negro disappeared after obtaining the money. Magistrate Soost fined Nelms $50 or 90 days in the workhouse.

Brief Respite Makes Speed Essential

BOSTON, Aug. 17.—(AP.)—Six days from the time set for their execution, Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti today awaited the deliberations of the full bench of the Massachusetts Supreme Court which will decide whether there remains any action in the state courts open to their counsel.

There has been no indication how soon the decision of the court will be given, but, in view of the shortness of the respite, it was expected the justices would brook no delay in the study of affidavits and motions before it.

COURT CONSIDERING.

The court has under consideration a motion to the full bench for a writ of error; exceptions to Justice Sanderson's refusal of a writ of error; appeal from Judge Webster Thayer's ruling of no jurisdiction by the Superior Court on a petition for a new trial and of his refusal to stay or revoke sentence. These actions were all based chiefly on alleged prejudice on the part of Judge Thayer which the defense contends, deprived the condemned men of a fair trial.

Sacco's appetite, deadened by a 30-day hunger strike, once more is stirring and is curbed only by the caution of Dr. Joseph McLaughlin, prison physician, who has advised that the prisoner go slowly until his stomach has adjusted itself to digestion once more. Vanzetti and Celestino Madeiros, the third man whose respite expires on August 22, are eating heartily.

DUEL TO DEATH WITH ONE GUN

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Aug. 17.—Two men, one in his twenties and the other the father of 16 children, settled an old liquor feud with a pistol on the main street here before scores of spectators.

Gerry Fowler, 40, of Edgewater, South River, is in jail facing trial for murder, while Dewey Norris, 25, of Annapolis, is dead.

According to witnesses, Fowler and Norris met on West street, and the younger man drew a revolver. There were no words, no indication of what was to come.

For a moment the men struggled, Fowler striving to get the gun. He succeeded. There were two shots, and Norris crumpled to the sidewalk. The older man waited until police came and surrendered.

CRUISERS TO PROTECT SHORE-SHIP MAIL PLANE

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—The Navy Department has ordered two cruisers and three destroyers to take stations in the North Atlantic August 21 when Lieut. C. W. Schieldhauer makes his attempt to drop mail on the liner Leviathan from an airplane when 500 miles at sea. Assistant Secretary of the Navy Robinson talked with Schieldhauer after an inspection of the plane yesterday and said that the flier is confident of success if the weather is favorable.

"I owe this idea to Herbert Brenon"

Alton Hamilton remarks to his friend Carl de Mel as he offers him a Lucky Strike at the Manor Country Club.

Herbert Brenon,

writes:

"During the pandemonium of motion picture production—as in my direction of 'Beau Geste'—I find Lucky Strikes are not only soothing to tired vocal chords, but they have the best flavor. The constant use of my voice in my work demands that I keep it in condition. Lucky Strikes are the only cigarettes which protect me from an irritated throat, and which I enjoy to the utmost."

You, too, will find that Lucky Strikes are mild and mellow—the finest cigarettes you ever smoked, made of the finest Turkish and domestic tobaccos, properly aged and blended with great skill, and there is an extra process—"It's toasted"—no harshness, not a bit of bite.

Constance Talmadge Will Seek American Divorce; Doris Kenyon To Play Lead Opposite Husband

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 17.—Constance Talmadge's trip abroad won't be spoiled with any heartaches over losing "The Last of Mrs. Cheyney" to Gloria Swanson. Her brother-in-law, Joseph Schenck, whose talent as a diplomat is really wasted in the movies, has cabled Connie that "Sunny," with David Wark Griffith directing, will be her next United Artists assignment.

Just digest that: "Sunny," one of the most popular musical comedies of the day, and David Wark Griffith all in one. Could any actress ask for more? "Sunny" gave Marilyn Miller her first chance at big money, fame—and it played on Broadway for over two years.

Now, you know Connie won't put on the gloves and battle when Gloria gets Mrs. Cheyney. Very "clevah," my dear, of Joseph Schenck. If President Coolidge needs a diplomat who can swing all foreign questions to Uncle Sam, he can locate Mr. Schenck at the United Artists studios. (No money charged for this advice.)

One more little word about the younger Talmadge. Connie will not try and seek her freedom in the Paris courts. She will divorce Alastair Macintosh in the Los Angeles courts in September. This is not mere chatter—it is authentic and comes direct from Miss Talmadge herself.

An invitation that Doris Kenyon has accepted with alacrity is one that casts her as the leading woman of Milton Sills in "The Valley of the Giants." Doris has been idle for over a year and absent from the screen and she feels particularly elated that she is to stage her return as her husband's heroine. She still has a contract with First National. In the days when Milton was courting her, she played opposite him but she hasn't been in a Sills picture since they were made at the old Biograph studios in New York. Doris says life is very sweet these days, her baby is getting along beautifully, she is well, and she has a new home. What more could any girl ask? What more, indeed?

THREE STORIES READY FOR MARIE PREVOST

Any star or director who has more than one story in advance is sitting on top of the world. Marie Prevost let it be known that she has two stories ready and waiting for her when she finishes Joseph Jackson's story "On to Reno." They are "A Blonde for a Night," by Wilson Collison, and "Free and Easy," by Fannie and Frederick Hatton. The latter was first called "The Shock Absorber." Marie spilled this news at a luncheon given to introduce James Cruze to the world as an independent director for the DeMille Company.

Holdup Before Lunch, Porch Climb After-- This Star's Lot

These are lawless days for Gertrude Astor. But as a bandit queen she has her business to attend to—before lunch, a holdup; after lunch, a bank robbery, and a little porch climbing.

Miss Astor is enacting the role of a female master mind for a band of crooks in the production, "Ginsberg the Great," starring George Jessel. As such she rends the criminal laws, much to the discomfiture of Jessel, who has succumbed to the wiles of the female Raffles.

The picture is being directed by Byron Haskins. Others in the cast are Audrey Ferris, Douglas Gerrard, Lincoln Stedman and James Quinn.

Studio to Discontinue Making Westerns, Rumor Says

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 13.—There is a whisper that is being circulated where the movies are discussed that Famous Players-Lasky is about to stop their Western thrillers. That would certainly be a blow to Zane Grey, who writes most of those tales of the territory where the cactus grows and young women wear sombreros and look out on bucking bronchos. It would, likewise, be a blow to Gary Cooper, recently signed to imitate William S. Hart, Tom Mix and others. The one Western company that will not cease to function is Fred Thomson.

FORMER DIRECTOR CAST FOR PART IN PHOTOPLAY

Emil Chautard, a former Paramount director, was cast this week to play the role of Colonel Levasseur in the Paramount special, "Beau Sabreur," the companion story to "Beau Geste."

SPRINT CHAMPION CAST IN SCHOOL LIFE DRAMA

Charles Paddock, sprint champion, has been cast as a coach in "The High School Hero," initial David Butler directorial effort being made by Fox Films.

Resumes Work -:- Another Star -:- In Music Play -:- On Vacation

CHEER UP EVERYBODY—There were reports that Corinne Griffith would abandon filming "The Garden of Eden," but these rumors have been dispelled. Allowing for the difference between Eastern and Pacific time, Miss Griffith should be at work right now.

THE SMILE Janet Gaynor is wearing is most Mona-Lisa-like in its fleeting quality so we conclude the portrait was made before she was told she was to be a star. Anyway it is a fact that she is one now, having been given the stellar role in "Two Girls Wanted."

AN EARLY PLAY in the Alvin will be the operetta, "Countess Maritza," in which Gladys Baxter will be one of the principals. Perhaps one of the reasons patrons may be glad is Gladys. We offer no excuse for the pun, being hardened in our shame.

THAT LONGING LOOK toward the western horizon should have vanished from the face of Dolores Del Rio by this time, inasmuch as she chose Honolulu for a vacation and, from all reports, is on her way thither. She took friend husband along. Somebody has to look after baggage and the like.

M-G-M News Reel Makes Bow As Notable Screen Adjunct And New Big Hearst Feature

Edgar B. Hatrick, who has charge of all the motion picture interests of William Randolph Hearst, announces the appointment of the following editorial executives of the new M-G-M News, which made its first appearance this week:

Michael D. Clofine, editor-in-chief; Claude H. Collins, news editor; Herman G. Stockhoff, associate news editor; Leonard Mitchell, film editor.

For more than two months these executives have been welding together an organization which is now functioning as completely and efficiently as though the product was actually being issued. The new newsreel will be produced by Hearst News Service, Inc., one of the subsidiaries of the gigantic, world-wide Hearst organization, and distributed by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Mr. Clofine, for several years editor of International Newsreel, and acknowledged one of the ablest newsreel editors in the world, will be editor-in-chief of M-G-M News. After working on various newspapers throughout the country, Mr. Clofine joined the Hearst organization as a member of the staff of the New York Evening Journal and later he helped to establish the Atlanta Georgian, as city editor. He was one of the editors of the New York American when the World War began, and left to join the Three Hundred and Sixteenth Infantry Regiment, seeing active service as a company commander on the western front. On his return from France he joined the staff of the International Newsreel.

Mr. Collins was former night editor of the Philadelphia Press, and afterwards he was associated with the New York Evening Journal, the Universal Service and other Hearst enterprises. Mr. Stockhoff has been connected with the Hearst organization for more than 20 years. Mr. Mitchell was formerly a well-known New York newspaperman. In recent years he has been connected with the motion picture industry, and also with the United States Shipping Board, developing its motion picture travel department in this country and Europe.

"In launching M-G-M News for the Hearst organization," said Mr. Hatrick, "I would like to emphasize the fact that it will be as separate and apart from the International Newsreel, also issued by the Hearst organization, as any one of the Hearst newspapers is separate from the other 25 comprising the vast chain. Each will have its own quarters; each its own staff, from editor to office boy, and the spirit of competition will be as keen as between other newsreels, or between the staffs of the various Hearst newspapers—and no keener rivalry exists anywhere. One thing they will have in common: Each will be a cog in the gigantic Hearst news and picture gathering organization, the greatest in the world. This organization not only has the gathering facilities of the 26 Hearst newspapers, which blanket the country and are read daily by 6,000,000 persons, but also the telegraph facilities of two wire services, International News Service and Universal Service, which have bureaus in every corner of the globe.

"In every key city of the United States, and in every European capital, M-G-M News now has a complete staff functioning under Mr. Clofine, who will have complete charge of the new newsreel."

Mr. Clofine, outlining the editorial policy of M-G-M News, said:

"It is hardly necessary to say that M-G-M News will maintain and attempt to surpass the high standards established by the Hearst organization in the newsreel field. It will be a newsreel with an individuality entirely its own.

"Although both are concerned with news, the problem of the newsreel is entirely distinct from that of the newspaper. The latter is primarily a medium of information; the former only theoretically so, for actually what the exhibitor wants is entertainment for his patrons, and as much attention will be paid to the entertainment qualities of M-G-M News as to its strictly news contents.

"The Hearst organization has always placed the strongest emphasis on expert editorial treatment. It is one thing to get pictures and another to cut, edit and title them so that they will hold the attention of theater audiences. The M-G-M news-gathering facilities will be equal to those of any in the field. A staff of cameramen has been organized embracing keypoints throughout the world. This camera staff has no connection whatever with any other newsreel organization. It will be under the direction of M-G-M editors and no one else. It should go without saying that the same applies to M-G-M News editorial staff whose efforts will be devoted to making M-G-M News worthy of the Hearst organization which sponsors it, and the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer organization which distributes it.

"I do not believe in advance promises but I have no hesitation in saying that M-G-M News will not be surpassed in any department which has helped to make the modern newsreel so vital a factor in motion picture entertainment, and will in addition not hesitate to explore new fields as opportunities arise to enlarge its sphere of usefulness and enhance its value to the exhibitors of America."

MARJORIE DAW SIGNED AS JOHNNY HINES LEAD

Marjorie Daw has been signed to play the feminine lead opposite Johnny Hines in "Home Made." Actual filming of the picture has started under the direction of Charles Hines and declares "Home Made" should be one of Hines' most unusual and diverting pictures of the season.

Ranches in Five States Are Scoured for Movie Riders

Ranches in five western states were scoured for expert horsemen when desert scenes for "Beau Sabreur" were being made. One thousand horses were utilized in the bigger sequences, and because of the fact that dynamite was used in several of the scenes, their riders had to know how to control the animals.

Radio, telegraph and the mails were brought into play in the hunt for the riders. Various Southern California stations broadcast appeals to the West asking that able horsemen get in touch with the Paramount studios. Similar pleas were telegraphed and mailed.

In all, about 900 cowboys were assembled. Another 100 were brought from Hollywood and put in the saddles. It was a hard assignment for a man who knew only how to ride, for between the dynamite and the camels, which the horses feared, they didn't ride easily.

CHARLES ROGERS CAST IN CLARA BOW PICTURE

Charles Rogers, Paramount School graduate, has been assigned the lead opposite Clara Bow in her next starring vehicle, "Red Hair." Elinor Glyn wrote the story and Malcolm St. Clair will direct.

Many Familiar Faces Are Back Again In Hollywood

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 13.—There are many familiar faces home again. Jack Pickford, who has returned without his divorce from Marilyn Miller; Ward Crane, who is back from a vacation, and Tom Moore, who went East for the Dempsey-Sharkey fight. Jack was offered a chance to act and direct for a British concern, but home sweet home looked pretty good to him. He talks of foreign travel pictures in England, Paris shows, in fact, everything but his divorce.

NURSE RELIEVES STUBBORN BED SORES WITHIN 24 HOURS
Simple treatment can be used by anyone

Philadelphia, Pa., Jan. 28:—"I am a practical nurse and have been taking care of a patient—an elderly lady, 72, confined to her bed by paralysis. She had been obliged to lie on her back for months and a bed sore developed—the worst I have ever seen. The skin was broken and inflamed and an ugly secretion came from it. I applied Resinol Ointment and in twenty-four hours noticed improvement. After one month's use the sore was practically healed. Hoping this letter may help someone else, I am, gratefully yours,"—(Signed) E. S. Caldwell, 4122 Chester Avenue.

Resinol Ointment has many other uses. As a soothing dressing for chafing, burns, rashes, etc., it is in thousands of homes. Your druggist sells it.

burned out BEARINGS

BURNED BEARINGS are common occurances in these forgetful days of diluted oil in the crank case.

Crank cases should be drained and oil renewed periodically—when old "procrastination" extends the change to the danger line it is a safe plan to use an oil that has the maximum resistance to heat and dilution—then if you forget—you are safe.

ARMOUR HEIRS LEFT LITTLE AT DEATH

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—The wealth of J. Ogden Armour, once considered so extensive that he was rated among the three or four richest men of the world, was a matter of conjecture at the time of his death.

The Chicago Herald and Examiner said the packer was a victim of the war and lost so heavily that his heirs would share in an estate worth less than $25,000, despite the fact that several years ago Mr. Armour was known to have an income of many thousands a year.

During the war events which Mr. Armour could not control wiped away the greater part of his vast fortune, it was said, the noted packer choosing to lose from $100,000,000 to $150,000,000 in order to protect his family name.

"Mr. Armour once told a friend," the Herald-Examiner said, "that he lost money so fast during the war that he didn't think it was possible."

Mr. Armour was quoted as saying he lost $1,000,000 a day for 130 days.

Mr. Armour endeavored to avoid society. Aside from the opera, he cared little for such activities.

He was quoted once as saying: "I have no social ambitions. My only hope is to run Armour & Co. so that with its growth I will give many persons an opportunity to achieve promotions."

Despite his financial reverses after and during the war, Mr. Armour is thought to have provided amply for his family by establishing fortunes in their own name prior to his losses.

The body of the packer, who died yesterday in London, will be returned to Chicago for burial. The funeral services probably will be August 28.

WOMAN TELLS OF ATTACK

Mrs. Anna Naus, 27 South Third street, told in Morals Court this morning how she grappled with a man who attacked her in her home yesterday and identified Frank Schofield, 38, of 1706 Fifth avenue, a passer of handbills, as her assailant. She testified that the man entered the house uninvited and grabbed her around the neck. She broke his hold, she said, and escaped. Magistrate A. D. Brandon ordered Schofield to serve 30 days in the workhouse without the option of a fine.

MOTORCYCLES HURT TWO

When the frame of his cycle broke in Perrywood avenue, Fred Egler lost control of his machine and crashed into a pole. He suffered a probable fracture of the left leg. City Physician E. L. Waller attended him.

Attempting to avoid striking an automobile emerging from Liberty Tubes to Brownsville avenue, Patrolman Charles J. Scherlein drove his machine over a curb into a fence and suffered bruises which necessitated attention in South Side Hospital.

WIELDS CLEAVER, KNOCKED OUT

Swinging a meat cleaver, Rudolph Herring, 32, 2722 Houston street, chased Thomas Reed, 25, 1139 Liberty avenue, from the plant of the Sun Packing Company, Spring Garden avenue, last night, then Reed turned and knocked out Herring. To Magistrate E. M. Hough in Allegheny Police Court Herring explained his fellow workers were making a fool out of him. He was sentenced to pay $25 or serve 30 days in jail.

Irate Woman Prefers Fine to Apology To Policeman

Mrs. Margaret Mulhaney, 33, of 85 Blossom way, in Morals Court this morning refused publicly to apologize to a policeman for expressing her opinion on what she considered cruel and barbarous treatment of a prisoner. She was ordered by Magistrate A. D. Brandon to pay a fine of $5 or serve five days in jail on the charge of interfering with an officer.

She was arrested last night when Patrolman Calvin Sullivan was struggling with Louis Bysack, 35, of 826 Virgin way, who had been arrested on a charge of disorderly conduct. At the patrol box it is alleged that Bysack seized Sullivan's mace and keys and the patrolman struck the prisoner in self-defense.

Bysack, with his head and face swathed in bandages that resembled a Hindu's turban, was ordered to pay a fine of $10 or serve 10 days in jail.

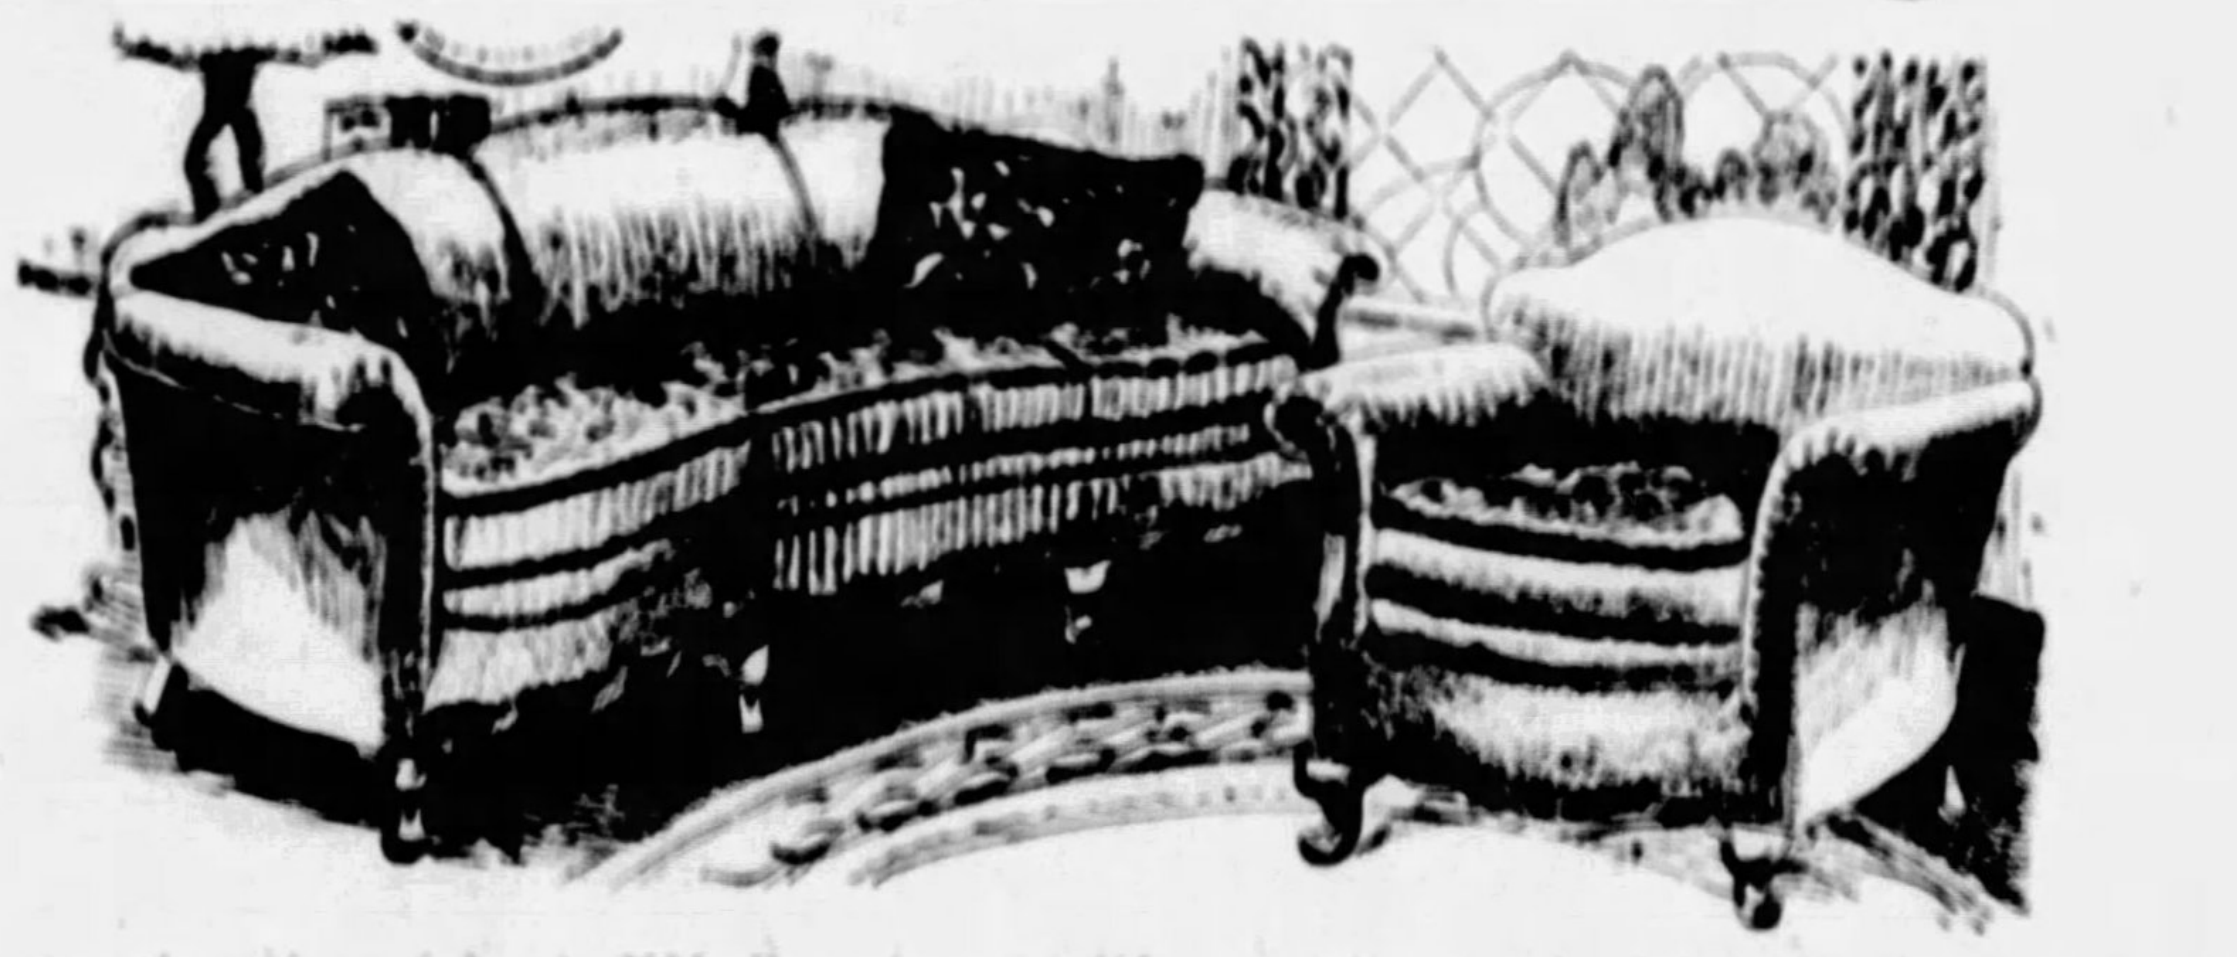
Beauty and Charm for the Living Room—In the August Furniture Selling



During the reign of Louis XV, French court life was characterized by splendor, ease and luxury. The furniture of the time reflected that life; in it the passion for curves was carried to a point of delirium and straight structural lines did not appear at all. The test of any piece seemed to be: Is it comfortable, is it luxurious? . . . Today that influence is still felt in the subtle curves and bewitching shapes of many modern living room designs. . . . For instance, in the beautiful suite illustrated here.

Two-Piece Living Room Suite

$595.00

The French touch is apparent in this thoroughly comfortable living room suite, with its rounded contours, bullion trimmed hand-decorated black satin pillows and delicately carved solid mahogany frame. An idea of its quality may be gained from the fact that it is first stuffed with soft, yielding hair in a muslin covering and then covered with a rich green imported French frieze.

In the August Selling Minks Are Invariably Expressive of Luxury

More than any other fur, perhaps, Minks lend themselves to a variety in creation—for their rich stripings may be wrought in so many differing manners. Our own American Mink—captured in Maine and Eastern Canada—is known as "Eastern" Mink and is the finest in the world. Second only to Eastern Mink is Japanese Mink and, in the same family, Japanese Weasel. McCreery represents the mode in these three excellent furs.

Eastern Mink Coats
$1,500.00 to $1,950.00
Japanese Mink Coats
$595.00 to $895.00
Japanese Weasel Coats
$365.00 to $795.00

Artfully done in vertical, horizontal or chevron effects, the pelts frequently interlocking, they are shown in modes that will slenderize, or in bizarre geometric designs. Collars of self fur or of rich-toned Fox.

WAYS TO TREAT ITCHING SKIN IN OLD AGE.

AN Iowa man would like an article about "pruritus." He wants to know its cause and the remedy. This is a good deal of a contract and the specifications are not complete. But I will do the best I can to supply the information.

DR. COPELAND

The writer of the letter adds these mystic numbers: 1835-1927. I take it he was born in 1835 and so is 92 years of age. That is a wonderful age, a couple of years older than my father.

It is not to be expected that a man so far advanced in life could be entirely free from physical disabilities. Pruritus is not an unusual ailment of old age.

Itching of the skin, itching of one of the orifices of the body—severe itchings of any part of the anatomy—is pruritus.

A common example of pruritus is the mid-winter itching so many persons suffer from when they remove the clothing to retire. In these cases it is likely to be confined to the lower limbs.

Pruritus is not something that can be seen. It is a sensation, a dreadful sensation of itching. It drives the victim to scratching. No matter how much he tries to control himself he just can't resist the impulse to scratch. The skin may be torn and mutilated by the finger-nails.

Worried, overworked, mentally depressed and overfed persons may have pruritus. In pregnant women it is not an uncommon symptom. Chronic dyspepsia, abuse of tea or coffee, and the use of certain drugs are factors.

Shell fish, strawberries, certain spices and flavorings, and other foods may excite the itching. The use of too strong soap may dissolve out of the skin the protecting oils and leave it sensitive.

The dry, withered and inelastic skin of old persons appears to be particularly liable to attacks of pruritus.

Liver trouble, diabetes, constipation and indigestion are factors. Diseased teeth, old snags of roots, infected tonsils and other pus conditions are responsible for some cases.

Simple food, plenty of water to drink, lemonade, buttermilk, gelatin puddings and an occasional yeast cake will help. Woolen garments should be avoided.

It isn't a bad idea to avoid soap entirely. Use oatmeal or bran water instead. Such a preparation will preserve the skin oils.

The best local remedy I know of for pruritus is hyposulphite of soda. A tablespoonful to a half glass of water, sopped or mopped on the itching parts will do wonders in a suitable case.

Constipation must be overcome. Sleeping in a cool room, without an excess of bed covering will help a lot.

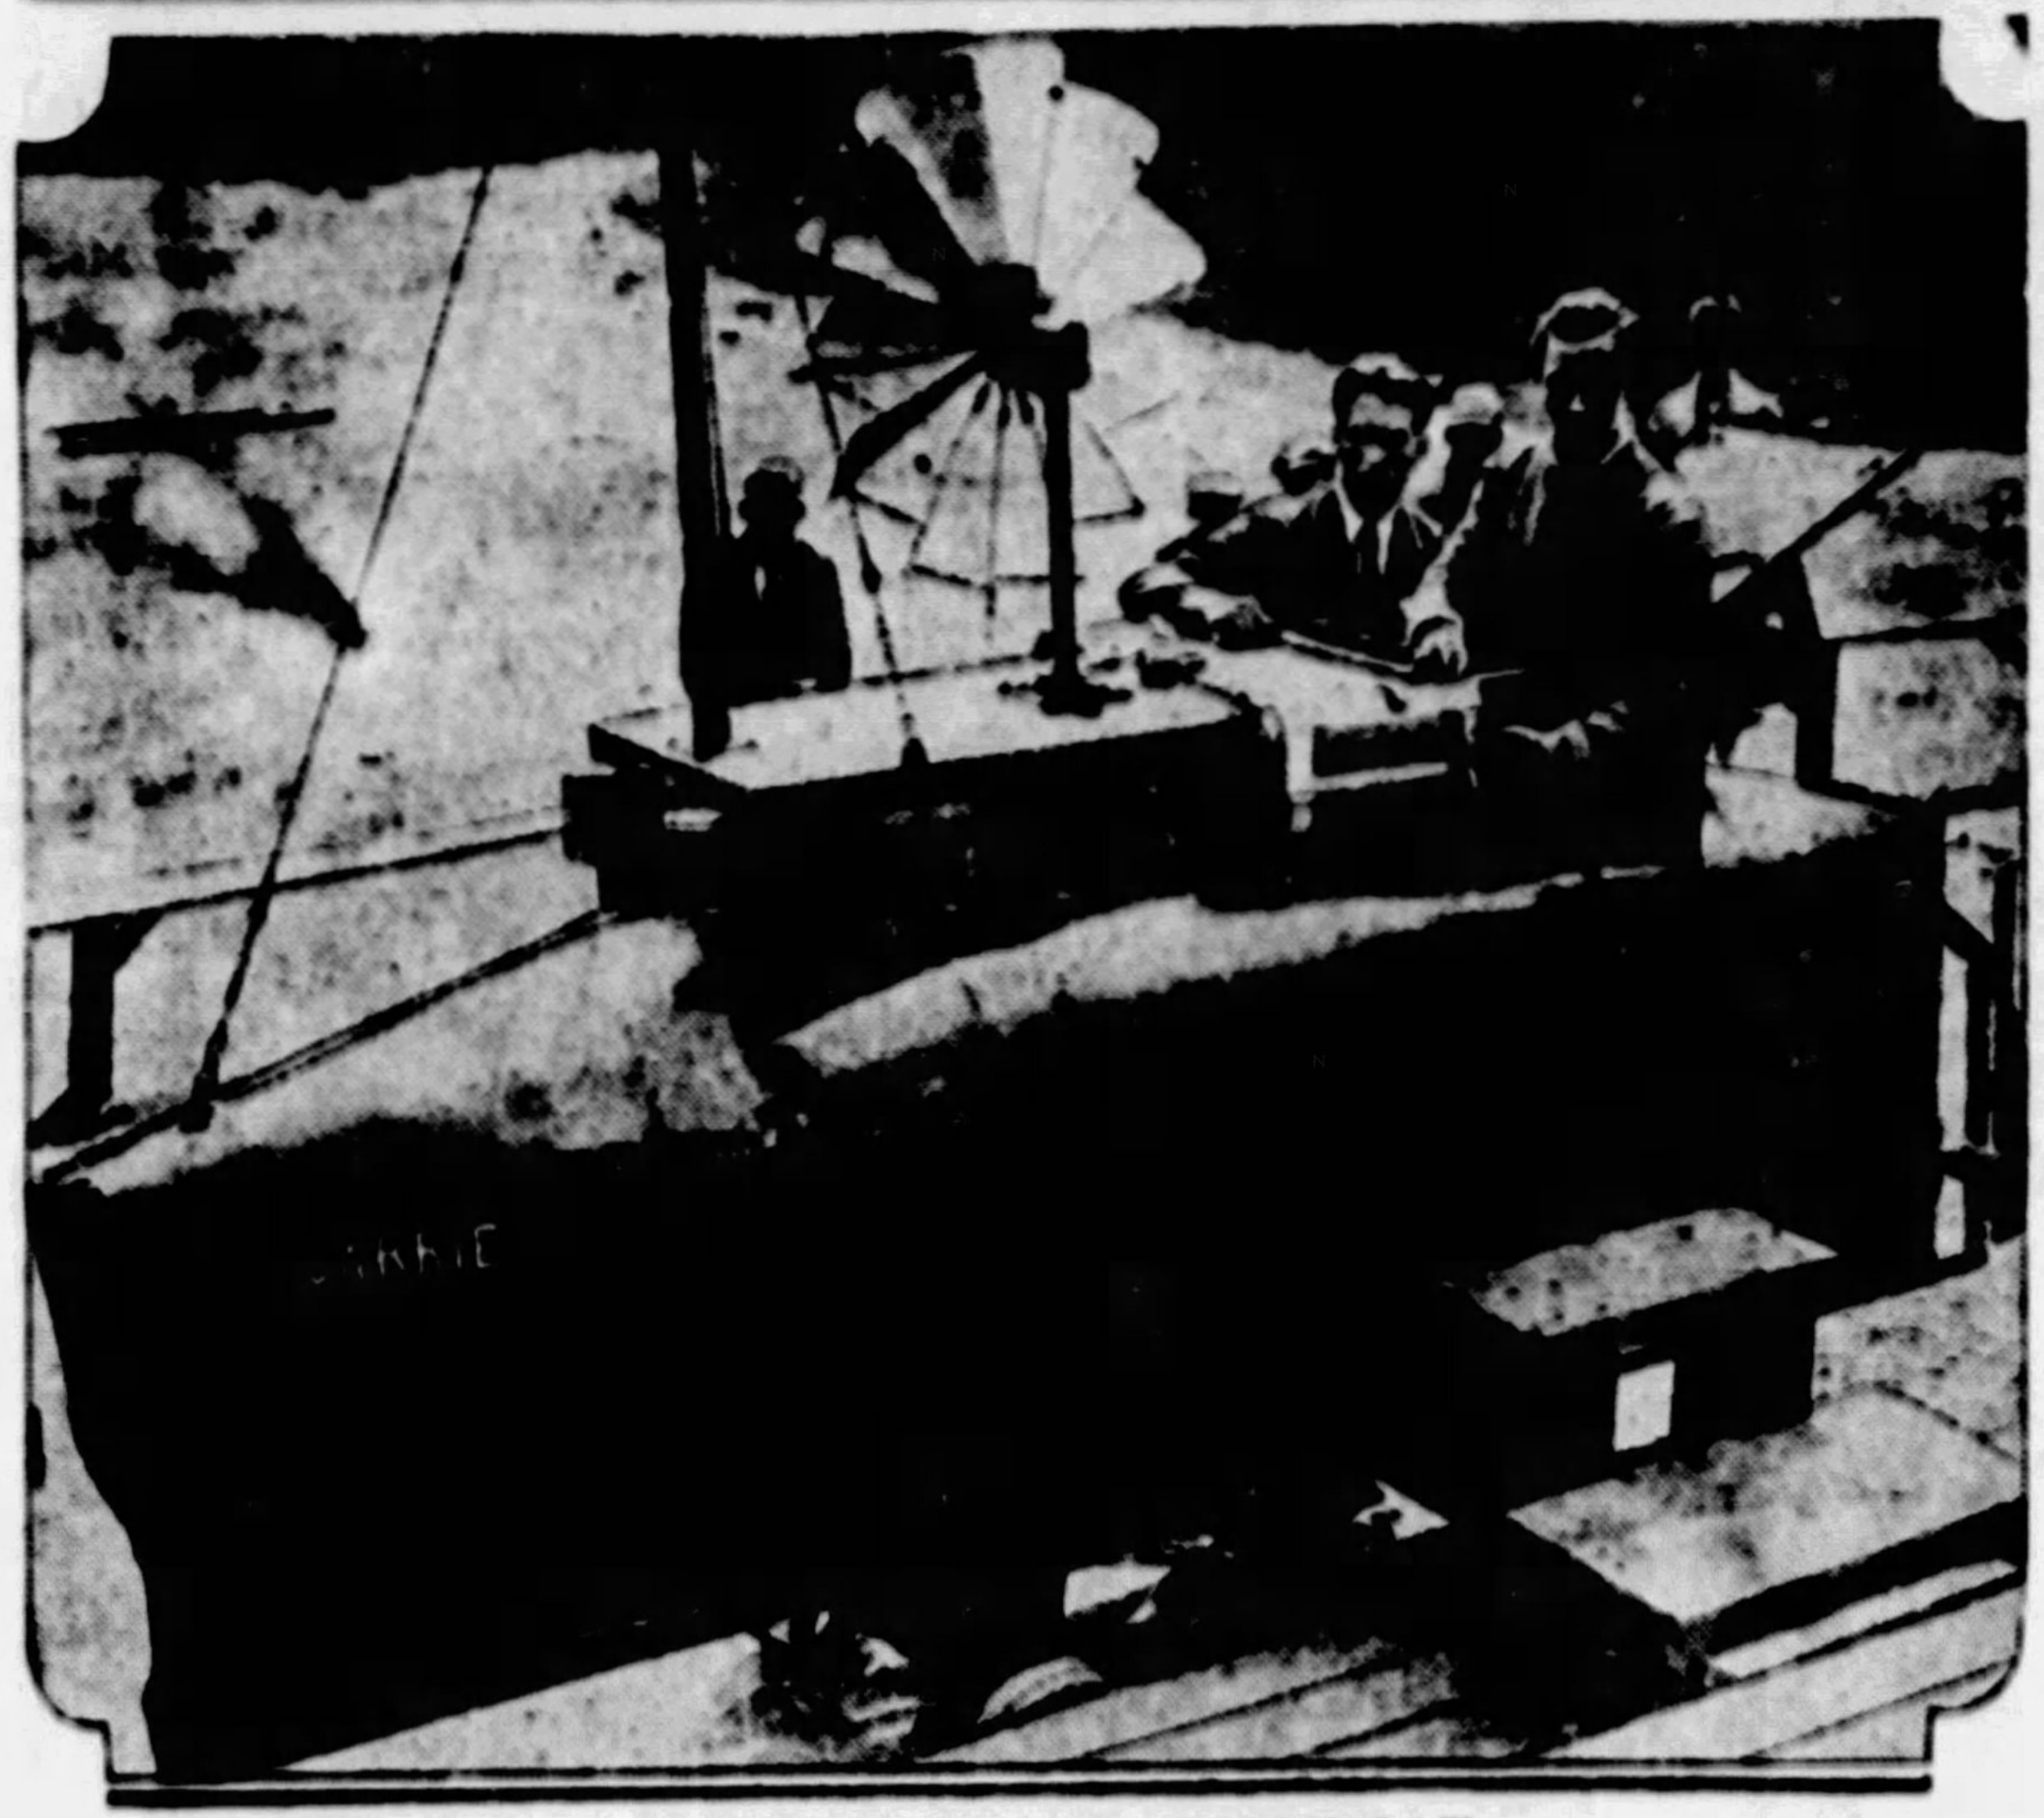
THEY WON'T CROSS THE ATLANTIC



IN THIS UNUSUAL LITTLE BOAT

Because their 12-foot home-made boat, which somewhat resembled a submarine, acted somewhat like a submarine, Edward Tierney and Dick Hayman will not attempt to cross the Atlantic in 30 days. Entry into the boat was made through a square hole on the deck, which when closed was expected to keep out high seas, but failed to do so on a test trip. The craft was filled with water when beached.

As Fisherman, Hoover Proves Good Secretary

AVALON, Santa Catalina Island, Cal., Aug. 17.—(AP.)—Herbert Hoover today had demonstrated that as a fisherman he was a better Secretary of Commerce.

Leaving here yesterday at 7 a. m., the Secretary returned late last night with only the story of the fish that got away. The party, consisting of Secretary Hoover, his son, Alan, and M. W. Van Burnt, spent the day in the vicinity of San Clemente Island. Both tuna and sword fish had been reported there the day before and several schools of tuna were sighted.

The Secretary had but one strike, and failed to land the fish. Swordfish, the aim of the party, were not encountered.

His plans for today included another fishing trip and perhaps a goat hunt in the interior of this island.

don't fool yourself

A tip for office workers

What kind of people do employers like to have around them?

Certainly not people with Halitosis (unpleasant breath). You couldn't blame a man for firing an employee with Halitosis to hire one without it. Why not keep yourself continually on the safe and polite side by daily rinsing the mouth with Listerine, the safe antiseptic?

Immediately it destroys mouth odors—even strong ones like that of the onion.

Thousands who used to be unwelcome because of Halitosis now can go anywhere.

Send for our free book of etiquette. Address Lambert Pharmacal Co., Dept. G-8, 2101 Locust St., St. Louis, Mo.

1/3 Had Halitosis

200 dentists declare that about every third patient is frequently halitoxic—and further declare they have been forced to use Listerine in self-defence.

Interesting Facts About Chinese Rugs New at Kaufmann's

Chinese Rugs may be either very beautiful or very monotonous, depending on how they are woven. To choose such rugs satisfactorily at their source, one should be not merely a good trader but have a thorough understanding of the processes of weaving and dyeing, and a knowledge of wools.

Chinese Rugs at Kaufmann's are uniformly woven of the finest spun yarn. The dyes are the best procurable—Alizarine Chrome, which impart a smooth, even lustre and a beauty not otherwise obtainable.

• • •

A Silver Taupe Chinese rug, size 10x14, has a flame colored inside border; an extremely rich foundation for living or dining room.

A 9x12 ft. Chinese rug is sapphire blue with narrow border of Cardinal Rouge.

Cloth of Gold color is one rug, with a border of burnished gold (almost brown) into which it melts imperceptibly.

Reseda green is another 9x12, with border in deeper tone, vined round with an interesting floral spray.

Still another has a flame ground, bordered in rich, guernsey cream.

Please note that these are tones which have been studied and brought here because they adapt themselves so happily to Pittsburgh interiors.

The 9x12 ft. rugs are priced 295.00, 350.00 and 425.00—other sizes proportionately.

Rugs selected from these collections may be stored with us, without additional charge, until they are needed in the fall. Convenient payments may also be arranged.

Millie's Decision to Secure Job With John Nye Makes Sally Jerome Uneasy

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Sally Jerome, 20, and clever and pretty, is the prop and mainstay of her family in the absence of her father, who has been separated from her mother for nine years. The family consists of Mrs. Jerome, the twins, Beau and Millie, a year older than Sally, and Sally herself. Mrs. Jerome is a semi-invalid, so Sally does the housework mornings and works for old Mr. Peevey in the afternoons. In the flat below the Jerome flat lives young Ted Sloan, who's in love with Sally. Sally, however, has small interest in him except as a dancing partner. She adores to dance. One hot Monday in August Sally gets into an elevator on her way to Mr. Peevey's office. The best-looking young chap she has ever seen in her life is the only other passenger, and Sally never takes her eyes from him all the way to the top floor. Then, just as the elevator stops, she exclaims aloud that she's forgotten Mr. Peevey's milk"—the milk that she warms for his lunch every day. She and the unknown young man laugh at the silly words, and Sally goes to buy the milk with a strangely light heart. Later she sees the man in the office opposite Mr. Peevey's. On the door is painted his name and business: "JOHN NYE—REAL ESTATE." Sally wishes she knew him. Millie drops into the office, in Mr. Peevey's absence, to tell Sally that she has just lost her job because she wouldn't let her employer get gay with her. Millie maintains that she just won't let any man in an office make love to her, although Beau's girl, Mabel Wilmot, says this is not the truth. Millie gets a glimpse of John Nye across the hall and makes up her mind to ask him if he needs a stenographer.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

"MAYBE your slick-looking friend across the hall needs a good stenog," Millie was saying now, in that slow, dreamy way of hers. Millie always spoke of herself as a "good" stenographer, but the hard, cold fact was that she was a very poor one.

"So long as I've got to work for some man or other, I may as well pick a looker," her soft little voice flowed on like peaceful water. "I'm sick and tired of these old papas that try to hold my hand and make dinner dates with me. Why, Bursall had two daughters older than I am, but he still thinks he's Ben Lyon or Richard Dix. I used to want to yell at him: 'Be yourself, Daddy! Be your age!' when he got sentimental!"

"Well, why didn't you?" Sally interrupted with cold briskness.

"Why didn't I?" Millie repeated, and it was a minute more before she could think up an answer to that question.

"Why, because I was working for him, of course," she said then, her blue eyes wide between their blackened lashes.

"What difference did that make?" Sally went on, with a shrug of her expressive shoulders. "The fact that you were working for him was all the more reason why he should have treated you with respect and he knew it—and you knew it! You should have been ashamed of yourself, Millie Jerome. It was your own fault. No man is going to start anything with a girl who behaves herself—"

"Oh, you don't know what you're talking about," her sister broke in, with a faint show of spirit. "You work up here with Old Peevey, who's dying on the branch, and you think all men are like him. But they aren't! Not by a long day's journey. They're horrid, some of them. Most of them, in fact."

"Yes?" asked Sally, as if she didn't believe it. "Well, I'll bet you anything you like that they wouldn't be horrid with me more than once! I'd tell 'em PLENTY." She gave a vigorous nod with her dark, glossy head and her blue eyes blazed.

Millie laughed. "Yes, but I'm not hard-boiled like you are," she said gently. She could say the most cutting things in the sweetest, softest little way.

And what she had just said to Sally was most unjust. Sally was not "hard-boiled." But she was hard. She had had to be hard to carry on for her family as she had for years.

She was hard and fine as a diamond is fine and hard, and crystal-clear. There was nothing mushy about her. Nothing flabby. Nothing soft and silly. Her mind was as alert and quick and healthy as her firm young body.

As she faced Millie now there was something almost boyish in the blue directness of her eyes, the frankness of her sudden quick smile.

"Let's not row any more," she said pleadingly. "It never gets us anywhere." She held out one of her firm little hands in a friendly offer to "shake on it."

But Millie shook her blond head in its almond-green hat.

"No, thanks," she answered, stubbornly. "You can't stick pins into me one minute and soft-soap me the next!" She locked her hands behind her back, and swung around towards the door.

"Well, I think I'll drift across the hall and see if there happens to be an opening over there," she finished.

But before she had time to do it the door of John Nye's office was pushed wide open and he came out. Without so much as a glance at them he clapped his hat to his head and was off down the corridor in a hurry.

Millie made a rueful little face. "Well, I didn't have to walk past a bee-hive to get stung that time, did I?" she asked slangily. "Well, I'm off. I think I'll go home and have a cold bath and go to bed. I was up late last night, and I sure am dead. See you later." And she, too, was gone, leaving her gloves on Sally's desk and a fragrance of "Love Lyrics" perfume on the hot air of the little room.

But she was back almost before she was gone. "Did I leave my gloves here?" she asked.

She came over to the side of her sister's chair and put her arm around her shoulders.

"Sally, I'm sorry I said you were were hard-boiled," she began. "You know I didn't mean it, don't you?"

"Of course I do," Sally answered, generously and promptly. "We shouldn't row—you and I. We say such rotten things to each other, and neither one of us means them."

Millie nodded her head slowly. "That's true," she said. "And say, Sally, will you do me a favor? Will you lend—"

She stopped short as Mr. Peevey popped into the room.

He flung his hat over a hook, scowled horribly, and sniffed the perfumed air like a hunting dog.

"What's that smell?" he asked bitterly. He was always in a terrible temper after he had been to the dentist.

"That's my perfume, Mr. Peevey," answered Millie impudently. There never had been any love lost between Millie and Mr. Peevey. "Don't you like it?"

Mr. Peevey paid not the least bit of attention to her.

"I'll have my lunch now, Miss Jerome," he barked at Sally, looking over Millie's head as if she were not in the room.

"Well, goodby," murmured Millie, to her sister, and then in an undertone: "You couldn't let me take two dollars, could you?"

Sally gave it to her, and she went.

"I hope she doesn't buy any more perfume with it," remarked Mr. Peevey when he and Sally were alone.

He began to walk up and down the little office with short jerky steps. "What happened to all the women, anyway?" he wanted to know. "They must ha' all gone crazy! Messing themselves up with powder and perfume and one thing and another until they ain't like anything human!"

He glared at Sally from under bristling eyebrows. "Some sense to you!" he snapped at her. "The only fool thing you've done so far is to cut your hair off!"

Sally looked back at him unhappily. "Mr. Peevey," she said, "I'm so sorry, but this milk has turned sour. It won't take me five minutes to get some more—I'll be right back."

Out in the street the crowds of people moved listlessly under the broiling sun. Men carried their coats under their arms, and mopped their face with damp handkerchiefs. Women went on heavy feet from store to store, buying ice-cream freezers and hammocks, thermos bottles and electric fans. The soda fountains were doing a record business.

But Sally Jerome, darting through the crowd on flying feet, had no thought of the terrific heat. Her one idea was to get another bottle of milk for Mr. Peevey as quickly as she could.

"It would be just like him to discharge me today," she remarked to herself on her way back to the Nye-Taylor building with the cold bottle under her arm. "Just when Millie's out of a job, too."

Sally's constant fear was that she would lose her position with Mr. Peevey. She knew that part-time jobs that paid as well as hers paid were few and far between.

And she had to have a part-time job as long as he mother was too ill to do the housework by herself. For Millie knew nothing about the making of beds, the sweeping of floors, and the cooking of meals. She was worse than useless around the house.

"It's just up to me to keep this job, no matter what happens!" said Sally to herself as she stepped into the elevator in the lobby.

A man stepped in just ahead of her, but it was not until the car had started that she recognized him.

It was Mr. John Nye, himself!

This time Sally did not look at him. She kept her eyes demurely upon the pasteboard lid of the bottle until they reached the top floor.

She started down the long marble corridor almost at a run.

Halfway between the elevators and Mr. Peevey's office the corridor made a sharp turn, and as Sally rounded it her elbow struck the shining wall beside her. The bottle of milk fell from her arms and broke upon the floor in a hundred pieces!

"Oh, my cow!" groaned Sally, and she groaned it aloud and with despair.

She had left the office with just enough money for the milk, and her purse was lying on the top of her desk.

"I don't dare go back for it," she thought. "I just don't dare face Mr. Peevey without that milk."

She turned and spoke to the tall dark young man who was just coming around the treacherous corner.

"Would you lend me a quarter?" she said to him desperately. "I've broken this milk bottle, and I've got to get some more."

The man nodded. One of his tanned hands went into a trousers' pocket but instead of bringing out a quarter it held a square of clean white handkerchief.

"Let me go and get the milk for you," he offered, "while you clean up this mess. Or shall I send a cleaning woman?—I think there's one somewhere on this floor—"

"Oh, no!" Sally's voice was quick and strained. "I'll clean it up, myself. And DO hurry—please!"

When he was gone she looked at the handkerchief he had given her. It was fine white linen with a rolled edge. In one corner were the initials "J. N." embroidered with dark blue silk.

Sally held it for a full minute. And then she did a thing that wasn't at all the sort of thing anyone would expect of Sally—a sentimental and romantic thing. She slipped that square of linen handkerchief into her blouse and began to pick up the shattered glass with her little roughened fingers.

CHAPTER IV.

IT was 3 o'clock that afternoon before Sally finally set the luke-warm milk and the whole-wheat biscuits on Mr. Peevey's desk.

"Just three hours after my regular lunch time!" he snapped out at her, pushing his glasses back on his forehead and scowling up at her. "This'll never do, my girl. I've got to have my food on time or not at all."

Sally might have pointed out to him that it wasn't her fault that he had made a dentist's appointment at his regular lunch time.

She might have reminded him that he had not stepped into the office until 2 o'clock that afternoon. In fact, there were two or three sharp things that she might have said to him.

But she never even thought of them. Her mind was so filled with the thought of John Nye across the hall that she was too happy to let Mr. Peevey—or "Old Peevish," as Millie called him always—bother her.

All the long, hot afternoon, while she typed Mr. Peevey's letters, while she took down his slow, fussy dictation, her thoughts were busy with John Nye.

How old was he? . . . Was he married? She was sure that he wasn't. He did not look like the type of man who would speak to a damsel in distress, and help her out of her trouble, if he were married. There was an honest, steadfast look in his eyes that spoke of an honest and decent character.

Words may lie, actions may lie, and faces may lie, but a person's eyes will give him away 99 times out of 100.

"I wish I knew him better," thought Sally Jerome, who never had wished that of any man before in her busy life. "But he'll probably never look at me again. So that's that, and I may as well forget him."

She tried to—but without any success at all.

At 5 o'clock Mr. Peevey put on his sun-burned Panama, and announced that he was going to "knock off for the day."

"You'd better start home early tonight, Miss Jerome," he said. "It's pretty hot weather, and you look tired. Good night."

As he opened the door she caught a glimpse of the office across the hall. John Nye was standing in the middle of it, talking to a young woman in white.

He looked up and his eyes met Sally's, for just an instant. Then the door swung to.

It was 6 o'clock before Sally had finished Mr. Peevey's letters. He was always advising her to start home early, and then giving her so much work to do that she could not possibly finish it by 5:30—the time she was supposed to leave every day. In his fussy little way was as heartless as a Turk.

At three minutes after 6 Sally opened the door and stepped out into the shining marble whiteness of the hall.

The door of John Nye's office was closed, and she told herself that he had gone home—or perhaps the girl in white was a friend of his, and he was going to her house for dinner. Or perhaps he was taking her some place to have dinner with him.

"Oh, well, I can't help it. He's nothing to me, after all," Sally said to herself, sensibly.

And just at that moment his door opened and he came out and closed it behind him. His lean brown face flashed with a friendly grin, and he held up his hand in greeting.

"I was just going to knock on your door," he said, and to Sally the sound of his voice was a thrilling thing. "I had an idea that you might know of a secretary for me. Mine came in this afternoon and broke the pleasant news that she had got married on Saturday."

"Was the girl in white your secretary?" Sally wanted to ask, but instead of that she repeated: "A secretary. No, I don't believe I know a single girl who—" She broke off, and a troubled look came into the dark blue eyes.

She did know a girl who was out of a job! . . . Millie! Millie, with her soft little pussy-cat ways, her green-blue eyes that said all sorts of interesting things to any man who happened to take her fancy; her perfumed clothes and her gauze stockings and high heels.

At the thought of Millie sitting in John Nye's office, under his eyes, all day long, six days a week, that same odd little pain twisted again in Sally's breast.

She knew now what that odd little feeling was. It was jealousy, pure and simple.

"I know a girl who might do," she said with an effort. It seldom occurred to Sally to tell a lie. Her natural impulse was to tell the truth, no matter what it cost her. This time it was costing her a great deal.

"She's my sister," she went on, her voice very low and husky, not like the light and rippling voice that was part of her gay charm. John Nye's level black brows went up a bit. "Your sister," he said. "I'm sure she'd do—that is, if she's half as nice as you are. To think of your getting old Hank Peevey his lunch every day—"

"I'll ask her to come to see you in the morning, if you'd like me to," Sally interrupted him briskly. And when he said that he would, all the light and gayety faded out of her face.

But the man did not see it. For he and Sally were walking down the hall towards the elevator now, and the tiny down-turned brim of her hat hid her face from him as she went along beside him.

"My car's parked in the next block," he said when they reached the street, "and I'll be glad to take you any place you want to go—"

"No thanks!" Sally cut him short again. "I've some shopping to do." And she went on her way to the little delicatessen in Polk street to buy a certain kind of Bohemian ryebread that Mrs. Jerome was very fond of.

Millie was not at home when Sally got there at 7 o'clock.

"She went out about 4 o'clock, and said she might be here for supper, but that she probably wouldn't," Beau told Sally as she passed his open bedroom door on her way to her own room. "I've been sick all day. I guess it's the heat. Anyway, I had to come home early."

THE BROKEN BOTTLE!

"LET ME GET IT"

Sally's Tragedy! It seemed one of the little incidents of life, to drop the bottle of milk that meant most of Mr. Peevey's lunch. Yet, it brought the cavalier's offer from the man in the elevator—an offer to serve. Has this chance politeness anything to do with the course of events? But that's to be seen.

14 QUALIFY FOR JUDGE

15 FAIL TO POLL 20 PER CENT IN BAR VOTE

Of the 29 judicial candidates voted upon in the lawyers' referendum, 14 polled the necessary 20 per cent, which was fixed as a minimum to obtain certification of the result of the voting.

Counting of the votes was completed late last night by a board especially chosen for the purpose. Of the 1,227 valid votes cast the following 14 received more than 20 per cent: Judge Thomas J. Ford, 742; Judge Thomas D. Carnahan, 712; Judge Josiah Cohen, 644; Judge Joseph M. Swearingen, 644; Judge Nelson McVicar, 769; Judge George V. Moore, 722; Judge James Gray, 880; Judge Richard W. Martin, 1,012; Judge Frank J. Gollmar, 276; Edward W. Chalfant, 245; Frank P. Patterson, 235; J. Garfield Houston, 404; Elder W. Marshall, 1,011; W. Heber Dithrich, 462.

The first nine, in the order given, are the present judges whose seats on the Common Pleas Court bench will be filled this fall by the electorate. The first four judges named are the senior judges completing their second term of 10 years. Judge Martin polled the largest vote, leading Elder W. Marshall by one vote. Judges Ford, Cohen, Carnahan, Swearingen, McVicar and Moore are candidates on the Republican organization ticket, together with Attorneys Chalfant, Marshall and Dithrich.

Yesterday's vote was nearly double that of a similar election held last fall. Nearly every lawyer in Allegheny county, within the county, voted in the election. Thirty letters were sent in by air mail and a large number came from lawyers spending their vacation in various states from the Atlantic to the Pacific.

I. C. C. RULING WILL SPUR COAL TRADE HERE

STOPS RATE CUT BY SOUTHERN ROADS

Pittsburgh coal operators expect to retrieve from 5,000,000 to 10,000,000 tons of lost coal tonnage as a result of the decision yesterday of the Interstate [illegible] mission in nullifying [illegible] thern railroads and [illegible] tain a reduction in [illegible] ates to offset the 20 cents a ton cut allowed Pittsburgh district operators by the commission, effective August 10.

Between 25,000,000 and 30,000,000 tons of coal are shipped to the lakes annually for northwest consumption, and the differential which Pittsburgh will now have of 45 cents a ton over southern shippers as compared with the former rate will enable coal operators of the Pittsburgh territory to speed up their coal output in the summer time, some of the district's largest operators say.

EXPECT BIG RETURN

It is confidently expected that the decision will bring between $50,000,000 and $80,000,000 worth of additional [illegible] iness yearly into the Pittsburgh [illegible], this money to be distributed among coal companies and [illegible] among those identified [illegible] mercantile trade. In that res[illegible], it is declared, the decision will be far-reaching.

Thomas A. Duncan, chairman of the general traffic committee of the Chamber of Commerce, which fought for a reduction in freight rates; Horace F. Baker, president of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal Corporation, who is regarded as a spokesman for a large number of operators, and others expressed satisfaction because of the prompt ruling of the commission in suspending the reductions posted by Southern railroads. Hearings will be held on the subject, but Pittsburgh coal men do not anticipate that the Interstate Commerce Commission will grant reductions and thereby undo what has already been done.

President P. T. Fagan of District No. 5 of the United Mine Workers of America said that in his judgment the decision will enable Western Pennsylvania markets to win back trade from the South, as labor is more efficient in the North than the South and that union labor should profit.

COUNCILMAN HAS TWO JAILED

When Councilman James F. Malone notified police that two men were loitering near his home at 225 Iowa street, early this morning, Toke Spears, 18, and his brother, Willie, 16, Negroes from Alabama, were arrested. In Morals Court they were held over for further investigation.

$29.50

You'll Pay $45 to $55 When Winter Comes!

Here's the story behind this Overcoat Sale. Conditions peculiar to the clothing industry result in a close-down of all the large factories at least one month during the year.

This, of course, works a hardship on the employes and results in a big loss to the manufacturer. So some time ago we suggested to Hart Schaffner & Marx, and our other good makers, that we wanted to stimulate our clothing business in August and believed if we could buy a large quantity of fine Winter Coats to offer to our customers at a real big saving we could sell them. From that developed the idea of opening their factories during the dull period, giving employment to their hands, to make up for us from their surplus woolens some 2,000 Winter Overcoats in the newest models for 1927 and 1928.

Willing to sacrifice their profits in order to maintain their organization the makers sold us these Winter Overcoats at About Half Price—and that is exactly the basis on which we are turning them over to you. In other words you can buy Overcoats now for $29.50 that will retail in the season for $45 to $55. And we want to say that never since we have been in business have we sold Hart Schaffner & Marx Overcoats in the month of August for $29.50.

A $5.00 Deposit Will Hold Your Overcoat If Desired Until October 15th

In the meantime you can make small payments and when you are ready to wear your coat it will be paid for.

Try Magnesia For Indigestion

People who suffer from indigestion usually have tried pepsin, charcoal, drugs and various digestive aids and got little more than slight temporary relief—sometimes not even that.

But before giving up to chronic dyspepsia, just try the effect of a little Bisurated Magnesia—not the ordinary commercial carbonate, citrate or milk, but pure Bisurated Magnesia which you can obtain from practically any druggist in either powder or tablet form.

Take a teaspoonful of the powder or four tablets with a little water after your next meal, and see what a difference this makes. It will instantly neutralize the dangerous, harmful acid in the stomach which now causes your food to ferment, and sour, making gas, wind, flatulence, heartburn and the bloated or heavy, lumpy feeling that seems to follow most everything you eat. You can enjoy your meals without a fear of indigestion.

QUICKSANDS OF LOVE

A New Phase of "Revelations of a Wife"

By Adele Garrison

CURIOUSLY enough it was Mary Harrison herself who made the first suggestion that we bring Lillian's dinner festivity to a close. I had thought that she was too much interested in young Noel Veritzen to heed the flight of time, for even after we had left the dinner table and returned to Lillian's living room, the two young people had continued the absorbed conversation begun in the dining room and given to the rest of us only the perfunctory attention demanded by the rules of good breeding.

But a few minutes after 9 o'clock she came over to my chair and murmured softly:

"Sorry to be a spoil-sport, Auntie Madge, but you know that rule of Mr. Veritzen's that I have to be in bed by 10."

I looked at her with a touch of dismay in my amused smile.

"I think I could persuade Mr. Veritzen to be lenient with you for this once, Mary," I said.

"Oh, but that's the last thing I want you to do," she said with something that seemed queerly like alarm in her manner. "I don't want to ask any favor of that man at all. Besides, Auntie Madge, I don't want to complain, but I've got a headache, and I want to get to bed as soon as I can. I haven't studied any tonight, you know, and I shall have to make up for it tomorrow. I'll tell you what, why don't you let me get into a taxi and go on home? I don't want to spoil the rest of the party."

The amused look I had given her at first changed to one of alarm. There was a hectic flush on her cheek, which showed through the rouge, and her eyes were brilliant with excitement or fever, I was not sure which.

"Indeed I shall do no such thing," I told her warmly. "We all want to go home early anyway. You know my father sails tomorrow and I shall have to get up early myself. Go back to your seat, dear. I'll manage it in a few minutes so they will think I am the one who wishes to go home early."

She flashed me a grateful smile and went back to her seat, where Noel Veritzen was standing, waiting for her.

"Of course I'd like you to stay till morning doth appear," Lillian said, when a few minutes later I told her that we must go, "but the chief already has issued his command for an early departure, and when he speaks, we all must obey."

She flashed him an affectionate smile as she spoke, an indication of the esteem in which she as well as the others of his close associates in his government work held him. Suddenly I was conscious that Lillian shared with Hugh Grantland and Lee Chow the reason which lay behind the apparently inexplicable voyage which my father was to begin upon the morrow. For an instant I resented being left out of their confidence, then my old training as a humble subordinate in their work asserted itself and I forced myself to cheerful acquiescence.

Noel Veritzen lingered over his leavetaking of Mary. I saw that with a repressed smile, and realized that Lillian also noticed it when she gave me a surreptitious nudge. And when he and Lillian had accompanied our small party to the elevator, I heard him say softly:

"May I come to see you at Mrs. Graham's some time soon?"

Mary hesitated, and I wondered if she meant to refuse his request.

"I'd love to have you," she said at last, "but you know I'm under very strict rules. I don't know whether 'boy friends' come under the same head as candy or not. I'm forbidden that most of the time."

She laughed up audaciously at him, and I saw the boy's eyes kindle.

"May I ask your aunt for permission?" he queried.

"Yes, do," she answered.

MILADY BEAUTIFUL

By LOIS LEEDS

Controlling Dandruff

PRACTICALLY every one has more or less dandruff, and it is only natural that this should be so. The body is constantly shedding flakes of dead skin which come off on our underwear and in our baths without attracting attention. The particles of wornout skin that appear on the scalp are, of course, prevented by the growth of hairs from falling off at once and unnoticed. When the scalp is not massaged every day nor the hair brushed thoroughly the flakes of dandruff accumulate and in extreme cases form yellowish crusts on the head by mixing with the secretions of the oil and sweat glands. Large amounts of this loose dead skin keep the air from the scalp and invite infection.

Usually people neglect this scalp condition until the dandruff collects in such quantities that it becomes a source of embarrassment. In this, however, as in other beauty problems, an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. One should make a habit of giving the scalp and hair systematic care before they show any any signs of trouble.

The conscientious daily use of the hairbrush is the best beauty treatment that can be given. The brush should have long, fairly stiff bristles which should be kept clean by frequent washings and exposure to sunshine. In using this simple beauty aid one should be sure to press the bristles through the hair. Of course, this thorough method of brushing may muss one's marcel wave, but there is no other equally effective way to prevent or cure dandruff.

Brushing and the occasional use of a fine comb will keep dandruff in check in most cases. In addition, regular shampoos are required. The soap used should be in a liquid form. Tincture of green soap makes a particularly good shampoo for scalps that produce excessive dandruff. A strong boric acid solution or other antiseptic wash is also excellent to combat the germs lodged among the flakes of dead skin. Twice a month is usually often enough to wash the hair. Dry shampoo may be used on alternate weeks if the hair is oily; they do not increase dandruff, but they must be brushed out very thoroughly.

When the dandruff is fine and dry an oily ointment is often helpful. The following may be rubbed into the scalp twice a week: One and one-half teaspoonfuls flowers of sulphur, two ounces carbolated vaseline, 10 grains of quinine, one ounce olive oil, one ounce witchhazel.

Elisabeth MacM.—Your questions are answered above. Please send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my leaflet on "Care of the Hair." The white soap you mention is O. K. for the shampoo."

Tomorrow's Horoscope

THURSDAY, AUG. 18.

EXCEPT in the early morning hours this is likely to be a day unfavorable to many activities on the planet Earth. According to astrology malefic aspects are strong.

It is a day in which women should be quiescent and inactive, for a sinister sway is supposed to effect them.

While this rule prevails it is easy to start a scandal and for this reason girls should be especially circumspect.

Feminine efforts in business or public affairs are subject to a sinister direction of the stars, it is said, while this rule prevails. It will be lucky to defer negotiations until later.

In politics as well as business women should be especially cautious at this time, for they are near to success of an unexpected sort that will arouse envy and jealousy, the seers prophesy.

The wheat market may manifest vagaries of a surprising sort and wise men and women will be slow to speculate.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the best augury for their financial affairs, but the stars are not so promising where love is involved.

Children born on this day may be determined and definite in character, difficult to direct, but able to win success. Their besetting weakness is to be found in desire for romance.

My Son's Sweethearts

By IDA McG. GIBSON.

"Come back here and sit on the arm of my chair again, and I will see if I can make your understand."

Sitting very straight, so that he could look directly at her, he tried to fathom what she meant. With a catch in her throat that was hardly audible, Lyra turned her face to his.

"I'm going to say something to you, Phillip, that few women have dared to think, and probably none of them has ever before had the temerity to tell any man whose respect she wanted to retain.

"Phillip," she said, and her low voice was very sad, "I have never loved you or any of the others that came into or went out of my life, like shadows across a pane."

Phil shook himself as though he were trying to wake up.

"Surely you know, dear, that you were not the first nor the last."

He looked blankly at her as she continued: "But what you have not known, and what few would believe, either men or women, if I had told them, was that I have loved but one man in all my life, and that man is—my husband."

"How horrible!" Phil did not know that he had spoken until Lyra answered his exclamation.

"Yes, Philip, that is what the world would say of me, but if a man had told you anything like this about himself, would you have believed that he could have loved his wife truly and yet betrayed her often?"

"Perhaps." The word seemed twisted from his set lips.

"Philip!" Lyra Hilliard came closer to the arm of the chair on which he was sitting. She did not touch him. "Don't you know that women are no different from men? Some human beings, both male and female, are born with an overwhelming curiosity, and they will—yes, they must go to any lengths to satisfy it. Usually both men and women of this temperament call this curiosity 'love.' Only a few dare to face the truth and acknowledge to themselves that it is not love that calls them.

"Love means the spiritual as well as the physical, dear boy, and ultimately it is a comradeship which makes one stand by the other under any and all circumstances. It always makes one understand that back just a little way is something to lean upon—something to go back to.

"Such a love never burns out, because it is not a flaring flame, rather it is a steady glow at which one can always warm one's heart. It is the kind of love that you will have to have if you would find happiness. It is the kind of love that I have always had for my husband. I would be lost in a ravishing world without it, and him. It is the love that some day, when you find it, you will know that all the others have been false; the great love that in youth is both spiritual and physical, and which, if you marry, will in time become that wonderful, affectionate understanding that is now my husband's and mine."

Sally's Shoulders

ENGROSSING
DRAMATIC

By BEATRICE BURTON

Millie's Decision to Secure Job With John Nye Makes Sally Jerome Uneasy

He was lying on his bed. His coat and shoes were off, and he was reading the sport section of the evening paper.

The door of Mrs. Jerome's room was closed. Sally softly opened it, and looked in. The blinds were down and the electric fan was going. In the breezy dimness, Mrs. Jerome was sound asleep against the pillows of her bed. Edna Ferber's "Show Boat" was clasped against her breast, and rose and fell with her heavy breathing.

"I won't wake her up," thought Sally. "Poor thing!—I'll get her something to eat when she wakes up."

Mrs. Jerome's eyes opened, and she yawned.

"Oh, it's you, Sally," she murmured. "What's that you have? Rye bread? I'll have some for my supper, I think, and nothing else but a drop or two of milk. Warm it a bit." She raised her face to be kissed, and closed her eyes again.

"Would you like some supper, or do you feel too bum?" Sally asked Beau, when she had slipped into her thin bungalow apron a few minutes later.

"I've never been too sick to eat yet, and I never expect to be," Beau told her with cheerful bluntness, never glancing up from Jack Dempsey's "Own Story."

Out in the kitchen there was a large puddle of water on the floor, where the drip-pan under the ice-box had run over.

"How the ice does melt this kind of weather!" said Sally aloud. While she was mopping it up, Ted Sloan opened the screen door and came into the neat little room where the sunset glow set the aluminum pans and the water faucets to gleaming like silver. Ted often came up the back steps to the Jeromes' flat when he heard Sally walking about in the kitchen.

"Hello," he said, and seated himself on a corner of the table. "Gosh, this day sure has been a blazer, hasn't it? I never was so hot in my life!"

"Fierce! Awful!" answered Sally, wringing out the mop and emptying the drip-pan down the sink.

"I could have done that for you," Ted went on, "but you move around so fast that I never know what you're going to do until you've done it." He began to scrape out the bowl of his pipe with his pocket knife. His gray eyes were on Sally's white face.

It was damp with perspiration, and around the forehead her hair hung in little rings. The cheap pink bungalow apron was turned back at the neck, leaving her throat bare.

She got down on her knees to put the pan in place under the ice-box, and when she arose Ted was standing close beside her. She glanced up at him in surprise, and then something that she saw in his face—in the sudden masterful glint in his gray eyes—made her turn sharply away from him and walk over to the other side of the kitchen.

She could feel her face growing warm and rosy under his steady concentrated gaze while she heated some milk for her mother, and cut thin, dainty slices from the loaf of Bohemian rye bread.

He cleared his throat. "Say, Sally," he began suddenly, "ever think about doing that for me?"

She looked up, wide-eyed. "Doing what?"

"Getting supper for me—the rest of my life?"

"Supper for you?" Sally echoed. "Why, what do you mean?"

As they stood there, facing each other across the neat, comfortable kitchen, Mrs. Jerome's voice called shrilly from her bedroom:

"Sally! Sally! Have you forgotten me?"

"What's that boy talking to you about?" she asked suspiciously, when her daughter came to her bedside with a trayful of food.

The greatest fear in Mrs. Jerome's life was that someone would marry Sally and take her away. For besides being a daughter, Sally was so many other things—nurse, and cook and bread-winner. She was the most necessary item in Mrs. Jerome's life.

"Oh, you mean Ted?" asked Sally innocently frank. "Why, he wants me to get married to him. At least, I think that's what he's been trying to say to me out there in the kitchen."

Mrs. Jerome gazed at her for a long minute with wet stricken eyes.

"Sally! You'd never do it, would you?" she asked in a shaky voice, and Sally promised her solemnly that never, so long as she lived, would she marry Theodore Sloan!

CHAPTER V.

MRS. JEROME dabbed at her eyes with a handkerchief that fairly reeked with cologne. She bathed her forehead with cologne whenever she had one of her sick headaches, and all of her clothes and her bedroom smelled of it from one year's end to another.

"Sally," she said forlornly, buttering a little piece of the Bohemian rye bread and popping it into her mouth. "It isn't only that I'm afraid you'll marry Ted Sloan. I don't want you to marry anybody—at least, not for a long time. What on earth would I do without you, sick as I am? And, anyway, married life isn't all rose-leaves and sugar pills, either! Don't you be in a hurry to jump into it. Look at me! I wish I'd never heard the word 'marry'!"

Sally began to set the bedside table to rights—brushing up the crumbs on it, smoothing down the dog-eared pages of a book, putting the medicine bottles and the pill boxes in a neat row along the back of it. Her hands moved quietly, quickly, deftly, like the hands of a trained nurse.

"I can't think married life is so terrible, mother," she said firmly, after a minute or two. Her blue eyes were serious and thoughtful. "Or so many people wouldn't get married and live together, would they?"

Mrs. Jerome's face began to pucker up again, and Sally saw that for some reason or other she was going to cry again.

"Of course, that doesn't mean that I want to get married," she hurried to say, "because I don't—and there isn't a chance that I'll marry for perfect ages, if I ever do. Ted Sloan's practically the only man I know except Beau and Mr. Peevey—and I wouldn't marry Ted if he were the last man on earth."

"Well, I'm glad to hear you say that, at any rate," her mother answered with a long sigh. "Turn off that electric fan before you go out. Sometimes I think it makes my headache worse."

Mrs. Jerome's sick headaches were the family tragedy. They had begun nine years before, soon after her husband had left. And they had been growing worse ever since.

The only person in the family who did not take them seriously was her sister-in-law, Miss Emily Jerome, a smart spinster who lived alone in the ramshackle Jerome homestead far out on the River road. Aunt Emily only sniffed when she heard about the headaches.

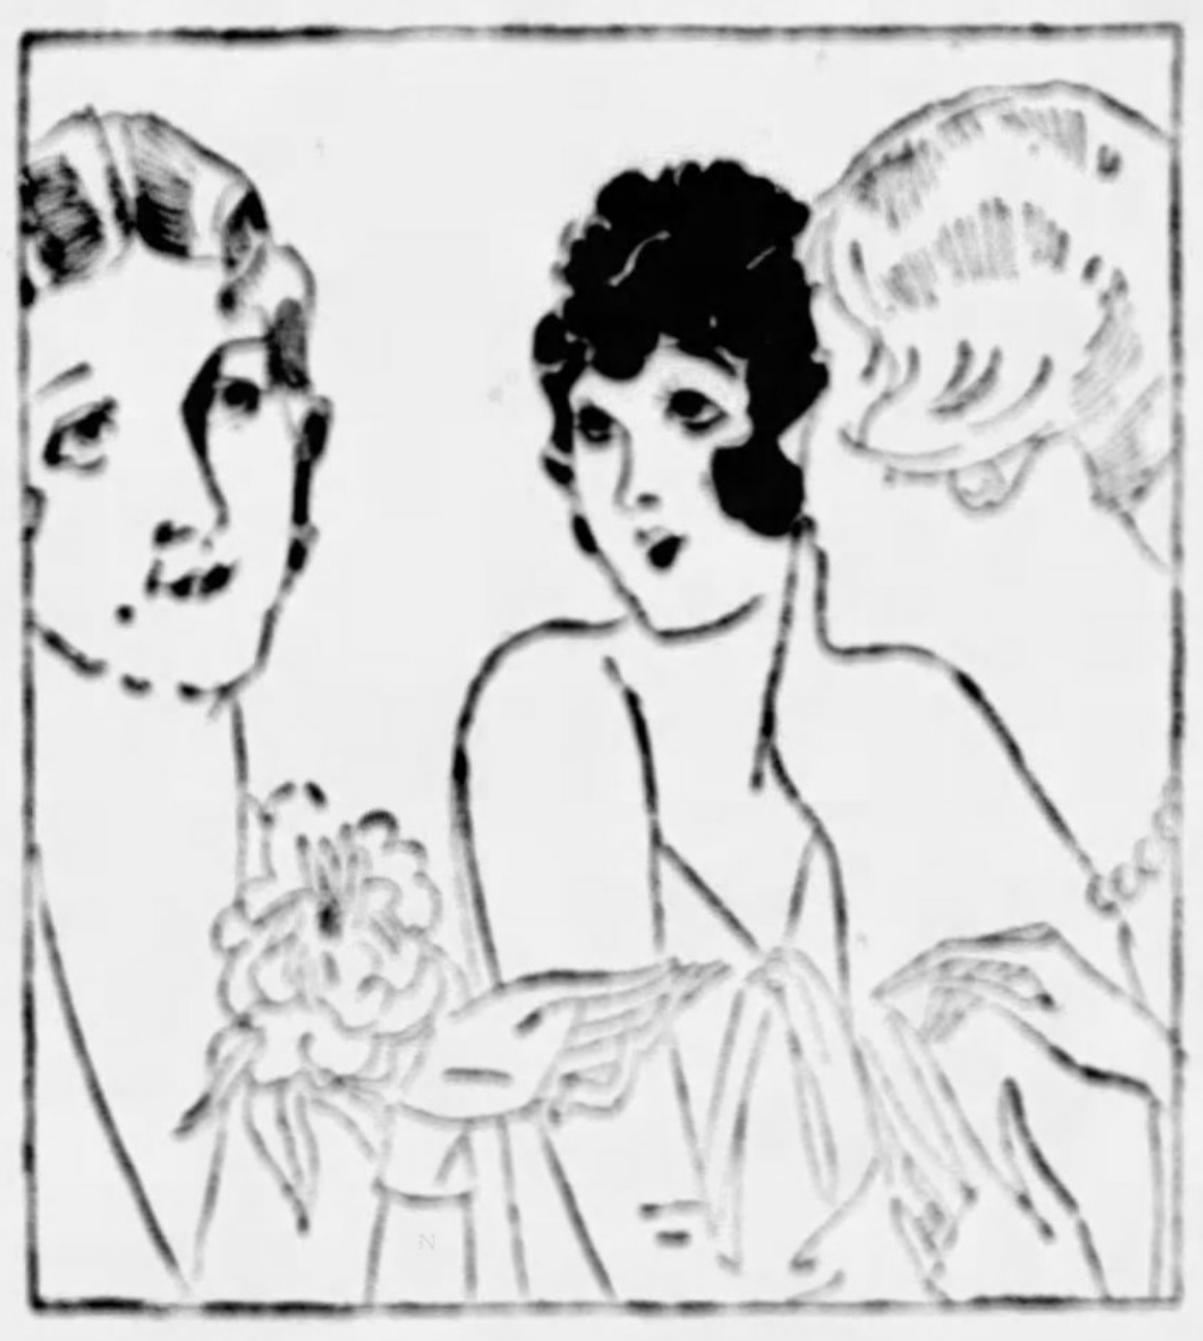
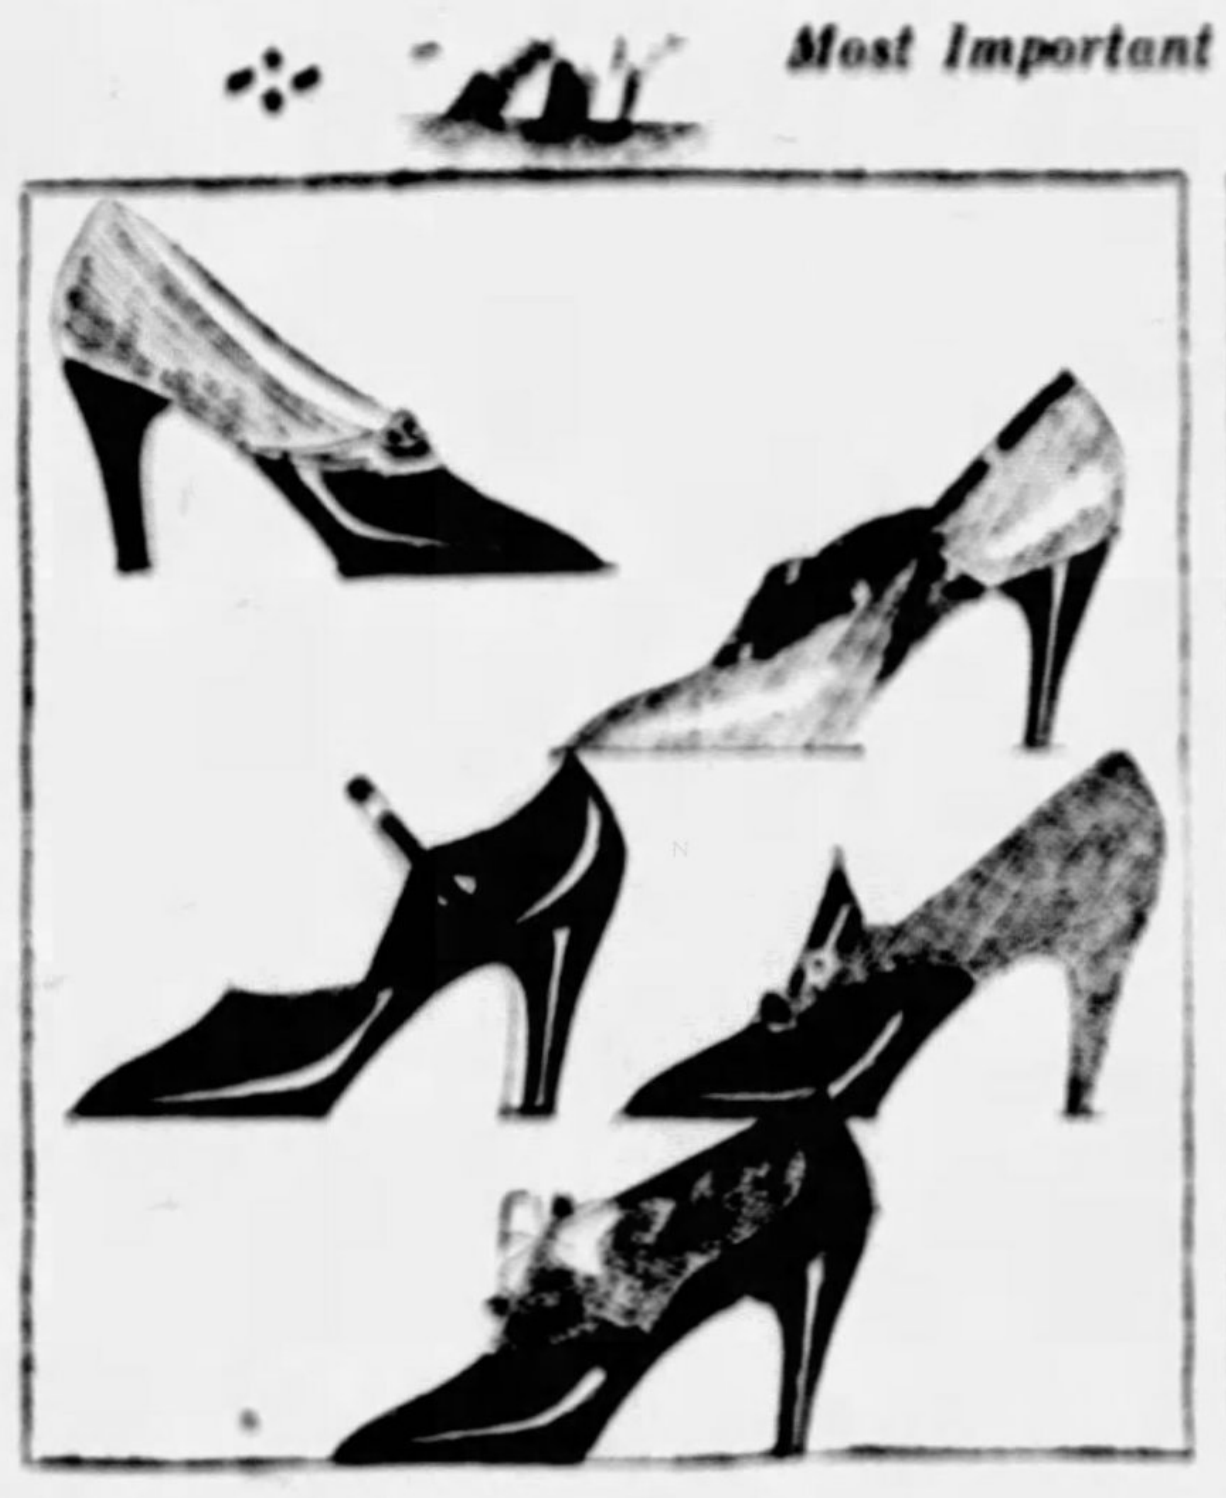
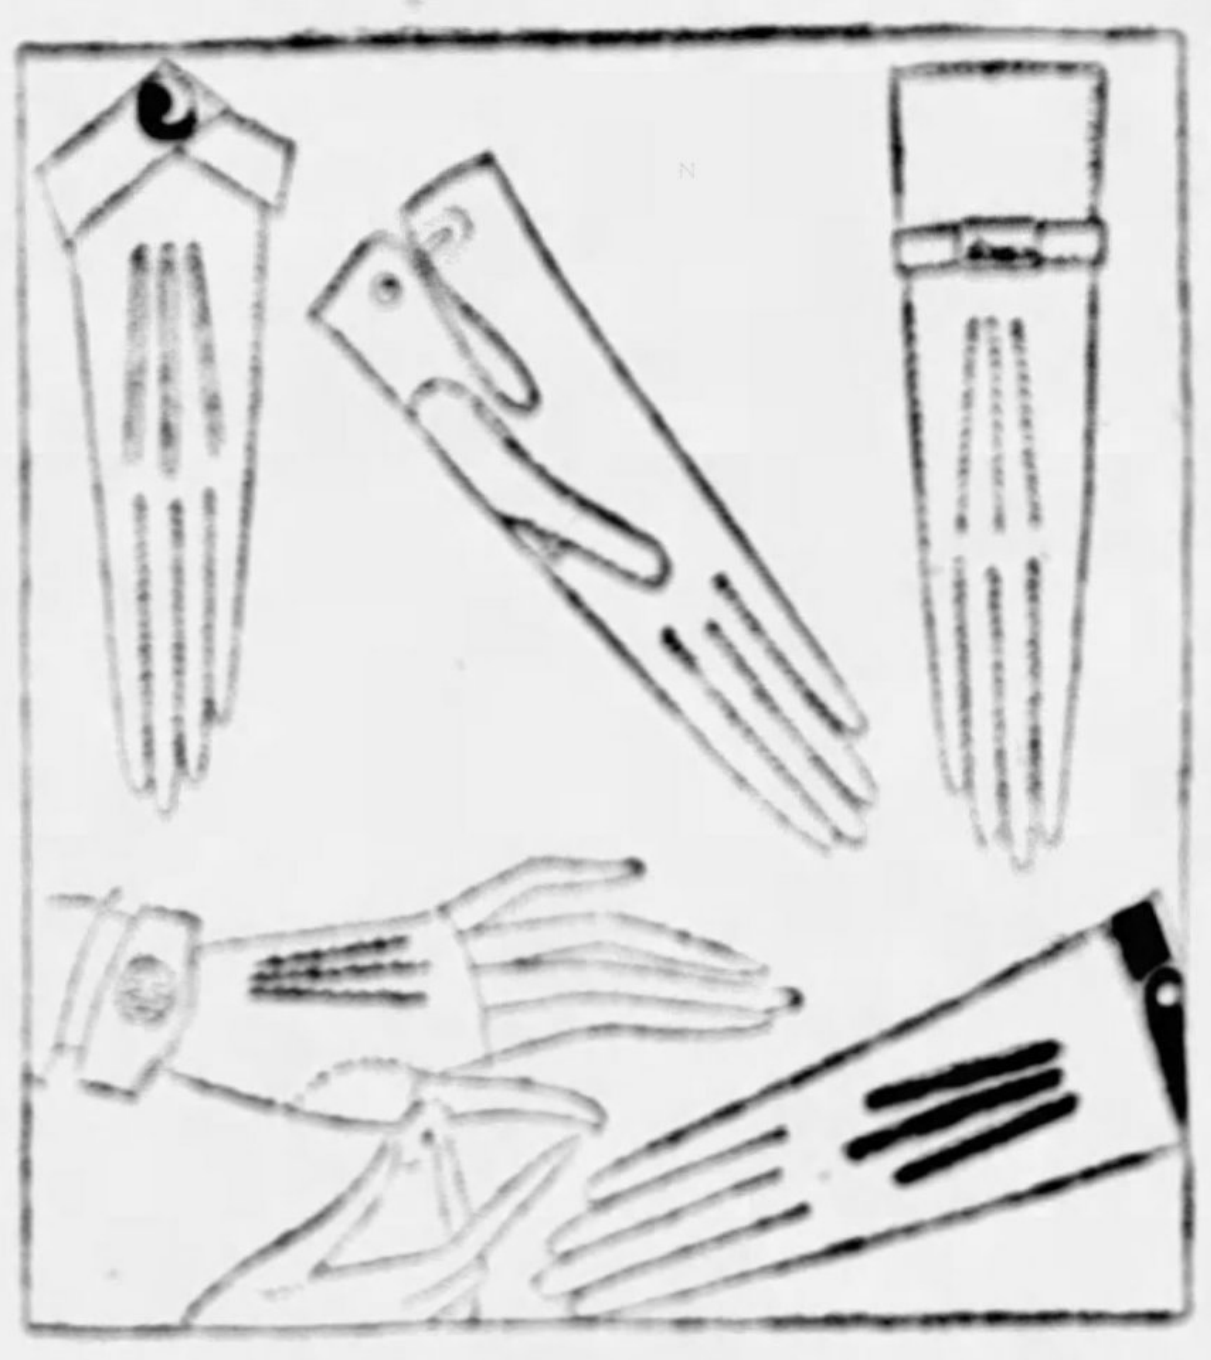
LATEST FASHIONS



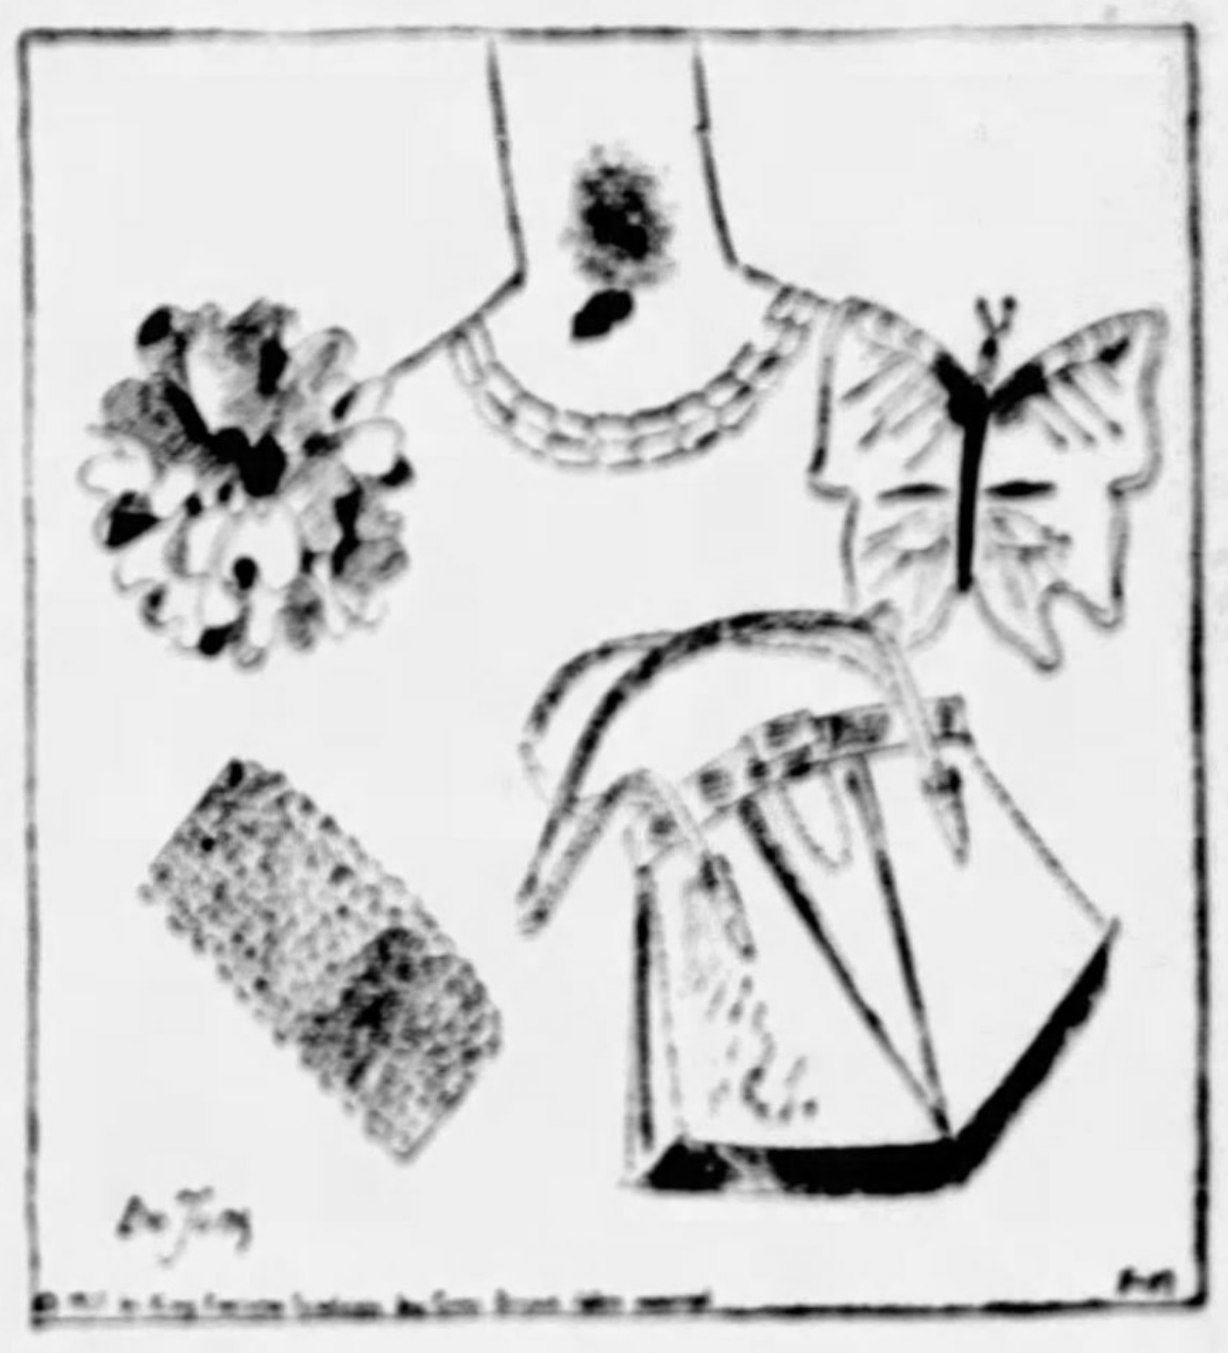
This isn't a conference, it's a campaign. It's a campaign to capture all of the new Fall fashions in one day, and the strategic move seems to be to divide forces. Aunt Em is about to find out what shoes are smart for Autumn, Dina will concentrate on gloves and Cherie will just barge around.



Aunt Em discovered that plain pumps, strap pumps and oxfords are all smart—which isn't new. The newest thing about Fall footwear is that almost every slipper is made of two leathers. The one in the upper left corner is of patent and reptile, others are lizard and suede or kid and patent leather.



Simple gloves are smartest, Dina found out. Many of them have no cuffs at all. Others have narrow cuffs (one with a powder puff in it). The chevron cuff in the upper left corner is fashionable. Hand-sewn gloves are modish for tailored wear. Washable suede or kid or glace kid are the materials.



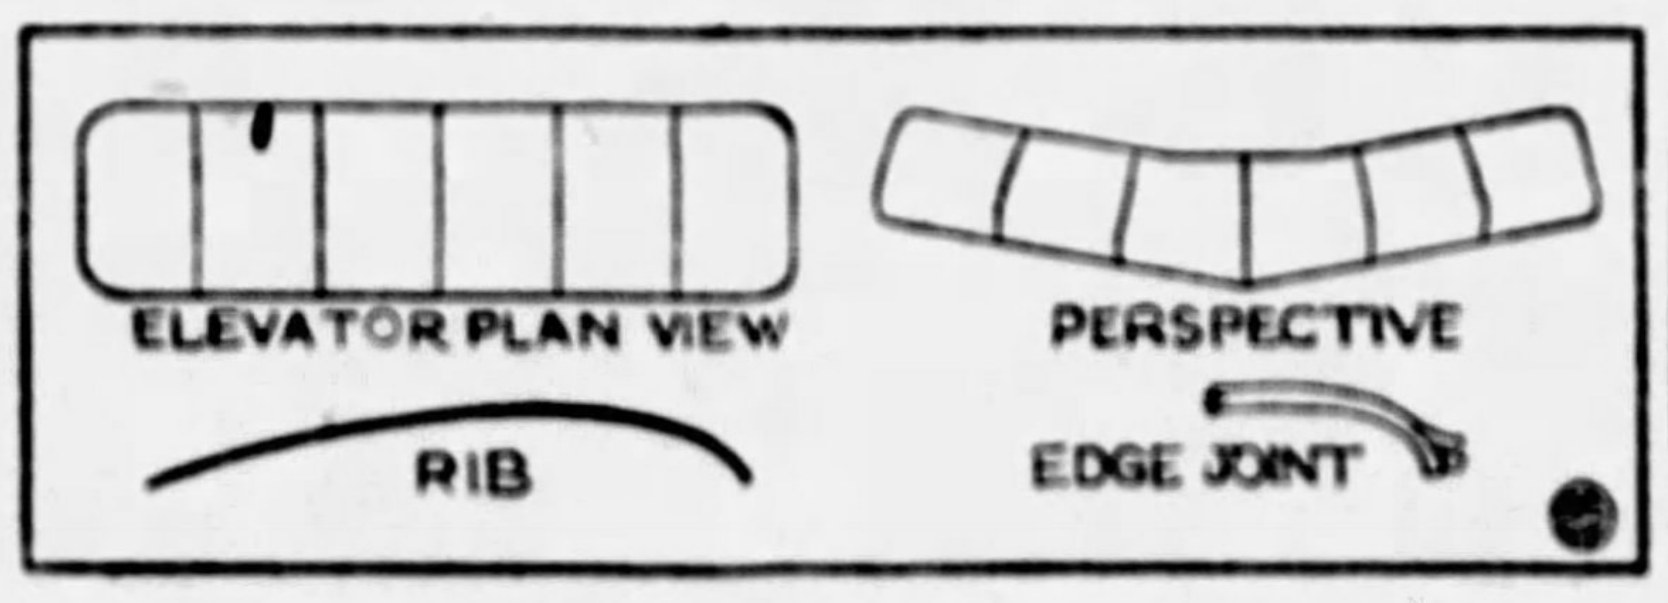
Cherie didn't hamper herself by being definite about her search for clever accessories. She's found a lot of things. The double flower in two colors is just as new and attractive as the shoulder butterfly, so she buys them both. The necklace and bracelet have flat links. The purse has an unusual shape.

Building and Flying Model Airplanes

MAKING THE ELEVATOR

By PAUL EDWARD GARBER,
In Charge of Aeronautics, Smithsonian Institution.

THE elevator frame is constructed entirely of bamboo. This wood should be split to approximate size, and then may be planned to exact dimensions. In the construction of other parts of the model we have used bamboo in short lengths, but for the elevator we will require longer pieces which will require careful handling to produce best results, therefore a few words on bamboo itself will be useful.



This useful wood has the properties of lightness and strength. It is a tropical wood, and is not generally sold at lumber yards, but the model constructor will probably be able to obtain some either from a fishing pole, a rug pole, of which your local merchant no doubt has several, from a discarded piece of furniture containing bamboo rungs, or from a porch screen, as these are usually made from bamboo slats. Of course model airplane dealers sell it. It can be split, but you must be careful in doing so as it opens up rapidly when once started and you may cut yourself.

The best wood for our purpose is split off not by holding the knife across the diameter of the wood, but rather in the manner one would use to trim the bark from a tree. In this manner wide pieces of even texture can be obtained and these bend easier than those obtained by cutting diametrically. It will be observed that bamboo has humps or nodes every foot or so. These need not interfere in the procuring of a long straight piece, as they can be trimmed flat with a finely set plane.

To make the frame, two pieces of bamboo 1-16 inch square and 19 inches long are required. One is used for each edge of the outline. The bamboo can be easily bent to the desired shapes shown in the perspective drawing by holding the part to be curved above a flame and as the part is heated it becomes pliable and can be shaped. Care must be taken not to burn the wood, and not to get the curve too much in one place, as this may make a weak spot liable to break. The rear piece is formed with a flat section for three inches in the center, from which the ends are bent upward at a slight angle and curved at the tips, forming a "U" shape 14 inches long. The front edge has no flat section but bends upward from the middle at an angle slightly greater than that in the rear edge. It is similarly rounded at the tips. These two edges are now brought together with a lap joint at the ends, with the edges 2½ inches apart. The lap joints should be about ½ inch long and excess material beyond this point should be trimmed off. The intersection of each of the ends should be slightly recessed to reduce the size of the joint. The ends are fastened with Ambroid and bound with thread.

The ribs are next made. Five are required. To form them, take a slat of bamboo ⅛ inch wide, 1-16 inch thick and 2½ inches long. By holding this above a flame until it is hot it can be bent to the shape shown in the drawing. From this the five ribs are split, thus making them identical. If necessary the ribs may be made from 1-16 inch square pieces bent separately, but the former method is recommended as being easiest and best.

The ends of the ribs are split slightly and this part forked over the edges as shown in the detail drawing. They are retained in the places indicated in the drawing by the use of Ambroid. The elevator is covered on the upper surface only with a piece of Japanese tissue paper that was left from the wing job. It is covered in a similar manner to that used for the wing, namely, one section at a time is first painted with banana oil and then covered, using a piece of paper larger than the frame which, when all sections are covered, is trimmed off about 1-16 inch from the frame and the protruding edge turned over and fastened with banana oil. As with the wing, pull the paper especially taut lengthwise to accurately preserve the wing curve. The completed elevator may now be set aside until tomorrow when we will assemble the model.

TO keep marmalade airtight beat well the white of an egg, with it brush over white paper and cover the marmalade pot with the paper while the preserve is still hot.

Old flannel of all kinds should be kept for the scrubbing and cleaning of paint. Next to flannel comes coarse soft linen, old kitchen towels, crash, etc.

Haddock served with an egg sauce, or with curry sauce, or a cream sauce poured over it and baked in casserole, is very tasty. A nice salad is made from cold left-over fish.

For the Lovelorn

By ELEANOR GALE

La Verne

DEAR MISS GALE:

My attention was attracted by two letters in your department, one signed "Give Me Life" and the other "Iconoclast." "Give Me Life" bemoans her lot of having an unattractive appearance of figure and features. Listen, dear girl, be thankful you are alive and well and that you are not a cripple, inmate or a savage on a South Sea isle. Just think, there are thousands, millions, in a worse position than you. Good looks and figure are not first when it comes to choosing friends. Lots of acquaintances of mine have neither, but these friends mean much to me. Another thing, it is you who worry more of your appearance than your friends. They accept you as you are, asking no change. So don't worry; things will adjust themselves.

"Iconoclast," I agree with you to a certain extent and I suppose you and I stand alone. A girl's idea and ambition is to get married and be on a man's hands. Of course, you can't blame them if they can negotiate it. Here's my case. I am 24, never drank or used tobacco, in fact lived and am living yet a clean, easy life. I work steady at a good-paying building trade and am the only child of well-to-do parents. I have taken out many girls since I was 16, but never was serious with any until last year I met a very charming young lady through a friend of mine. I kept company with her a little at first, but it became steadier and in a foolish moment on her front porch on a clear night in September I proposed, was accepted and at Thanksgiving clinched the deal with what every woman likes, a diamond of no mean dimensions. We agreed to marry when she became 21, which will be nine months from now. My supposed love is becoming weaker and I am becoming indifferent, though I do not let her see it. She is contented and looking forward to the day the "lamb is led to the slaughter." I must call it off as early as I can to the satisfaction of all. With some, all you would need to do is say, "Keep the ring." I fear this would not work. She is a good, decent girl, of good people, works, dresses neatly, doesn't smoke or run around. She is in fact good enough for any man, but you see it's like this. I don't want to marry anyone. Why should I be tied down? I have a nice home, clothes, a car, enough to be satisfied with. Why do I need a wife to bother my life? Iconoclast, women are not my desire. I take pleasure in my work, my machine, my favorite poems. Marriage is well for those who make it well, like father and mother. Just now I can't see it; don't want to.

Men, in justice to yourselves, be careful before you propose. Be sure you mean it.

Miss Gale, "Iconoclast," tell me the easiest way besides saying to her, "I don't love you enough to marry you." Can't I break it a little less harshly, by degrees? Awaiting your answer,

LA VERNE.

Don't blame it on the girl that you proposed to her. The best way to break this off is to do it all at once, and not hurt by neglect and unkindness. You will change your mind about marriage when you meet the right girl.

Kid Boots

DEAR MISS GALE:

Have written to you before, but have never seen my letter in the paper. I think your advice is wonderful, and have come to you to help me. There is a fellow whom I have never been out with. I was introduced to him, so when some of my friends had a party I asked him to go. He said he was busy that night. Now, Miss Gale, do you think it would be proper for me to ask him to go to another party with me? Hoping to see this in print.

KID BOOTS.

Let him make the next advance, my dear. Don't invite him to the party until he has shown some interest in you.

DAMON RUNYON SAYS

DAMON RUNYON

NEW YORK, Aug 17.—My friends, do you realize that a cockroach can swim 10 feet in 16 seconds?

That a katydid takes 27 seconds to cover the same distance.

That a rattlesnake can swim 50 feet in 43 seconds?

And that a hyena can chug over 25 feet of water in 59 seconds by the old stop watch?

You didn't, eh?

I feared as much. I feared that you are one of those strangely benighted persons who wouldn't know what to say if some egg walked up to you in the street and demanded:

"How long does it take a ring-tailed monkey to swim a Salt Lake City block?"

You would probably try to wriggle out of that one with a cryptic "I don't know," whereas if the question was propounded to me, I would have the old answer right on tap.

"A ring-tailed monkey cannot swim," I would say, like that. "But a deep sea turtle can swim 50 yards in 28 seconds, and a Java diving spider can go 25 yards in 22 seconds."

YOU see, I have been loading up with this information for the special benefit of my readers. I want them to know exactly how fast an Antarctic humpback whale can swim, which is from 40 to 42 miles per hour, daylight-saving time, in the event somebody suddenly turns to them at the banquet table and asks them.

NATURALLY, you are wondering how I became possessed of all this information, and if I wanted to make myself a big fellow with you I could say that I had been out clocking the morning workouts of the birds of the air and beasts of the forest, and the gadgets of the briny deep, for no other purpose than to pass it on to you.

But I make no such pretensions. I got the dope from one Cealo Mohawk, who calls himself "The Human Seal," and who has timed by stop watch over 2,000 critters of one kind and another. I do not know why. I do not know how. I admit to some curiosity, however, to seeing Cealo Mohawk time an African lioness doing a sprint. He tells me that the lioness can go over 40 feet in 19 seconds, and I assume that Cealo Mohawk was too busy doing the next few miles in nothing flat to clock the lioness farther than that.

In going over the info supplied me by Cealo Mohawk, I am struck by the strange diversions of the members of the human race, such as this. It interests me to know that a salt water canary bird can fly 100 to 105 miles per hour, and that a barracuda can swim at the rate of 70 to 72 miles per hour, but I can see no percentage in going around trying to find it out.

BUT it seems that Cealo Mohawk is a professional swimmer, who has achieved some almost unbelievable aquatic feats, such as swimming from the Farolione Islands in the Pacific Ocean to within seven miles of Duxbury reef, a distance of about 35 miles, and swimming the straits of Gibraltar from Portugal to Africa, and from Buenos Aires in the Argentine, to Caronal, Uruguay.

In fact, Cealo Mohawk seems to have swum all over the world in jogs of from one to 50-odd miles, and I presume that while on these journeys, Cealo Mohawk has passed the time away by clocking the leaping tuna, and the pompano, and whatnot, it being impracticable to read or play pinochle en route.

By the way, a leaping tuna hits it up at around 50 miles per hour, and a pompano loafs along at about 40. On the other hand, a horse takes 31 seconds to swim a mile, and a cow a minute and 28 seconds to cover

Boss of Bout?

JOE CHOYNSKI.

This former heavyweight championship contender, who for a number of years acted as boxing and physical instructor at the Pittsburgh Athletic Association, is one of the leading candidates for the assignment of refereeing the Dempsey-Tunney bout, according to news from Chicago, where he now makes his home and is a licensed referee.

Joe Choynski Is Mentioned

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—(U.P.)—Whenever a heavyweight boxing championship is staged the referee is considered one of the important characters.

Such is the case for the Dempsey-Tunney fight to be staged at Soldiers Field, here, September 22.

While the referee will not be named until a few minutes before the fight—according to the Illinois boxing laws—much conjecture is current on the possible third man in the ring. A number of possibilities have been brought forth.

Included among this list are Joe Choynski, old-time heavyweight fighter; Benny Yanger, who refereed the Walker-Flowers championship go; Dave Miller, Jimmy Gardner, Dave Barry, Phil Collins, Ike Bernstein, Tommy Thomas and Joe McNamara.

All of the above mentioned men have been refereeing in Chicago since boxing became legalized, and all have good records.

Yanger was severely criticized for his decision in the Walker-Flowers fight—a decision which changed the titleholder—while Collins received criticism for his decision in the Sammy Mandell-Rocky Kansas fight a year ago.

JOE COLORFUL FIGURE.

Choynski, a former Pittsburgher, is one of the colorful figures of the ring and has been consistently good as a referee. He was a contender for the heavyweight title back in the days of Corbett, Fitzsimmons and Jeffries.

Arrangements for the fight are going ahead in million-dollar style, Tex Rickard reports. Downtown ticket offices have been established, and purchase of reservations is on the increase.

Dempsey will arrive in Chicago tomorrow from the Pacific Coast, and, after establishing a home for Mrs. Dempsey in a loop hotel, will go to the Lincoln Fields race course to start conditioning himself for his fight to regain the championship. Tunney is expected to arrive in about 10 days.

TUBERS AT BELLEVUE

Tomorrow night McKeesport will be the attraction at Bellevue. For the past two weeks this club has been causing interest to soar in the County League by defeating most of the leaders, and making a steady climb toward the top for itself. While boasting some good individual stars, the team as a whole has shown remarkable improvement in this second half, as the record has shown.

Now's the Time to Cheer

By HARRY KECK, Sports Editor

THE Pirates now are a half-dozen games out of first place and seemingly going nowhere in particular. The descent has been rapid and unless there is an immediate brace their pennant prospects soon will be nil. The Cubs are keeping up their great gait and the Giants are winning at a better than championship rate. In fact, only a staggering start prevents the men of McGraw from being in first place now, for they are within striking distance and going ahead under great momentum. They have won 15 of their last 19 games and only the first-place Cubs, with their great pitching and fine team spirit, seem to stand before them. But this is no time for quitting by the Pirate fans.

To even suggest that the Corsairs already are out of the running is the height of assininity. True, the danger signals are before us and if the worst should happen many fond pennant hopes here would be crushed, but always while there is life there is hope.

On many sides there is resentful talk; the club, the manager and certain players are on the pan. At the risk of being accused of being subsidized by the local club, which is something the fans have been insinuating about the local sports writers since the Cuyler incident cropped out, permit us to ask if this isn't the time of all times for the fans to rally and root—sort of give a seventh-inning stretch and cheer for the home boys? Remember that anybody can root for a winner and give a cheer when everything is peaches and cream, but the fan worth while is the fan who can smile and not quit until the last mathematical chance has gone blooey!

THERE is great agitation among the keenest fistic minds over the one-round knockout victory scored by big George Godfrey, the Negro heavyweight, over Jim Maloney in Philadelphia, Monday night. Godfrey is seen as a new dark cloud on the horizon, a new black menace, a la Jack Johnson and Harry Wills.

Little fear need be entertained in this direction. Godfrey has been with us for quite a few years now and has been an in-and-outer. Jack Renault knocked him out in their first meeting and won on points in the second and was just shaded in a third bout. Jack Sharkey also beat Godfrey, and in other bouts big George hasn't proved so hot. He's a good heavyweight as heavyweights go, but with Tunney, Sharkey and Dempsey still on hand there is little cause for worry about another Wills situation arising. As a matter of fact, promoters are not likely to give Godfrey a chance to break into the real big money because of his color and precedent, and the opponents he is entitled to meet may be expected also to draw the "color line."

This does not smack of the best sportsmanship, but, as in the case of Wills, it will be contended that so-called mixed matches are not for the best interests of the game and Godfrey seems certain to become another boxing martyr. Of course, he can capitalize this status to a certain extent, even as Wills did, for, with the leading white heavyweights refusing to box him, it will appear that they are afraid of his ability and he thus will loom as more formidable than he really is. As an actual "menace," however, Godfrey is nothing to worry about just now.

HOMESTEAD GRAYS LOSE TO BEAVER FALLS, 3-1

BEAVER FALLS, Pa., Aug. 17.—The Beaver Falls Elks defeated the Homestead Grays here yesterday, 3 to 1. Alvin Hilty pitched great ball for the winners, holding the Grays to six scattered hits. The victory was the Elks' third of the season over the Grays.

MT. LEBANON IN SERIES

Mt. Lebanon and Whitaker will meet in a series of games this week to decide the championship of the first half of the Kaufmann Amateur League. The first game will be played at Whitaker tonight, the second at Mt. Lebanon on Friday, and the third game if necessary at the Duquesne Steel grounds.

JOE DUNDEE SUES TO RECOVER PURSE

MILWAUKEE, Aug. 17.—(A.P.)—Joe Dundee, of Baltimore, welterweight champion of the world, has filed suit in Federal Court to collect $10,000 which he says was guaranteed him for his scheduled 10-round bout with Pinky Mitchell last Thursday. The Eagles' Club, which sponsored the fight, the Wisconsin Boxing Club and the Wisconsin Boxing Commission are named in the complaint.

The Dundee-Mitchell fight was stopped by the referee in the sixth round. Both fighters refused to heed repeated warnings resulting from continued stalling, the official explained.

CITY TITLE TOURNEY FAVORITE FALLS

By VERNON A. SWARTSFAGER.

ONE upset featured the second round of the women's city golf championship on the Schenley Park municipal links today—Mrs. M. W. St. John, long a star of the public course, fell before the onslaught of Mrs. Boris Robinoff on the home green, 1 down.

Miss E. Lucille Bejach, favorite to cop the title, played the best golf of the day to put out Miss Bessie Gould, 5 and 3, in their lower bracket match.

Mrs. L. G. Riley, of the Edgewood Country Club, the medalist in the qualifying round and defending champion, found Mrs. Blair a little harder nut to crack than she anticipated, although she advanced to the penultimate round by a 6-and-4 margin.

The other championship flight match saw Mrs. Albert McBride, wife of the Schenley professional, defeat the grandmother of the municipal links, Mrs. Ker, by 6 and 4.

SINKS 40-FOOTER.

The day's highlights started with the sinking of a 40-foot approach shot from off the green on the twelfth hole by Miss Bejach, but interest in this match reverted to the terrific struggle being waged by Mrs. St. John in her effort to overtake Mrs. Robinoff, who had attained a 3-up lead at the turn.

The seventeenth hole of the St. John Robinoff match was indeed grating on the nerves of both players, and no matter how good they had been playing before they fell almost to pieces as a result of an uncalled-for delay. A decision on how to play Mrs. Robinoff's ball from the roadway held up the match for at least 10 minutes, and when they finally resumed the first thing the victor did was to strike at and miss the little white pellet altogether.

Mrs. St. John steadied a bit, but she found the strain bearing down on the eighteenth hole and she was near the crying point as she failed to get a full hit from the tee.

Tomorrow Mrs. Robinoff clashes with Mrs. Riley and it should be a close contest from the start. Mrs. Riley's experience should standd in her stead, however. Miss Bejach confronts Mrs. McBride, and, while it appears that Miss Bejach has the edge, the wife of the Schenley pro should prove no easy opponent. Miss Bejach is handicapped by a sore otto, and she is limping about the course bravely.

MRS. CAPLAN VICTOR.

In the second division Mrs. Wallerstedt defeated Mrs. Long, 3 and 2; Mrs. Caplan defeated Mrs. Kennedy, 3 and 2; Mrs. Eyer defeated Mrs. Evans, 1 up, and Miss H. Kenley defeated Mrs. Broido, 3 and 2.

The consolation division of the first flight saw Miss Borchert down Miss Kelleher, 5 and 4; Mrs. Zinsmeister topped Mrs. Curry, 5 and 3; Mrs. Ed. Lauer won over Miss Miller, 3 and 2, and Mrs. W. J. Lauer bested Miss Iris Belznick, 1 up.

Mrs. Brinkman defeated Miss Curtis, 7 and 5; Mrs. Galvin won by default over Mrs. Headlee, Miss Griffith advanced by default over Mrs. Myers, and Mrs. Harnack and Miss Hughes both defaulted in the second flight consolation.

SOUTH HILLS AT ALCOMA.

The women golfers of the South Hills Country Club were guests of the fair golfers of the Alcoma Country Club at a "golf party" at the Alcoma club yesterday afternoon. The competition was at 18 holes medal play under handicaps, but the competitive spirit was forgotten in efforts to entertain and to express appreciation for entertainment. Team scores were not kept and it was decided that prizes should be awarded to the leading scorers of each team. A delightful luncheon brought a pleasant day to a close. The scores of the leaders follow:

KIWANIANS PLAY.

The Inter-Kiwanis Club tournament of the Middle Western Division, held at the Ambridge Country Club yesterday was a complete success. Members from clubs throughout the tri-state district played; the course was loaded from early in the morning until dusk was about to settle over the fairways and greens. The evening was devoted to an elaborate entertainment program, preceded by a delicious repast.

THROUGH the SPORT LENS by HAVEY BOYLE

OLD-TIME boxing fans scoff at these heavyweight championship bouts which can last only 10 rounds. Last year Tunney won in this distance, and this year in Chicago the 10-round limit will prevail. New York is the only place in the country where 15 rounds are permitted. The old-timers, pointing to the old days, when some of the bare-knuckle fighters fought as many as 275 rounds, laugh at the modern game which has been refined to the point where from 10 to 15 rounds only are permitted.

Havey J. Boyle.

Yet the fact that the modern championships carry such a big appeal with the crowds, which flock to pay high prices, indicates that the great majority of the spectators seldom give the length of the bout much consideration.

In the career of Jack Dempsey the length of the fights has seldom entered into the calculations. True, he had to travel 15 rounds, the limit at Shelby, Mont., where boxing is no more, to defeat Tom Gibbons, and he had to travel 12 rounds before finding Bill Brennan with a knockout punch, but in his other bouts 10 rounds have been sufficient to decide unquestionably either his superiority or the superiority of his foeman.

Against Willard Dempsey accomplished his work in three rounds. Against Carpentier Dempsey came

CHAPMAN, BASS TO BOX FOR TITLE

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 17.—(AP.)—Benny Bass of Philadelphia and Red Chapman of Boston signed articles of agreement today to meet here in a 10-round bout for the featherweight championship, relinquished two years ago by Lou (Kid) Kaplan of Meriden, Conn. The bout will be held Monday night, September 12, in the municipal stadium, where Gene Tunney wrested the heavyweight title from Jack Dempsey.

The contract was signed by the boxers and their managers in the office of the Pennsylvania State Athletic Commission after the commission had approved the bout. Each of the fighters posted a forfeit of $2,500 for weight and appearance.

Herman Taylor and Robert H. Gunnis, copromoters with Tex Rickard in staging the Dempsey-Tunney bout during the Sesqui Centennial last September, will promote the featherweight title contest.

The featherweight division has been without a champion since Kaplan defaulted the title because he no longer could make the weight. Two weeks ago the New York State Athletic Commission ordered Chapman to fight Bass, the winner to be recognized by that commission as the champion.

Chapman and his manager, Charles Cardio, said they had received the best offer from Taylor and Gunnis and that they understood the New York commission had no objection to the bout being held here. The Municipal Stadium has a seating capacity of approximately 140,000 persons.

Bass and Chapman fought in New York City New Year's night, the Philadelphian getting the decision on a foul in the first round.

The Inside Story of DEMPSEY'S 'COMEBACK'

By Leo P. Flynn, Manager—Trainer of the former heavyweight Champion

(COPYRIGHT, 1927, BY UNIVERSAL SERVICE)

CHAPTER I.

TO START at the beginning, I'll have to go back 11 years.

That's when I first met Jack Dempsey. He was a boy who wanted to be a fighter, and I was a very smart manager. I was so very smart that I wouldn't be bothered with Dempsey. In my judgment, he wasn't going anywhere, and I would have laughed in your face if you had told me that some day he would become a heavyweight champion.

In those days he weighed only 167 pounds. He wasn't even a good-sized light heavyweight, and I had in my stable a great heavyweight named Bill Brennan. I would not have traded one of Brennan's fingers for the whole of Dempsey in those days.

Yes, I'm one of the army of might-have-beens. I might have been the manager of Jack Dempsey during all those glorious years when he ruled the boxing world. I feel like punching myself in the nose every time I think of it. I was too smart. I outsmarted myself.

BEFRIENDED BY BRENNAN.

Poor old Brennan—he's dead now, bless his soul—wanted me to take Dempsey. Bill took a fancy to Jack. Bill was a great fighter then and Jack was a nobody. Bill met him at Grupp's gymnasium in New York and he used Dempsey as a sparring partner. Bill would take Jack over to his boarding house and feed him after the workouts. Jack's manager was a fellow named Jack Price. Neither of them had a quarter and neither of them had any immediate prospects of getting one.

Brennan taught Dempsey many a trick. He little dreamed that the shots he was teaching Dempsey would be fired back at him a few years later.

Yet such is the way of the fight game, and the day came to pass when Brennan, the teacher, came out of a corner to meet Dempsey, the pupil. More than that, the pupil had become a champion of the world, while Brennan was still a contender.

I'll pass over the harrowing details of how Dempsey became the heavyweight champion. I know I had a weak feeling in the stomach on July 4, 1919, when he knocked out Jess Willard. I thought where I might have been that night had I taken Brennan's advice.

THEY MEET IN RING.

I did the next best thing. I persuaded Jack Kearns to match Dempsey with Brennan. The fight took place on December 14, 1920, at the old Madison Square Garden. They drew $175,000, of which Dempsey received $100,000 and a licking he'll remember all the days of his life. Brennan got knocked out just when it looked like a 100 to 1 shot that he was the new champion of the world. I might also mention that Bill got $25,000, which was also rather important in those days.

I think Dempsey will agree when I say that was the toughest fight of his championship career. He met a man who was just as game as he was, who was just as good a taker, and who was just as good a giver. Brennan won the first 11 rounds.

Then, just when I was practicing my victory smile in the corner, Dempsey hit my Bill a right hand blow under the heart. It was a corker. I finished the evening then and there. Bill was paralyzed from the waist down. His mind was as clear as a bell, but he couldn't make his legs behave. I can see him yet,

NOTES of the BOXERS

Johnny McGarvey, resigned matchmaker of the Motor Square Boxing Club, will run a special train to the Dempsey-Tunney fight at Chicago September 22, along the lines of the city's Kentucky Derby Special of the last two years. Arrangements will be made to accommodate 150 fans at a flat price, which includes the ticket for the fight. The members of the party will live aboard the train while in Chicago and will not have to put up with the discomforts of crowded hotels. McGarvey is receiving reservations by telephone at Montrose 4715.

Willie Davies of Charleroi, state flyweight champion, has turned down a match with Billy Kelly of Scranton at Wilkes-Barre next Tuesday night on account of his participation in the flyweight elimination tournament to be held at the Hollywood (Cal.) Club beginning September 2. Davies and his manager, Jim Buchanan, will leave Friday for the coast.

Tony Canzoneri and Pete Sarmiento box the main bout of a show at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, under the direction of Humbert Fugazy, tonight. Joey Glick will meet Andre Routis and Eddie Anderson will tackle Sammy Dorfman in the other feature bouts.

GREENSBURG INFIELDER SIGNED BY BUCCANEERS

GREENSBURG, Pa., Aug. 17.—Frank Packard, third baseman of the Grensburg Pennsylvania League team, has been signed by the Pittsburgh Pirates and will report on September 1, it was announced here today.

PHILS ASK SWAP BE VOIDED, LOSE

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—(UP.)—The pennant chances of the Chicago Cubs, now leading the National League by six games, received a boost today when Judge Kenesaw M. Landis, commissioner of organized baseball, ruled that the Cubs can keep Pitcher Hal Carlson, acquired in a trade with the Philadelphia National League Club.

The Phillies earlier in the season traded Carlson to the Cubs in exchange for Pitcher Tony Kauffman and Shortstop Jim Cooney. Shortly after Kauffman reported in Philadelphia it developed that he was suffering a sore arm, which made it impossible for him to pitch effectively.

The Phillies protested to Landis, claiming that the Cubs knew of Kauffman's condition before the trade was made. They asked that the trade be nullified, and Carlson returned to the Phillies.

Carlson has been pitching unusually good games since joining the league leaders, and his loss, Cub loyalists feared, might drop them out of the lead.

Landis ruled, however, that Kauffman's record while a Cub pitcher forbids the conclusion that it was made by a pitcher with a sore arm.

CUBS' PILOT PLEASED

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP.)—Joe McCarthy, manager of the Chicago Cubs, expressed satisfaction today with the decision of Commissioner Landis upholding the deal whereby the Cubs got Hal Carlson, veteran pitching star, from the Phillies, in exchange for Pitcher Tony Kaufmann and Shortstop Jimmy Cooney.

Carlson has been one of the chief factors in the Cubs' rise to the league-leading position.

"There was never any question about Kaufmann's arm being sore at the time of the trade," said McCarthy. "He finished twelfth in the pitching standings last year and was taking his regular turn in the box. Just before the deal was made he turned in a fine performance in a 16-inning game."

SCORE STOCKS RISE TO NEW PEAKS

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Speculative [illegible] the advance encountered stiff resistance in today's stock market, but they succeeded in lifting more than a score issues to new high records. Buying frequently shifted from one group to another in an effort to maintain bullish enthusiasm, with the merchandising and public utility shares giving the best demonstrations of group strength.

Easier money rates facilitated the campaign for higher prices, call loans dropping to 3½ per cent after renewing at 3¾. The nation-wide ease of credit conditions was reflected in the lowering of the rediscount rate by the Richmond Federal Reserve Bank, leaving only four of the 12 central institutions with the old 4 per cent rate.

Hudson assumed the leadership of the motor group, with the demand for that issue stimulated by talk of an increased or extra dividend at the next meeting of directors. General Motors was sluggish early in the session, and resumption of the advance in Chrysler ran into heavy profit-taking, but Packard was again boosted to a new top.

Merger rumors stimulated the rise in the merchandising issues, new peak prices again being recorded by Sears Roebuck, Montgomery Ward, May Department Stores, R. H. Macy, Abraham & Straus and Mandel Bros., the early gains running as high as 4 points.

In the public utility group, new peaks were recorded by American Water Works (new), Engineers Public Service, Mackay Companies common and preferred and Radio Corporation.

The advance in rails was checked by a disappointing freight traffic report for the first week of August, but special strength was shown by Peoria & Eastern and Western Maryland.

SUGAR MARKET.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP)—The raw sugar market was steady early today but trading was less active and spot prices remained unchanged at 4¾c for Cuban, duty paid. The only sale reported was 14,000 bags of Cuban to an operator for immediate shipment at 2.90c f. o. b. Cuba, equal to about 4.59c duty paid.

Raw sugar futures were steady, with price movements narrow. The steady spot market and reports that Europe was showing interest in Cuban raws checked any selling movement, but at the same time did not create any aggressive demand and prices at midday were about net unchanged to 1 point higher. Trading was light and mostly switching from the near to the more distant positions. In refined sugar withdrawals on old contracts continued of fair proportions, but there was no increase in new buying. Prices were unchanged at 5.70c to 5.80c for fine granulated.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—(AP)—Unfavorable weather west and southwest coupled with scattered buying gave wheat a firm undertone at the start today. The advance was short lived, however, as prices soon fell to below yesterday's finish under increased pressure. Opening unchanged to ⅛c higher, wheat soon suffered a general decline. Continued cool and wet weather gave firmness to corn, which started ¼c to ⅝c up, but later eased off under pressure. Oats sympathized with other grain and provisions ruled easy.

Weather conditions in the west and northwest were decidedly mixed today. While some traders eyed with favor the slightly warmer weather in many of the late crop sections, others were inclined to the belief that the warmth was not sufficient to prevent damage. Heavy rains and possibilities of frost within the next few days also attracted attention on both sides of the market.

Trading was not large during the early declines and any good buying or selling was quickly reflected in the action of the market. Traders were more or less inclined to be bullish and the same change in sentiment was evident at Winnipeg, with crop comment from the prairie provinces more mixed than of late.

At noon wheat was ⅝c to 1c off, corn 1⅛c to 1¼c off, oats ⅛c to ⅜c down and provisions 10c lower.

Bank Ships $5,000,000.

The Commonwealth Bank of Australia, which shortly will open a branch office in New York, has shipped $5,000,000 in gold to the New York Federal Reserve Bank. It will remain here permanently as part of the reserve of the Australian bank. Wall street sees in the transaction an indication that larger Australian financing will be done in New York instead of London. Similar reserves have been set up here in recent years by European and South American countries.

Rains Halt Harvesting.

Winnipeg dispatches to Wall street say all wheat harvesting operations on the prairies have been suspended after 48 hours of continuous rain. The situation was described as serious, the trade fearing frost if it turns cold and an increase in the rust menace if the weather continues mild.

Sheet Mills Gain.

Pittsburgh sheet steel mills continue to register gains from well diversified sources of which jobbers and automobile companies contribute the greatest volume, Daily Metal Trade says.

Shell Balance $2,306,162.

A balance of $2,306,162 before providing for 1927 income taxes is reported by Shell Union Oil Corporation and subsidiaries for the second quarter. Gross income, including a half interest in the income of Comar Oil Company, reached $10,808,002 for the quarter. For the half year there was a balance of $7,589,417 before Federal taxes. Gross income was $23,409,487.

THE PRODUCE MARKET

Demand was slow at the local wholesale produce district today with a dull, but steady market. Beans were lower. Potatoes sold unchanged. Elderberries made their appearance for the season, crates selling at 75 cents each. Apples sold higher. The range of prices on cantaloupes widened.

Poultry was in fairly active demand. Supplies were plentiful and the market closed easy at unchanged quotations.

Little change was noted among dairy products. The butter, cheese and egg market continued very firm, although prices were not advanced.

Carlot supplies were light, a total of 482 cars being on track. Arrivals included 4 cars of apples, 2 cabbage, 9 cantaloupes, 1 [illegible], 1 oranges, 3 peaches, 1 peppers, 6 potatoes, 4 watermelons, 1 [illegible], 1 eggplant and 2 green corn.

Hay was in fairly liberal receipts, 13 cars having arrived in the yards. Hay and straw were steady at unchanged prices. The grain market was strong, shelled corn advancing two cents and oats one cent per bushel.

FINANCIAL NEWS AND VIEWS

Easy Money Checks Decline.

Lowering of the call money rate from 3¾ to 3½ per cent checked a sudden downturn in stocks around mid-day. Early buoyancy had carried the list up from one to two points on the average, but these higher levels had coaxed out profit-taking, especially in the more volatile issues. Without warning the list started downward and there was some quick dumping of a half dozen or so stocks. Houston Oil was one, Railway Signal another. However, the call money incident stopped the selling before it gained much headway and a strong tone became evident as pool managers supported their particular issues and traders refused to give up the long position on the incipient reaction.

Getting Ready for Pecos.

President Farish, of Humble Oil and Refining, Standard of New Jersey subsidiary, has called a meeting of oil producers in Pecos County, Texas, with a view to arranging curtailment program. Pecos is in the West Texas area, regarded by oil men as the largest potential oil producing territory in the country. The meeting will be held tomorrow. It is probable the important companies will make every effort to prevent another such development as took place at Seminole, Oklahoma, this year, when indiscriminate drilling poured a flood of oil on the market and put the industry to the most severe test it has undergone for many years. West Texas has been pretty thoroughly surveyed and it is understood the greater portion of the desirable acreage is in the hands of larger companies whose officials are thought to be favorable to conservative development of the district.

PRICES STEADY ON LOCAL STOCK EXCHANGE

Standard Firm in Quiet Trading

There was very little activity in the early trading on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange today, although prices held steady and offerings at prevailing quotations were in light volume. Standard Sanitary displayed a firm tone around 90, the price to which it declined in a small selling movement yesterday. A few trades were made at that figure, but there was no sign of pressure to get rid of the stock. Traders are watching Standard closely in the current markets and are curious to know whether the stock will be able to maintain a price level at 90 or above. Based on money market conditions, the issue seems to be entitled to its present price, which yields well over 5 per cent at the regular dividend rate.

Fuel stocks were late in getting started and such bids as were in the market early were only slightly changed from the closing quotations of last night. Conditions in the oil industry seem to be brightening up a little, but as the local oil and gas group held its ground pretty well during the several months of depression, it is not thought likely that a change for the better in the production end of the industry will have more than a nominal effect on prices of the local stocks. An odd lot of Waverly brought 41½ today, a gain of ½ over its last previous price.

The turnover in Arkansas Gas was considerably smaller than the average for recent sessions and there was also a noticeable shrinkage in the volume of Lone Star Gas changing hands. Latter stock held to a very narrow range as did Arkansas.

Announcement that Hornblower & Weeks will market the $3,000,000 bond issue of the National Fireproofing Company was made during the day. The stock made no response to the news. Recent sales of the preferred have been made at 26, while the common's last quoted price was 10 a share.

Sales of three small lots of Pittsburgh Trust Company were the only transactions in the bank section. Price was unchanged at 245. A block of 20 shares American Window Glass preferred was handled at 105½, up 1½ points from its sale price a few days ago. Pittsburgh Plate was unchanged at 220.

THE NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP.)—Bond prices continued in their steady upward trend today, numerous high grade mortgages making further fractional gains, and a long list hovering close to the year's record levels. Easy money was still the important sustaining factor, yet certain signs of a picking up in demand, even at peak prices, were in evidence.

The day's leaders included such recent railroad favorites as Chesapeake Corporation 5s, Canadian National Railway 4½s, Rock Island 4s and Union Pacific 4½s. Profit-taking set in against Hudson and Manhattan income 5s, but the price held up well on brisk support.

A resumption of the upward movement of Julius Kayser 5½s featured the industrial group, while Hudson Coal 5s again sank under realizing.

French obligations were steady, and a few South American bonds moved up fractionally.

United States government obligations were quiet.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows (000 omitted in sales column) (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP.)—Special interest on the Curb Exchange today was again concentrated in General Motors, new stock which ranged from 113⅝ to 111¼, but the dealings were not on the same large scale as in Tuesday's trading. New York Central new stock came into prominence, advancing 1⅛ to the high record of 155, and is now ruling close to the price of the present shares, although the rights are quoted above 5.

Oil stocks maintained a firm to strong tone, the chief force in the trading in that group being the further steps to restrict production in order to stabilize the industry. An agreement was reported as having been made between the producers in the new Pecos field in Texas.

Public Utilities also held strong, Mohawk and Hudson and United Gas Improvement were strong features in that group, but some of the issues that have made material gains recently, reflected profit taking sales after midday.

Chain Stores again were prominent. Grant Company advanced 9 points to the new high of 104, and Gobel which rose about 4 points also entered new high ground. Industrial Rayon continued unusually active, moving up to a new high for the year at 16¼. Westinghouse Airbrake was strong, advancing over a point. Some large blocks of Servel changed hands at 1¼ to 1.

Newmont in the mining group rose 6 points to the new peak of 95 and then reacted to 93. Motor stocks were active, led by Auburn, which rose over 3 points to 116. Freshman Radio was in increased demand advancing nearly 2 points to 18.

STEEL INDUSTRY CONDITIONS UNCHANGED

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—The Iron Age tomorrow will say: "Conditions in the steel trade are substantially the same as last week. Demand remains steady in most lines and the total volume of specifying has kept August operations so far slightly above those of July.

"With buyers concerned chiefly about supplies for their definite immediate needs prices are not under special attack and the present state of low consumption with only seasonal prospects for an increase in sight serves to strengthen the price stand of producers on the score that concessions would be of little avail.

"Heavy tonnage orders are infrequent and it is the general run of small purchases from manufacturing consumers that is the main dependence of the mills. Short-time shutdowns are still common to accumulate the quantities that make for economical production. Prompt delivery is possible in practically all lines."

STEEL RATE CUT TO EAST LOOMS

Approval of the recommendations of J. J. Williams, examiner of the Interstate Commerce Commission, will give Philadelphia reduced rates on steel products shipped from the Pittsburgh area and, it is believed, will increase the patronage of the eastern city. The proposed reduced rates would effect Pittsburgh, Beaver Falls, Sharon, Ashtabula, Youngstown, Cleveland and Middletown. The cut in the rate from Pittsburgh would be three cents on each 100 pounds.

CHILLY SAUCE

By CHILLY DOYLE

Staff Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—For many years this column has objected to the home-run hippodrome which baseball has carried. And now comes Clark Griffith, president of the Senators and a member of the rules committee, who is out for a rule that would make the minimum home run travel 320 feet.

GRIFFITH says the present crop of homers constitute a joke that is carried too far. As he is a member of the rules committee he will be in a position to act with some authority in the matter.

GRIFFITH appears to be agitated by the conditions in the Yankee Stadium. The playing field near the foul lines at the home of the Yankees is almost the same as at the Polo Grounds, which means that a pop fly, if it follows the line or within 30 feet thereof, is often a homer.

APPARENTLY Griffith believes that the big advantage held by the Yankees is due to the fluke homers. In left-field at the Yankee Stadium an ordinary line single can bounce over the shallow rail into the stands for a homer.

WHEN you hit the magnate in the pocketbook you reach a vulnerable spot and the wild rush of the Yanks has hit every American League owner such a wallop. It is a bit too much to ask the average magnate to make a move in the interest of the game before he gets socked in the bank roll, yet the present situation in the American League may be the means of making a case against the joke homers that should have been instituted years ago.

GRIFFITH favors the zoning plan, which means he would be in favor of calling these grandstand homers as hits of less value.

UNDER the plan of the Washington magnate, the home run output would be cut in two, to say the least. It would have little effect on Forbes Field. The foul line distance of the right section plot in Oakland is 300 feet, but the diagonal dip of the stands provide Griffith's suggested difference just a short distance from the line. The New York and Philadelphia parks would be heavily affected in the National League if the plan is adopted.

AS a result of the 6-4 setback they suffered at the hands of the Giants yesterday the Pirates today find themselves trailing the league-leading Cubs by six full games. It is obvious that they must soon show a reversal of form or accept a permanent position with the "also rans."

IT is the opinion of Manager Bush and many other Pirate supporters that a first-inning decision by Umpire Ernie Quigley cost the Corsairs yesterday's fight. With Lloyd Waner on first and one out, Brother Paul singled to center. Ernie ruled that Roush's throw beat Sprout to third. Manager Bush, five feet from the play, ruled otherwise, but Ernie's decision was accepted as official with the following results:

A promising Pirate rally was killed, Bush was banished from the field, and defeat was the Bucs' bitter dose.

HORNSBY'S three-run homer in the seventh was another bitter dose which played no small part in the battle. It, incidentally, was a play on which no decision was needed.

RUNYON

100 yards. And what do you think of a giraffe going 50 feet in 34 seconds if it can find water deep enough for it to swim?

CEALO MOHAWK is out at Santa Barbara on this Pacific Coast at this writing. It seems that he uses trained seals as pacemakers in all his swims, a seal being a reasonably fast swimmer. The hair seal can do a mile in four minutes and 41 seconds, the fur seal is slower with five minutes and 17 seconds for the same distance.

IT seems to me that my old friend Mr. C. C. Pyle ought to be able to do something with this swimming racket on the lines of the information furnished me by Cealo Mohawk.

Mr C. C. Pyle is just now engaged in arranging a transcontinental foot race, but Cealo Mohawk's statement that a centipede can swim five feet in a minute and 45 seconds, suggests to my mind a far more interesting experiment for Mr. Pyle.

Suppose he arranged a centipede swimming race, with centipedes from every state in the union taking part. I think I could arrange for a number of entrants from my old home state of Colorado. The centipedes there are exceptionally fast, though they could never catch me.

OR a swimming race between thrasher sharks might be a knockout. Cealo Mohawk assures me that thrasher sharks can travel at the rate of 44 miles per hour. A thrasher shark, as I gather, is no relation to a golf shark, like Mr. Leo Pizen Flynn.

I am disappointed in not finding in Cealo Mohawk's statistics any figures on the diving speed of the flesh, fish and fowl that he quotes. I was wondering how it might compare with the diving time of the divers and tankers of the manly art of scrambling ears. Some of them are very fast and you must remember that they are unpaced, too. They have no trained seals to show them the way.

Root Wins 22nd Game

(By the Associated Press.)

ALTHOUGH the Giants routed the Pittsburgh Pirates in the first game of their series at the Polo Grounds, the Chicago Cubs profited by the result and today had a lead of six full games in first place in the National League race.

Charlie Root's wrinkle ball baffled the Brooklyn Dodgers and the Cubs left Ebbets Field with a 3-0 decision. Joe McCarthy's club played heads-up baseball and took advantage of every opportunity. It was Root's twenty-second victory of the season and put him still further ahead of all other pitchers in both major circuits. The Cubs now have won 11 out of 16 games played with Brooklyn. It was Chicago's fourth straight victory, the fifth defeat in a row for the Robins and the eleventh time they have been whitewashed this year.

HORNSBY FACTOR.

Rogers' Hornsby's twentieth home run of the season, inserted with two men on bases in the seventh, enabled the Giants to come from behind and drub the Pirates, 6-4. McGraw's minions out-slugged the slugging Buccaneers and thereby offset the brilliant work afield and at bat of the Waner brothers. The Giants did gain a full game on the Pirates but the St. Louis Cardinals were trimming the Boston Braves and thus moved to within one game of second place. It was the Giants' fifteenth victory out of their last 19 games, and the team now is only two games out of second place.

The St. Louis victory over the Braves came in the eleventh inning. Frankie Frisch's all-around play stood out in the play of the world's champions. Grover Alexander was nicked for 16 safe hits but tightened up in the pinches for a 5-3 decision.

Philadelphia opened its series with the Cincinnati Reds with a 5-3 victory, Lester Sweetland outpitching three Cincinnati hurlers. Fresco Thompson, Phillies' second baseman, stole three bases.

YANKS BEAT CHISOX.

The last invasion of the West by the Yankees got under way at Chicago and the American League leaders ambled in winners by an 8-1 count. Babe Ruth hit his thirty-seventh home run into the upper deck of the grandstand in right field, one of the longest hits of the Bambino's career. Lou Gehrig, who now leads Ruth by only one home run, struck out immediately after Ruth had delivered his mighty smash. Ray Flaskamper, a rookie from the Texas League, played shortstop for the White Sox.

Washington and the St. Louis Browns were rained out.

RUTH'S THIRTY-SEVENTH HOMER HIS LONGEST DRIVE

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Aug. 17.—Lou Gehrig may be hitting more runs than Babe Ruth—but when longer ones are made—Babe will make them.

That was proved yesterday afternoon when Ruth hit his thirty-seven of the season, a drive which critics acclaimed as the longest which ever has left the bat of the Babe.

The ball carried above the roof of the right field pavilion of the recently enlarged Comiskey Park. The bleacher wall is 360 feet from home plate and the pavilion wall is 80 feet high. Figure it out!

LUDWINA MACIOS ENTERS POLICE PENSION MEET

Ludwina Macios, of 3212 Central avenue, North Side, has sent in her entry for the Pittsburgh police pension fund committee's annual track and field meet to be held at the University of Pittsburgh stadium on Saturday afternoon, August 27.

Miss Macios is the classy little Oliver High School student, who created a sensation at the Philadelphia Company games last Saturday when she won both the 50-yard and the century dashes, doing the 50 in 6 1-5 seconds, and the 100 in 11 2-5.

UPLAND, COLLIER TEAMS TO BE MERGED TONIGHT

SPORT LENS

through in the fourth round with the punch that did the work. Only two rounds were needed for Dempsey to polish off Firpo. In the Tunney bout Dempsey lost in 10 rounds. He beat Sharkey in the seventh. Additional rounds could not have made Tunney's victory much more decisive. It was the opinion of ringsiders who noted Dempsey gradually going blind, that he could not have lasted much more than two rounds.

LONG distance bouts of the past simply changed the style of campaign. Realizing they faced a long siege, the heavyweights took things moderately easy for many of the earlier rounds. In the modern day the heavyweights lost little time in attacking the task in front of them, and there is a chance that just as much fighting in 10 rounds of present championships is to be seen as in the longer sessions of the long ago.

The longer sessions were bloodier, perhaps, and smacked of the brutality that so many of us like, no matter how we try to hide such base passion, but it is doubtful whether boxing would have reached its present estate if the scenes of old and longer battles were flashed on the present day scene.

The crowds that now attend heavyweight championship bouts compare favorably with the crowds that attend the opera, the latest O'Neill drama, or even the crowds which reach into the higher altitudes of what might be called the esthetic sports, tennis and polo.

OUR best people are just as anxious to see Tunney and Dempsey in Chicago as we are who have not been born to the purple. It is not uncommon for some of us connected with the racket, as boxing is called, to get a call from a millionaire who is quite anxious to get as close to the resin of the ring as possible.

This condition would not prevail if boxing still was called "brutish" and was marked by exhibitions of inhuman punishment. Mr. Bernard Shaw lately pointed out what small damage was inflicted in the ring. (He will probably be horrified to learn that most of his readers agree with him. One thing Bernard seeks is to be in perpetual disagreement with his readers.)

TWENTY-SIX rounds is the longest that a heavyweight championship fight ever went since the Marquis of Queensberry laid down his rules for the sport. It took that long for Corbett to stop Sullivan. That was in 1892. Since then the bouts have run like this:

Corbett stopped Charlie Mitchell in three rounds. Fitzsimmons defeated Corbett in 14 rounds. Jeffries defeated Fitzsimmons in 11 rounds. Jeffries defeated Tom Sharkey in 25 rounds. Jeffries knocked out Fitzsimmons in eight rounds. Jeffries knocked out Corbett in 10 rounds. Jeffries knocked out Jack Munroe in two rounds. Johnson knocked out Jeffries in 15 rounds. Willard knocked out Johnson in 26 rounds.

You see, since 1892, and few of the old boys can go back much further than that, there have been only a few bouts that could not have been settled under present-day conditions. Sullivan won the title from Paddy Ryan in just nine rounds.

THOSE fights which went 75 rounds and 100 rounds must not be compared with present-day standards. A round consisted of a knockdown, and quite often, historians of the ring point out, a man conveniently took a knockdown simply to terminate a round, although possibly not more than a minute of fighting had gone on before he went down for a rest. In this day a man goes three minutes, if he can, and if he wants a rest before three minutes have elapsed he cannot seek the shelter of the canvas to rest on one knee, without running the risk of being counted out in 10 fleeting seconds.

A CRITIC would find it difficult to disparage the old in favor of the new in boxing, since the past, embracing many more years than the modern era, contained many more good boxers than are on the scene now, but the myth that the boys of old all were super-men and that our present cast on the fistic stage is sheer imitation may be successfully disputed. Dempsey would have held his own in the company of the past, and in the light of Corbett's success, Tunney, too, might have outwitted some of the cavemen of old.

THE 10-round limit was sufficient to indicate Dempsey's decline and Tunney's rise last year, and consequently it seems to be a fair assumption that the same limit in Chicago will again suffice. This is especially true when one of the characters in the drama is a man named Dempsey. He is not one to dally. He loses no time in getting to work. It is even possible that under the old tradition of longer fights Dempsey might have set a style for shorter bouts.

SULLIVAN, of course, never will be surpassed. Tradition and the gathering romance about his bones enrich his memory. Further, those who sing his praises view the present with older and possibly more penetrating eyes. Given the same outlook in their youth they might have detected some clay in the make-up of their idol. But now they associate Sullivan with their youth, when somehow, the whole world seemed more sprightly. We youngsters will do the same about Dempsey. We will, in years to come, become churlish over the newest sensation, harking back to the days of the great Dempsey. It will not be Dempsey so much as the fact that Dempsey thrived when our world was young and gay, not old and withered, as later we shall come to look upon it with half-sour eye in our toothless dotage.

How to Purchase Fight Tickets at Railroad Agencies

In answer to numerous requests for information regarding the routine by which tickets for the Dempsey-Tunney fight at Chicago, September 22, might be obtained through railroad ticket offices, in accordance with an announced plan, officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad today said notices would be sent to their various agencies notifying them of the arrangement.

Applications will be handled at only the leading agencies, and the fans must make their requests at these central points. In Pittsburgh this is taken to mean Union Station, the East Liberty station, the central ticket office in the Union Trust Company building and the office of the division passenger agent, 544 Oliver building.

The application must accompany the railroad ticket reservation and cash or certified check must be posted with the order. The order will be wired to Chicago and the fight tickets will be mailed to the agencies requesting them, where they will be picked up by the purchasers. The tickets will come out of the railroad's allotment.

Other railroads also will handle the ticket sale along the same lines.

HENRY BECKER CROWNED NEBRASKA STATE CHAMP

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 17.—(AP.)—Henry Becker, Kansas City, Mo., pro, is Nebraska state open champion by virtue of a birdie he shot on the last hole of his 36-round yesterday. His 140 was a stroke better than the score of John Rogers, of Denver.

Harry Cooper, of Los Angeles, runner-up in the national open, finished third with 143.

He was selected from 175 candidates for the honor.

The largest number of entries in national amateur history since the United States Golf Association set restrictions will tee off in the qualifying round Monday.

Bobby Jones is on the scene and his arrival in Minneapolis Tuesday was the signal for extensive interest in the event.

trying to pull himself up by the ropes. A game guy, that Brennan. He was still struggling to arise when they counted 10.

The reporters asked him afterward if he had been hit low.

"You bet I was," he answered. "Right under the chest."

JACK'S HARDEST FIGHT.

Bill Brennan was a sportsman. He had been knocked out fairly and he said so. He wasn't like another fighter I might name. Bill Brennan was not the kind to hurt the whole boxing game to save his own face.

Now that it's all over, I can say that Dempsey used the wrong tactics against Brennan. He was under orders to punch Brennan to the head. Finally, realizing his title was slipping away, he took the bit in his own teeth. He went out in the eleventh round determined to lower his sights. He knew instinctively that his best chance was to hammer at Brennan's body. He fought his own fight in the eleventh and twelfth rounds and the result proved he was right.

It took 37 stiches to patch up Dempsey after that fight. His right ear was almost knocked off and one eye was a sight.

The next time I hooked up with Jack Dempsey I was in his corner instead of the other fellow's. That was on June 23 of this year, the day he came to New York to prepare for his "come back" against Jack Sharkey.

(Watch for the next installment of Flynn's story in Thursday's paper.)

DEVORMER FACES JUDGE FOR TRYING TO AID LADS

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—Zeal for the promotion of the great American national pastime landed Al Devormer, catcher of the New York Giants, in court yesterday, and made him late at the Polo Grounds for the game with Pittsburgh.

Devormer, seeing a policeman stopping a game of "One 'Ol Cat" being played by some youngsters in a lot near his home, protested. Devormer was promptly taken to court by the policeman. The judge agreed that the officer had been right in stopping the game, but suspended sentence when he learned who Devormer was.

I just didn't know

I REMEMBER now how my friends used to tell me about Prince Albert; how they would make what sounded like the most extravagant claims for it; and how I would say "Uh-huh," and proceed to fill my pipe from the same old package. I just didn't know!

But I found out. One day, the store where I buy my tobacco didn't have my old brand. I heard another customer standing beside me say "Prince Albert" to the man behind the counter. All that I had heard about Prince Albert came back to me in a flash.

I bought a tin. "Took a chance," as I thought. As I opened it, I was met by the most inviting fragrance I had ever known. I thought of the woods after a gentle rain. It made my mouth water for a taste of such tobacco in my pipe. I tamped-in a load and lighted up.

What a taste!, Cool and sweet and mild, with just enough body to make every puff a smoke-experience. I tried another load—and another. I was "sold." P.A. was my brand from then on. My only regret is that I didn't make the discovery sooner. Good old P.A.!

P.A. is sold everywhere in tidy red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

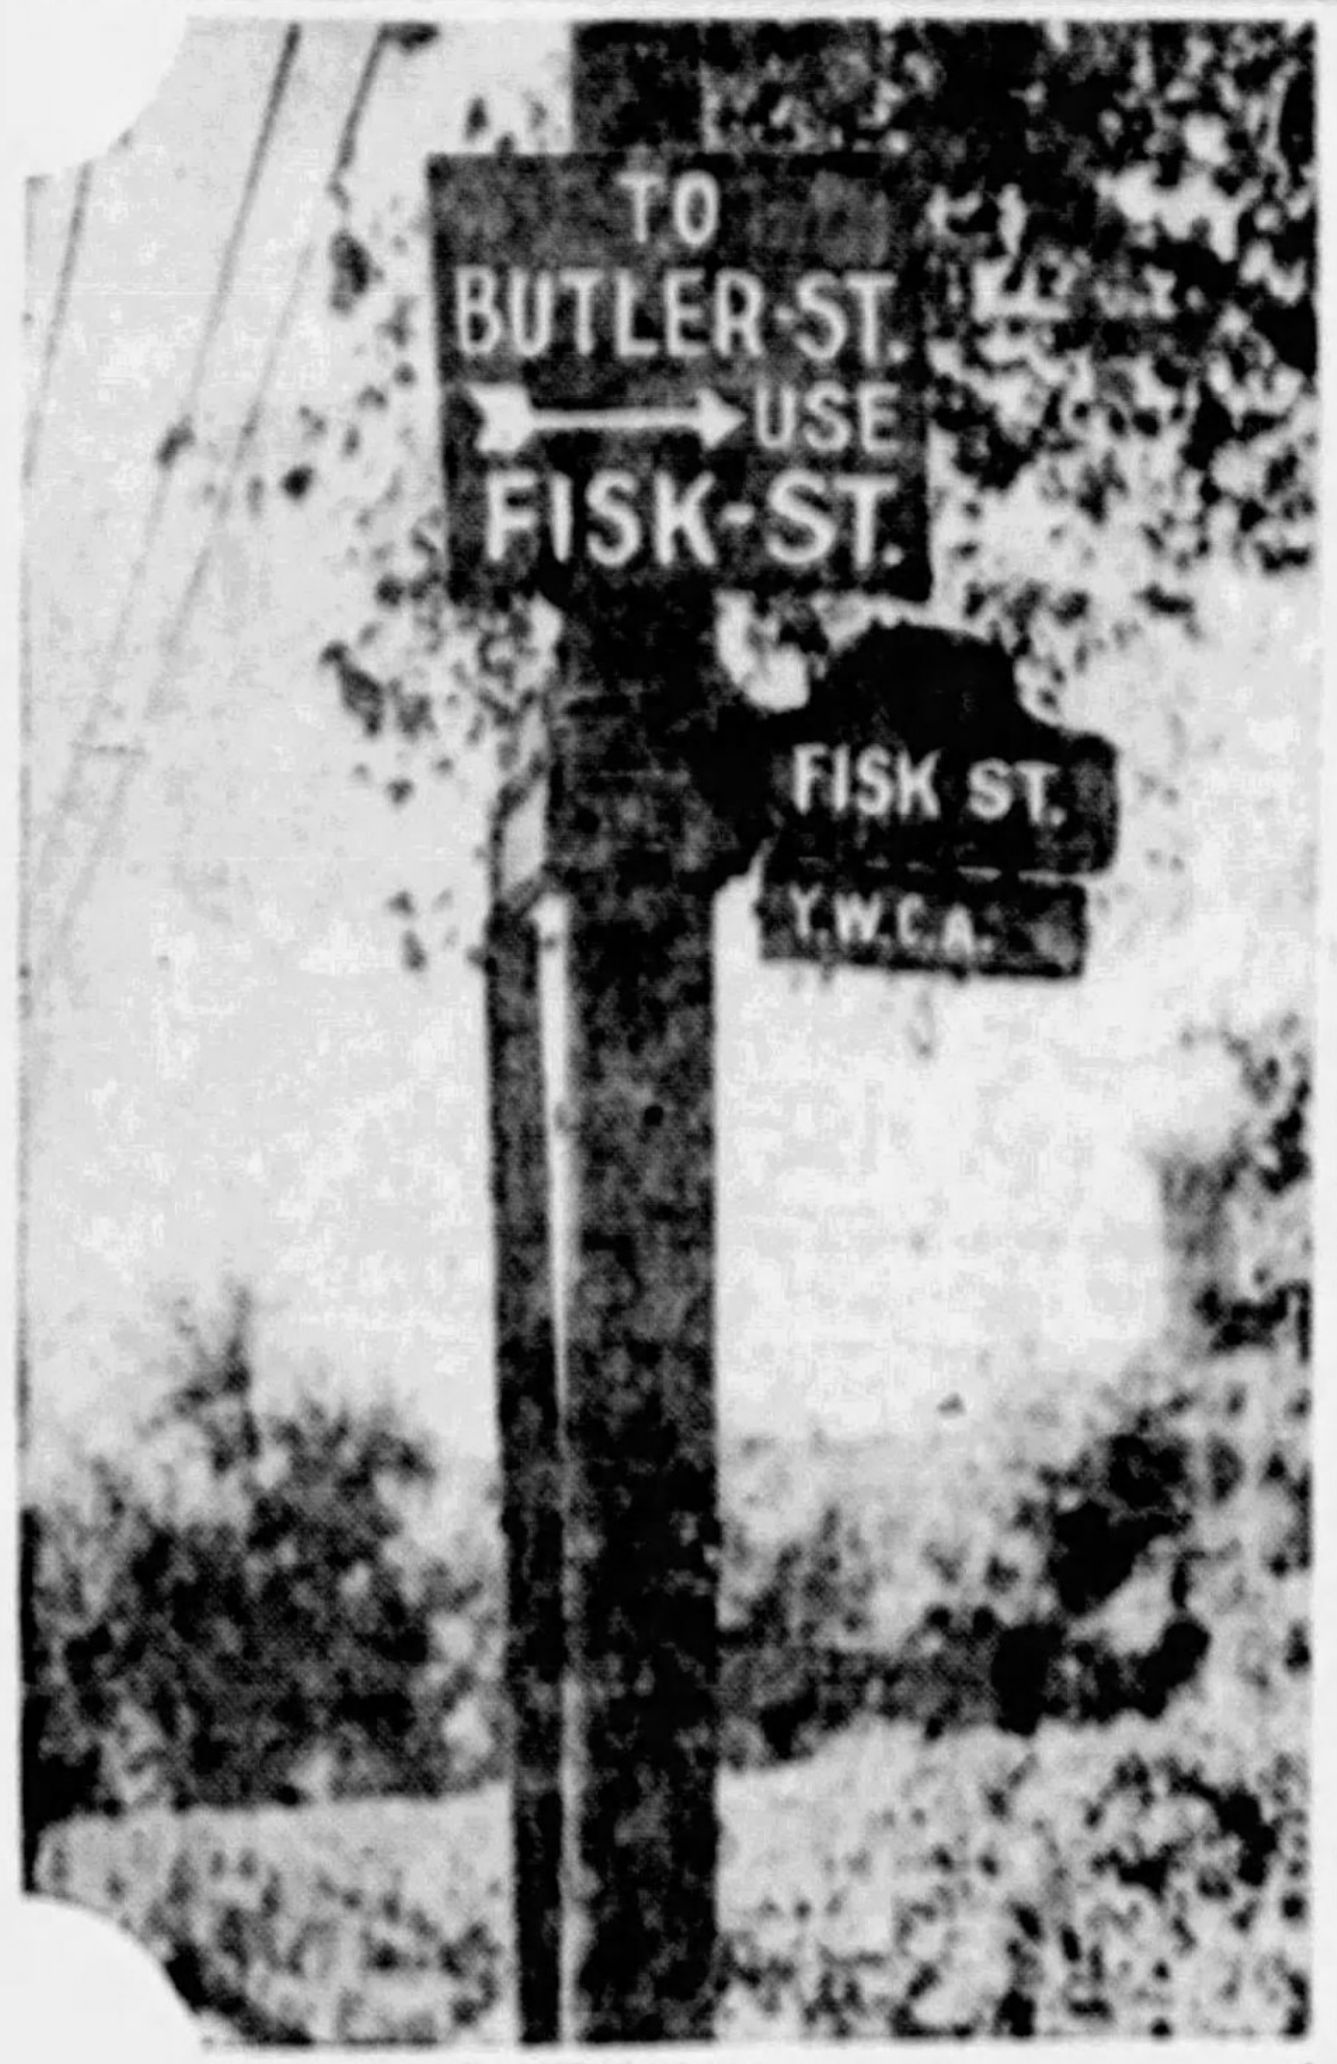
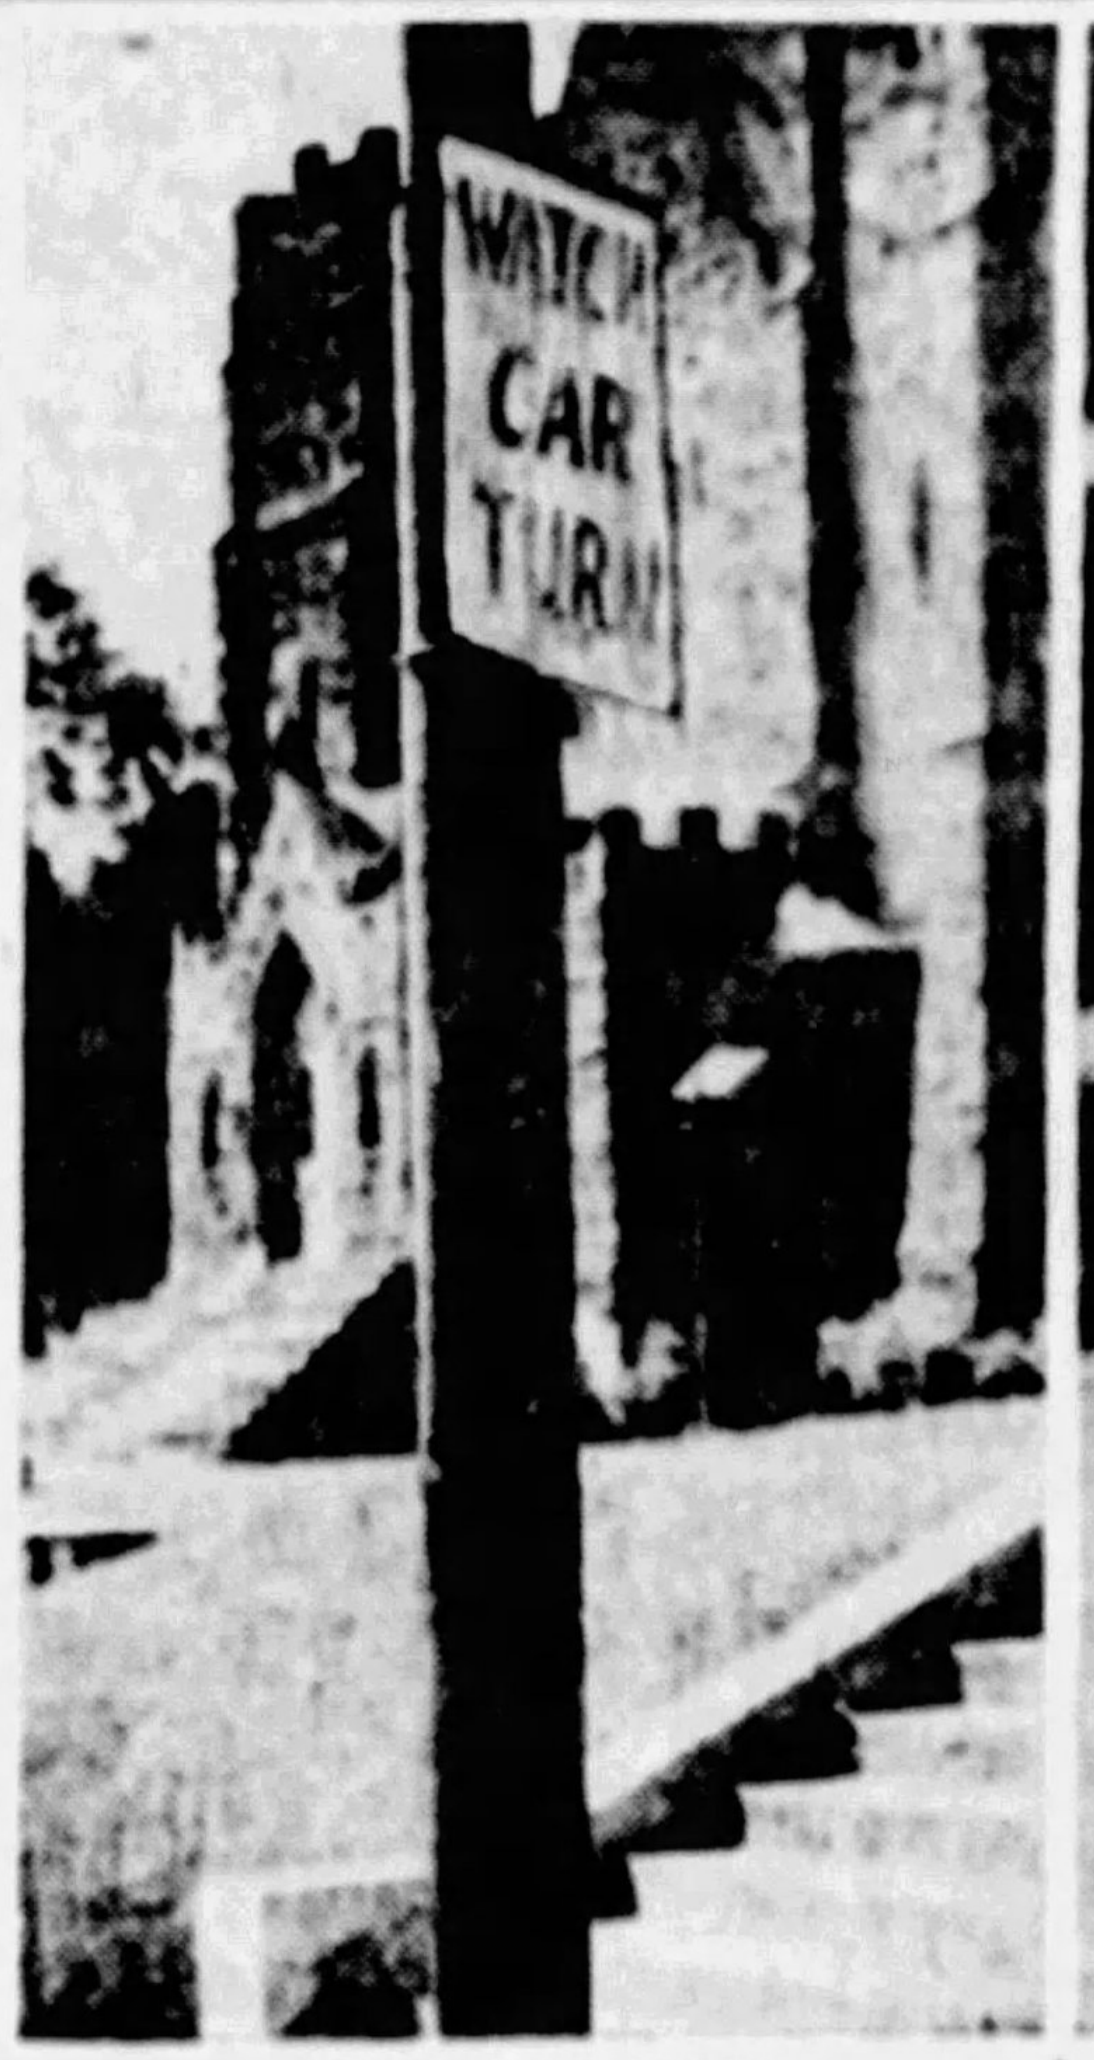
AUTOMOBILISTS -:- DON'T BELIEVE IN SIGNS -:- IN PITTSBURGH



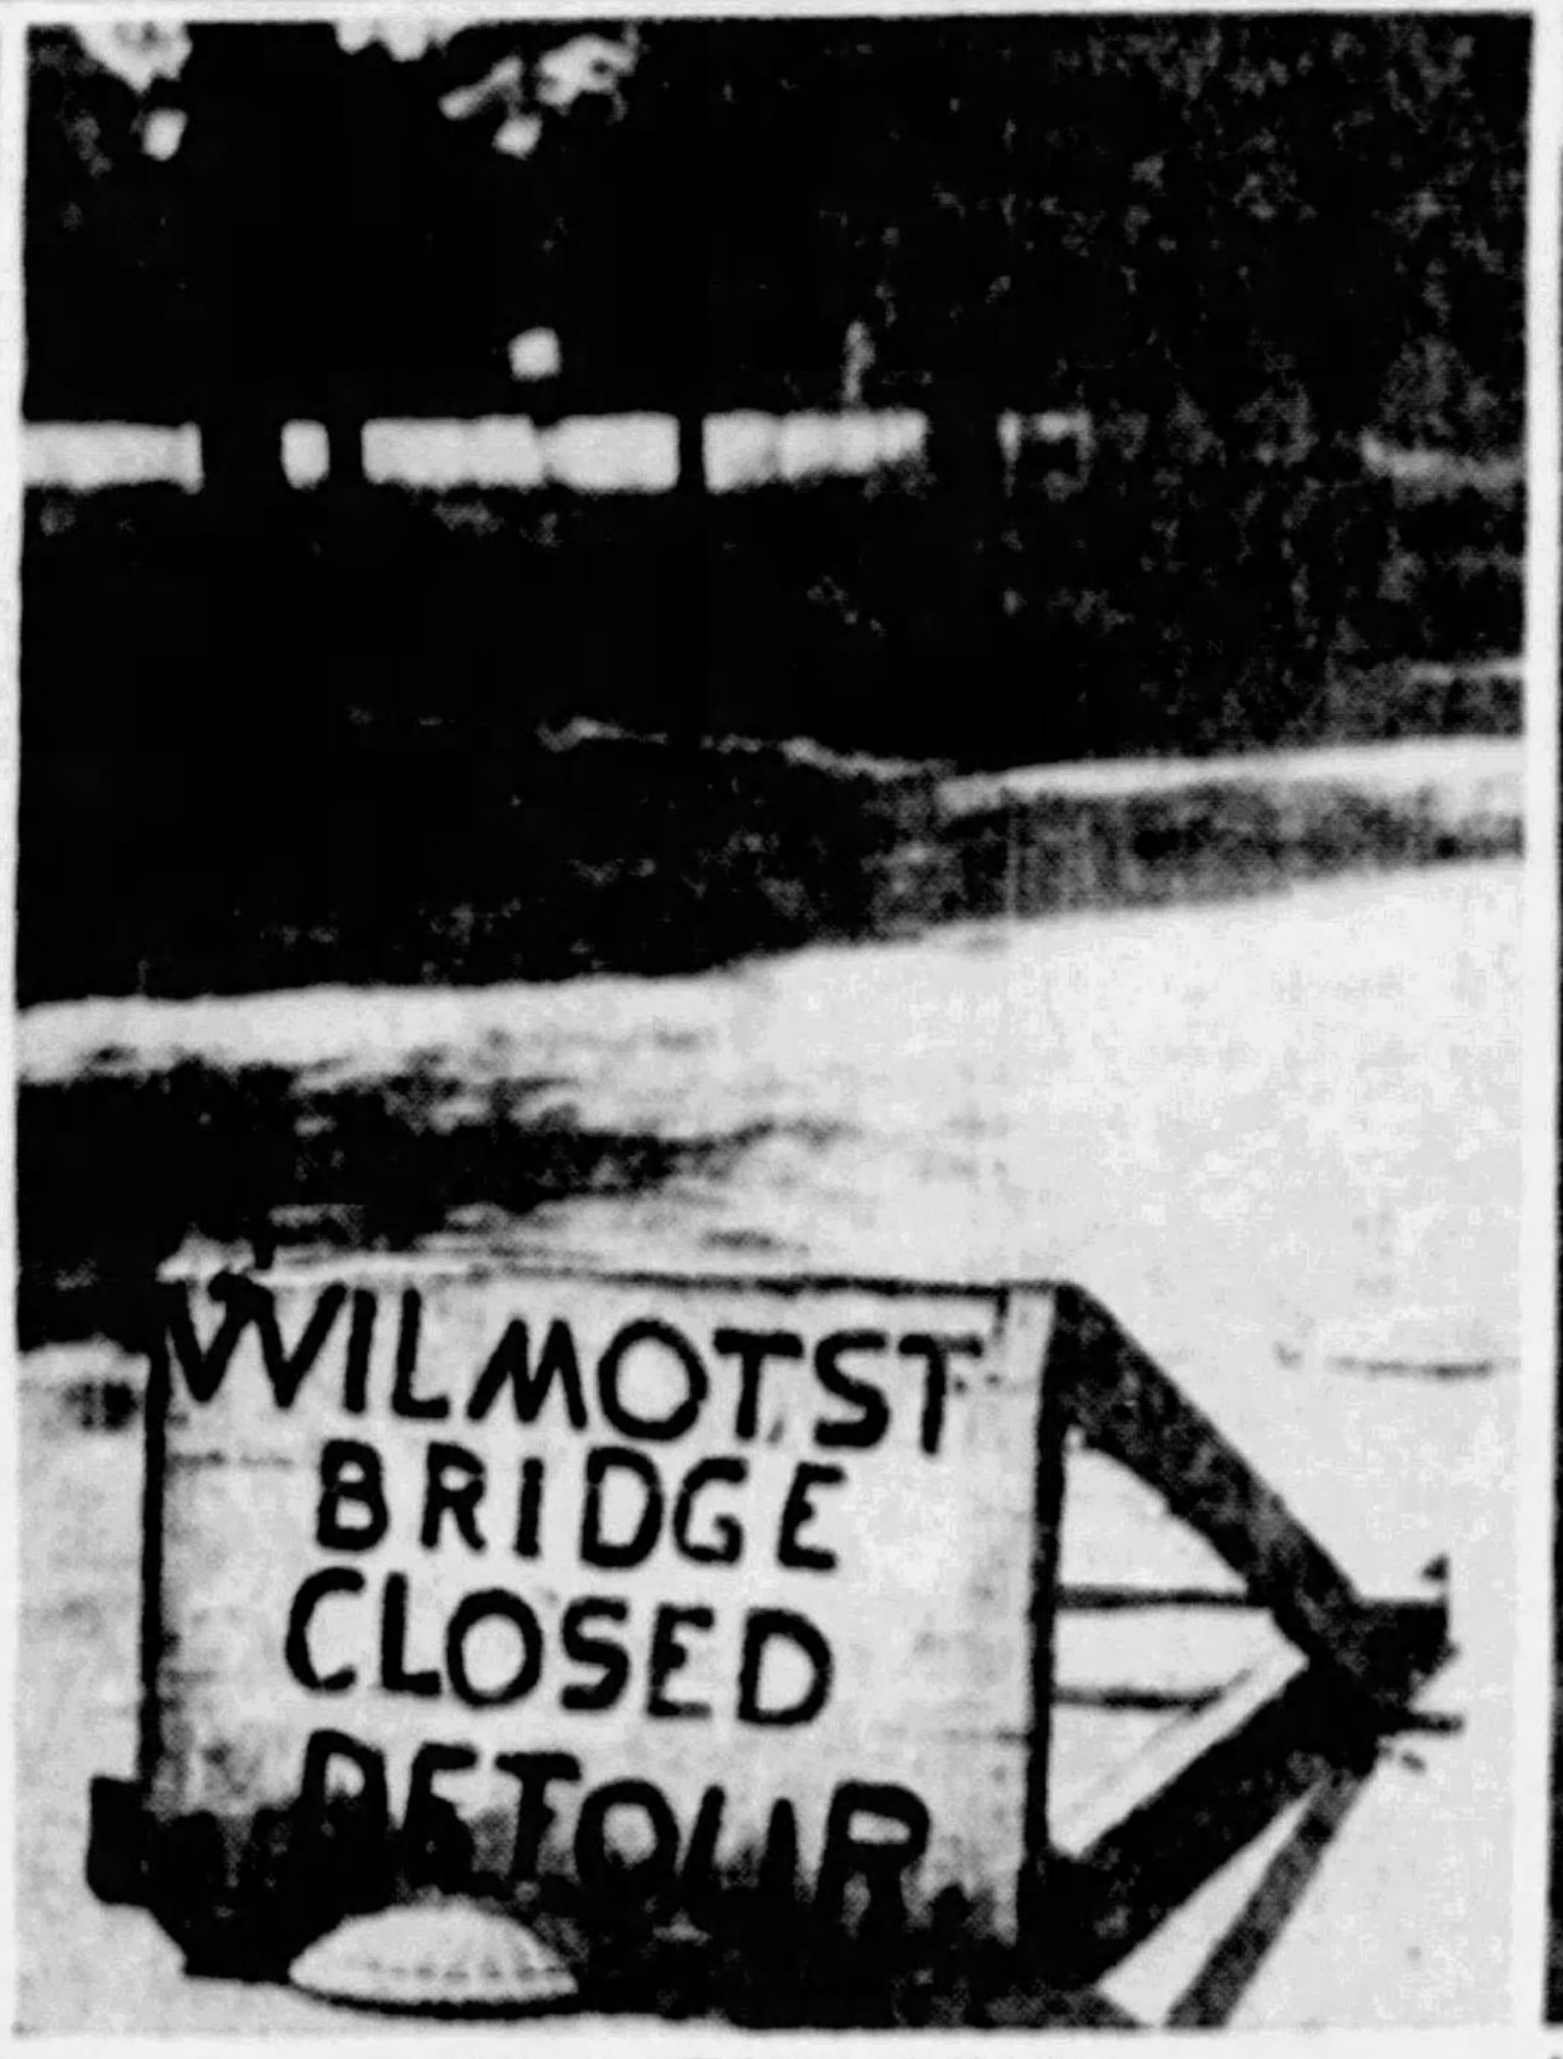
DETOUR?

For 18 months this detour sign, erected at Penn avenue and Fisk street during construction work on Washington Crossing Bridge, has been faithlessly misguiding motorists to Butler street, many believing the cobbled street the only one permitted.



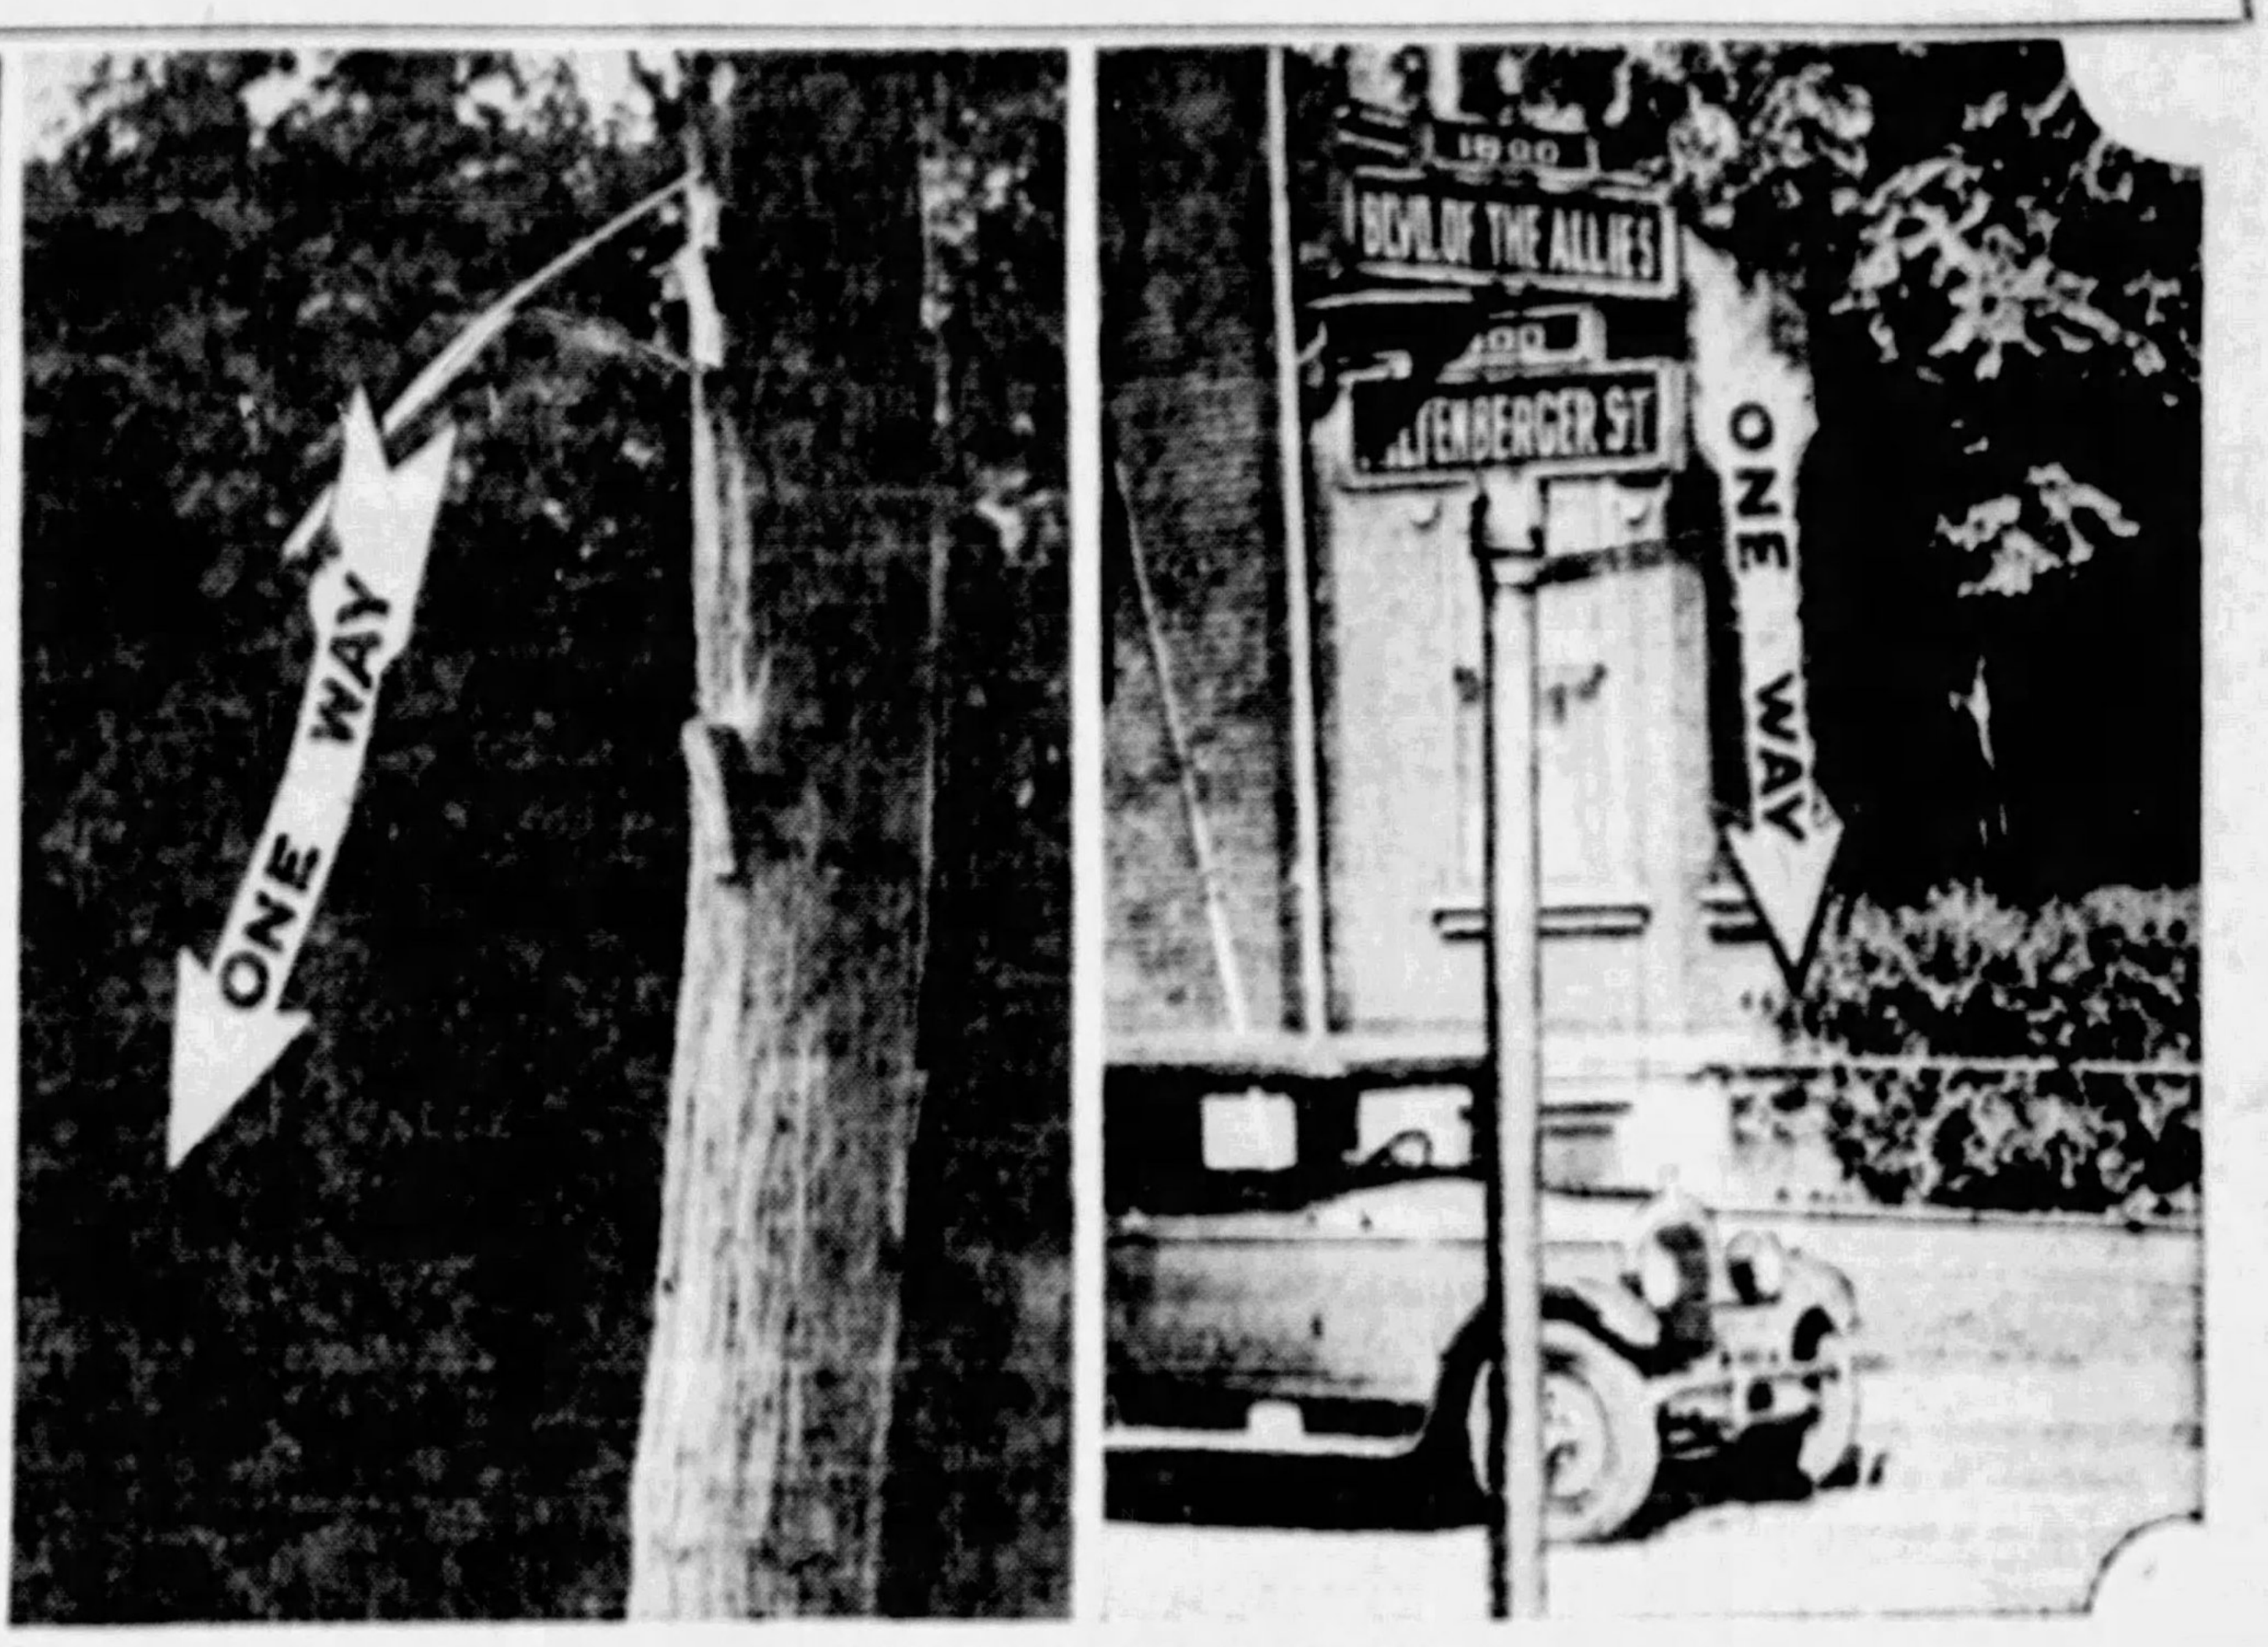
WATCH SIGNS

Drivers should watch for signs when they are placed like this one at Forbes and Murray, Squirrel Hill intersection. Only pedestrians can read the warning, "Watch Car Turn."



MR. DETOUR AGAIN

This piece of road art adorns Schenley Park, standing in the center of the roadway at the end of the Panther Hollow Bridge. A workman once dropped pick and shovel to take up paint and brush. Someone forgot to take away his sign.



BE SURE YOU'RE RIGHT

When you are, go ahead, but don't take literally the "One Way" directions indicated (above) at Van Braam street and at Miltenberger street where they intersect the Boulevard of the Allies. The Department of Public Safety is either playing a little joke on Pittsburghers, as well as those who travel through, or else hasn't discovered that metals signs rust and are easily broken by mischievous boys.

4 DWELLINGS IN SIXTH WARD SOLD

A row of four brick dwellings at 2625-31 Charlotte street, Sixth Ward, has been sold for the Frank Schilling heirs to Adam Ramski at private terms. The lot is 62x100 feet. The deal was made through Joseph T. Poopies of the Gribben Company.

Two pieces of business property in McKeesport have been sold by Myer Takoel to Isaac Jubelirer. "Spirit of Unrest" Name of Official Plane on Tour

WASHINGTON, Aug. 17.—(AP.)—Prompted by the fact that he covered 11,905 miles by air on summer camp inspection tours, making 48 separate hops, during the month of July with the same machine and pilot, Hanford MacNider, assistant secretary of war, has christened the observation plane he used "The Spirit of Unrest."

MacNider started from Washington July 4, with Capt. R. G. Ervin, of the Army Air Corps, as pilot, and finished his trip here August 6. During 29 flying days the pair spent 103 hours and 35 minutes in the air.

They were as far West as Spokane, Washington.

Broun Writes Farewell Column for World

NEW YORK, Aug. 17.—(AP.)—Heywood Broun, until recently conductor of a column on current topics in the New York World and other papers, sent his "farewell" to that paper for publication today under the standing head he had used: "It Seems to Me." Broun's articles were discontinued after two upon the Sacco-Vanzetti case which Ralph Pulitzer, editor of the World, characterized as containing personal opinions "of utmost extravagance."

"By now," said the Broun statement, after reiterating his views of the Massachusetts case, "I am willing to admit I am too violent, too ill-disciplined, too indiscreet to fit pleasantly in the World's philosophy of daily journalism. And since I cannot hit it off with the World I would be wise to look for work more alluring. In farewell to the paper I can only say that in its relations to me it has been fair, generous and gallant. But that doesn't go for the Sacco-Vanzetti case."

Mr. Pulitzer, in a statement which accompanied the final "column," declared the World "could not conscientiously accept responsibility for continuing to publish such articles" as Mr. Broun had submitted, since it believed them to serve only "to encourage those revolutionists . . . using this case as a vehicle of their propaganda."

Beauty Queen Shops—Thrilled More'n Ever

The joy of winning a title might be like riding in the clouds, but even a greater thrill came to me yesterday. It was a day spent in a virtual fairyland and, oh, how wonderful. The girls will understand my happiness because they know the joy of shopping. Choosing a wardrobe with which to appear at the Atlantic City pageant was the big thing of the day.

In the morning, there was posing for the camera, and a great deal of it, too. Then the noon hour found me in the office of Arthur Kaufmann, in the Kaufmann & Baer Company store, where all arrangements were completed to obtain the outfits in which I shall appear during the pageant events. A luncheon followed this moment of business. And thinking of it as a business transaction, I get a big thrill because it is not the usual lot of stenographers to take part in such affairs themselves.

And then, all afternoon it was just viewing and trying on beautiful creations of the latest in fashions. First came sport attire. If it really had been left entirely to my own judgment, I guess the day would not be over yet because I never would have been able to make up my mind as to which to choose. But Miss Mayme Stack, of the French room, gave me her wonderful advice and soon this first matter was settled.

But each new outfit meant the same bewildering quandary to me. To make a choice of a travel outfit from all the lovely clothes placed before me was really impossible. Then what with evening gowns, afternoon frocks and the many other necessities to go with these clothes—well, soon the day was over and my wardrobe was far from being completed.

So the title has brought me another new sensation and there is hardly anything to thrill a girl like wonderful clothes. But how tired a day of selecting clothes can make one. Nevertheless, I was ready bright and early this morning to start the second day. It is an opportunity of a lifetime. And I'm making the most of it.

Mary Millnack

"Miss Pittsburgh 1927."

AGAIN SHE IS THRILLED

Another new thrill was experienced by "Miss Pittsburgh 1927 with the signing of a contract for the wardrobe she will take to Atlantic City next month when she competes in the nation-wide beauty tournament. She affixed her signature as Mary Millnack, Carnegie, to a contract in the office of Arthur Kaufmann (left) in the Kaufmann & Baer store, with J. J. McGowan, advertising manager, at the right. The petite titleholder was thrilled no end, she said.

IN MEMORIAM.

In loving remembrance of David Parrs Jones, who died 11 years ago today, August 17, 1916.

This day brings back memories
Of a loved one gone to rest,
And those who think of him today
Are those who loved him best.
Just fond thoughts of sweet remembrance,
Just a memory fond and true,
Just a token of true love's yearning,
And a heartache still for you.
Sadly missed by wife and sons.

COOK-COOS
by Ted Cook

(Copyright, 1927, by N. Y. American.)

Mrs. Fannie Streator, 81, has reached Chicago in her hike from Blackburg, Va., to Applegate, Ore., where her daughter lives. The poor old gal probably will have to walk every step of the way.

BULL-ETIN

(News interview)

"I find more enjoyment trudging along than accepting auto 'lifts,'" Mrs. Streator told reporters.

WASN'T IT MR. JAY WHO DISTURBED THE PEACE?

(News Item)

MANTECA, Cal.—Nettie Elliott pleaded guilty to a charge of disturbing the peace before Judge Richard Bessac yesterday and was fined $10. C. E. Jay, deputy city marshal who made the arrest, told the court that Elliott was found lying on the sidewalk asleep, apparently under the influence of intoxicating liquor.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

Editor—

One evening, when I was feeling somewhat giddy, I asked Prileen Ringle if Joseph Hergesheimer had ever tried to make love to her. "None of your business, sir," she said. You can imagine my embarrassment.

A. E. JORGENSEN.

The boy stood on the burning deck,
The flames about him shot,
And cried, "I hail from San Berdoo, It's rather chilly—What?"

THERE'S A REASON.

Ross—"You don't seem to worry."

Jones—"You'd understand if you had ever eaten at our house."

EASY GOING!

Jacks—"I hear your son is going to the dogs."

Jaxson—"No, he's too lazy—he waits the dogs to come to him."

HARDLY.

Marie—"Do you have a girl in every port?"

Sailor—"Don't be misinformed. We miss some ports."

ARTISTIC EYE.

Friend — "But, dear, what is the trouble?"

Young Bride—"Oh, Tom is awful! He's a brute! He takes my prettiest garters and wears them for sleeve holders!"

DON'T BE SILLY.

Rod—"Are you married, my man?"

Bum — "Do you suppose I could be loafing if I wasn't single?"

TOO MUCH OF IT.

"What Phyllis needs is something to bring her face to face with herself."

"That isn't what she needs. She spends all her time in front of a mirror now."

LESS WORK.

Easte—"What do you think of the smaller and lighter money they're going to circulate?"

Weste—"It will be great. You could take some of it to the doorway of a night club and easily blow it in."

WELL ACQUAINTED.

Jerry—"When did Louise say she'd be here?"

Mae—"An hour ago!"

Jerry—"Heavens! I'm early."

MEAN OF HER!

Edgar—"You say you're disappointed in your wife?"

Edwin—"Yes, I am. She won't even patch the holes I wore in the knees of my trousers when I proposed!"

YOU'D THINK HE WAS TOSSING MAGNETS AT A MOUNTAIN OF STEEL- THAT BOY OUGHT TO BE IN THE MOVIES —
THOSE OLD MOSS BACKS- ALL THEIR ONE CYLINDER BRAINS CAN THINK OF IS HORSESHOES-
AND WHY NOT? HORSESHOES IS THE BEST GAME INVENTED BY MAN SINCE ADAM SLAMMED THE FRONT GATE OF PARADISE. LOOK AT GOLF! YOU HAVE TO BUY CLUBS- BAGS - BALLS HIRE A PROFESSOR TO TEACH YOU AND A CADDIE TO GUIDE YOU BEFORE YOU HIT THE FIRST BALL-
EVEN THOUGH YOU ARE ABLE TO BORROW A LAWN WITHOUT BUYING A NET- RACKETS AND BALLS THERE CAN BE NO TENNIS — POLO COSTS A FORTUNE- BASEBALL REQUIRES BATS-BALLS AND GLOVES AND MONEY FOR THEIR UPKEEP - EVEN A DECK OF CARDS WILL WEAR OUT- BUT IF YOUR GRANDFATHER DIES AND LEAVES YOU A SET OF HORSESHOES YOU CAN START RIGHT IN WITHOUT A TEACHER AND ENJOY A GREAT OUTDOOR SPORT FOR THE NEXT HUNDRED YEARS WITHOUT SPENDING A DIME —

THE HOKUM-KIDDER FRACAS ....
FANS YOU'RE TO BLAME FOR ALL THIS ! — YOUR VOTE ON THE SERIALS, TRAVELOGUES, COMEDIES, AND "WHEELAN NEWS" SHOWED THAT TRAVELOGUES WERE THE LEAST POPULAR TYPE OF "MINUTE MOVIE" — ONE FAN EVEN WENT SO FAR AS TO SAY .....
I dont know just what a travelog is, but I dont think I like it anyway
HERE IS CAPT. SAM KIDDER, FAMOUS EXPLORER, SCIENTIST, AND BON VIVANT, WHOSE REMARKABLE TRAVELOGUES HAVE BEEN, UNTIL RECENTLY, A REGULAR FEATURE OF OUR PRODUCTIONS —
SOME OF CAPT. KIDDER'S MOST FAMOUS TRAVELOGUES WERE "AMONG THE HAT-HUNTERS OF THE FEDORA ISLANDS", "THE HYENA HUNT", "STALKING THE POLAR BEARCAT", "LUMBERING IN LUMBAGO", "THE SPONGE-SPEARERS OF SCHENECTADY", "IN THE LAND OF THE ROUGHNECK CLAM" ETC., ETC. —
IMAGINE THE INTREPID CAPTAIN'S SURPRISE ON RECEIVING THE FOLLOWING BIT OF UNEXPECTED NEWS — and therefore we will not use your travelogues hereafter, as we find that they are not popular with our patrons. Yours truly Art Hokum.

THE BIDDING

South Bids	West Bids	North Bids	East Bids
1S	DBL	2H	Pass
2S	Pass	Pass	Pass

Final Bid 2 S Played by South

Salient Points of the Bidding

West, in hopes of a Heart response from his partner, makes a weak informatory double of South's bid. North denies Spades by bidding two Hearts, relieving East of the obligation to respond. South, not requiring support in Spades from his partner, rebids that suit and obtains the contract.

Salient Points of the Play

Trick 2. South's play of the ten of Diamonds warns East that the return of a Diamond might result in giving South a Club discard. Accordingly East leads a Club to give West an opportunity to make his high Club honors if held, before such discard can be made.

Tricks 3 and 4. Lacking a better lead, West continues with Clubs.

Trick 8. After three rounds of trumps South is left with three and East with two. A continuance of the suit must give East a trick in it. Moreover if South retains all three trumps to the end, he must trump the 11th trick and lead a trump to East, which would give the adversaries the game-saving trick. Declarer therefore plans to dispose of his superfluous trump by ruffing a Diamond.

Tricks 10 to 13. Declarer ruffs Dummy's good Diamond, and by putting Dummy in the lead with the Ace of Hearts assumes a tenace position over East's two trumps and takes the last two tricks, scoring game on the hand.

Will America Fall for Crude Attempt at Oil Propaganda?

One of the most astonishing attempts at propaganda in recent years is the attempt of Sir Henri Deterding, Englishman and head of the Royal Dutch Shell, closely affiliated with the British government, to unleash a propaganda in the United States, aiming to excite public opinion so that it will prevent two American oil companies from buying Russian oil. The American oil companies are the Standard Oil of New York and the Vacuum Oil Company, both of them independent elements into which the old Standard Oil Company was dissolved in 1911.

Now what is it all about?

Standard of New York and Vacuum have extensive investments in marketing organizations in Mediterranean countries, India and the Straits Settlements.

Because of the greater nearness of Russian oil, which is shipped from Baku, a Black Sea port, it is inevitable that part of the market of the above countries should be served by Russian oil. For example, it costs between two and three cents per gallon more to ship American gasoline from our gulf ports than to ship Russian gasoline from Baku.

Under these conditions the American companies, by the advice of Justice Hughes just after he left the State Department, made a contract for five years' supply of Russian oil for this area. Deterding rages that it is ''stolen oil,'' because Russia has thus far been unwilling to recompense Sir Henri for all properties which it ''nationalized'' away from him in 1918.

There seems no cogent reason why American public opinion should force American oil companies to forego their only chance of business in the Near East (and leave this business to Sir Henri's Royal Dutch Shell companies) for the sake of compelling the Russian government to return Sir Henri's property to him in just the way Sir Henri wants it returned. For two years he has been negotiating with them to get them to give back his property in connection with granting him a monopoly of Russian oil exports.

Sir Henri's cabled statements asking America to stand on his side might be a little more compelling if it were not known and admitted by the Royal Dutch Shell that they have bought large quantities of this same ''stolen oil'' in the last five years. It is not even denied that at the present time the Royal Dutch Shell subsidiary in Hamburg is exporting ''white oil'' made from Russian soliar oils, to India, one of the destinations to which he says the two American companies shall NOT export Russian oil.

The Englishman's methods are a crude descent from the general high level of the British and European propaganda in this country.

Incidentally, it will look to many of us as if it were a practical form of oil conservation for the Standard Oil of New York and the Vacuum Oil Company to stop sending American oil to the Near East and to send Russian oil instead. The American oil can then be kept stored in the ground where it belongs.

A Rich, New Dish Added To Movie Fans' Menus

Far more important than the announcement of a new newspaper or a new newspaper chain is the announcement of a new news reel service. The Chinese say that a picture is worth 10,000 words. It is a question whether the public gets as much information about a current event from the newspapers as they get from the news reels thrown on the screen.

The Hearst organization which now issues one of the most popular news reels in the country, the International News reel, announces the inauguration of another such service, to be known as the M. G. M. News, which makes its bow to the public in leading motion picture theaters throughout the country this week.

The M. G. M. News will be gathered and issued by the Hearst News Service, Inc., and will be released by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Distributors Corporation.

Thanks to the news reels, stay-at-homes really saw more of the Lindbergh, Chamberlin, Byrd, Maitland, Hegenberger and Smith-Bronte flights than any person who actually viewed one small scene in hop-off, landing or jubilant celebration. The movie-theatergoer saw the whole proceedings from start to finish. Now the movie fans in M. G. M. News, covering both news and special features have another rich dish added to their menu.

Great Jew--Sir George Lewis

Second of the name to be the confidant of London society, Sir George Lewis, great English solicitor, has passed away. From royalties to nouveau riches, most prominent English people took their troubles to him. Like his father, he never talked about other people's business.

A tribute to the versatility of the Jewish race, of which he was a descendant. It proves that the children of Israel, usually most talkative of the sons of men, can be silent as the grave when necessary.

Should Divorce Cost Be Cut?

Prominent Chicago divorce judges say the docket must be cleared and declare that the way to catch up with the business is to grant cheap divorces at, say, $5 per. One says he does not know, but the best way would be that two persons who are tired of living together should be allowed to go to the county clerk and get a legal separation for $5.

This would save the jamming of the courts and innumerable attorney fees. The idea of cheap divorces is not new.

But almost any divorce case sounds cheap, no matter how expensive it is.

The Hearst Papers Advocate:

1. An agreement of English-speaking peoples to preserve peace among themselves and to promote the peace of the world.

2. Proportional representation in the United States Senate, no state to have less than two Senators. Legislation to enforce prompt constitutional reapportionment in the House of Representatives.

3. A separate Department of the Army, of the Navy and of the Air Forces, all united under a Secretary of National Defense.

4. Federal action to the limit of Federal powers to abolish illiteracy in the United States under a Secretary of Education.

5. Election of Congress in November. Installation on the 1st of January following. Inauguration of the President 1st of January next after November election.

NATIONAL OIL COMMISSION
REGULATION
Dorman H. Smith

THE oil industry continues to run wild. It is daily extracting 250,000 barrels of oil out of the ground in excess of the country's needs.

The oil business is ruining itself by cutthroat competition, just as the railroads ruined themselves forty years ago.

Regulation by the Interstate Commerce Act and the Interstate Commerce Commission has taken railroads out of the bankrupt class and made them the most stable and valuable properties in the country today.

Government regulation can similarly save the oil industry from itself, stabilize it, and stop the waste of one of the country's most valuable and irreplaceable resources and its chief munition of war.

More Truth Than Poetry

Treading on Dangerous Ground

"NOW, boys," the mighty magnate said.
Addressing those who filled the hall.
"The right to earn our daily bread
Belongs unchallenged to us all.
I would not have you think of me
As one who stands aloof, alone,
But as a man whose hopes must be Forever kindred to your own.

"I STAND here as your friend, and not
As one whose heart is hard and cold.
Please let that linger in your thought
While what I have to say is told.
I also am a hired man,
And there are rules I must obey;
I merely do the best I can,
The same as any of you may."

THE workers who had often gazed
With hate at him who held command
Heard what he said, and were amazed;
Not one of them could understand.
"Such words," they whispered, "might be what
A man who followed Christ would speak."
And so they shook their heads and thought
He was a faker or a freak.

Tales that are Told

No Answer

SHE was engaged in running the correspondence department of a popular magazine, and her mind was centered in her work.

One day a friend rang her up.

"Did you receive my letter?" he asked.

"Yes."

"The one asking you to be mine?"

"Yes."

"Then," came the reproachful answer, "why on earth didn't you reply to it?"

"William"—there was both surprise and indignation in her voice—"you know you forgot to send stamps for a reply."

War Books

GEN. HUGH DRUM was discussing another of the innumerable books on the World War.

"These soldiers who write about war," he said, "carry platitude and truism to unbelievable lengths. They say such things as, 'The object of a commander is to win battles,' or 'The time to attack is when you are strong and your opponent weak,' or 'The army that conquers is the one that wins.'

"Yes, the war books of soldiers always remind me of the excursion train that stopped for seven hours in a daisy field.

"'Conductor,' said an old woman at the end of the fourth hour, 'what are we waiting for?'

"The conductor gave her an astonished look.

"'Why, lady,' he said, we're waitin,' of course, for the train to go on.'"

New York Day by Day
by
O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Aug. 17—New York's search for thrills is appeased somewhat in trick types of speakeasies. They are staging blood-curdling effects in many seamy dives to attract upper crust slummers. The thrill complex is noted in other diversions as well.

The plays with biggest patronage this summer were mystery shockers. The wax figures of the Snyder murder principals were the chief horrors at Coney After theater parties drifted to spook parlors for hair-raising seances instead of the cabarets.

One speakeasy has an ashen pale piano thumper who gives the impression of sniffing cocaine between tunes. He uses table salt, but the effect is gripping and at a table is a group of plug uglies who start a row and draw terrible looking knives.

In another beautiful "prop" patron has a quarrel with a gigolo type and drinks the contents of a bottle labeled poison. It is explained afterward it is all good playful fun. The idea is for spectators to return with friends who are not in on the joke and provide them a goose-pimpled thrill.

In Twenty-second street is a delightful fakery that has been drawing the initiated with unsuspecting friends. They are told the place is a horrible hell-hole, difficult to enter but dispensing the choicest of spirits. The come-on is led through a cellar passageway.

An ugly scarred face peeps through a peep-hole and the prospective patron is questioned thoroughly. He is even searched for concealed weapons. Inside he finds a shuddery den with feeble low-hanging lamps and a motley collection of riff-raff. All very pulse-jumping.

He is told to order what he pleased and the climax is when he finds nothing stronger than ginger ale is served. Several other such places are reported but we, the portable machine and I, have not seen them. There is thrill enough for country boys crossing New York streets these mad days.

A tense moment in the old-fashioned drama was furnished about 20 years ago in Gallipolis, O. The heroine had been hurled over a cliff, strapped to a railroad track and otherwise cowed by the villain of the piece. In the last act he had her at his mercy again, tied and gagged, near a buzz saw. Standing over her, flicking his riding crop against riding boots and tugging at his silken mustache—durn him—he inquired: "Nellie, why do you fear me?"

* * *

One of New York's chronic but inconspicuous first nighters is Joseph Urban. He is usually standing in back of the house or sitting in the balcony. He is a dreamy looking fellow of tremendous bulk whose manner seems as soft and detached as the blue of his celebrated theatrical skies. Urban does not conform to prescribed artistic tendencies. He lives in Yonkers and his chief sport is attending prize fights. He is robust, jovial and addicted to constant cigaret smoking. He is just now designing the new Metropolitan Opera House.

* * *

Add disillusionments of the past 24 hours: A pair of stage twins who are not related; a sporting editor who goes to church every Sunday and Wednesday; a cabaret owner who never drinks and spends idle time on a farm and an incessant cigaret smoking novelist who never inhales.

* * *

But the most crumbling disillusionment of all was a visit to one of those sterling figures of the advertisements who proclaims himself as "a builder of personality." He wore a toupee, his uppers had to be clicked back in place periodically and he spoke of his wife as "the little lady." Fortunately he does his stuff by mail.

* * *

If these disillusionments continue many of us are going to smile at the idea of hanging up our stockings this Christmas.

Railroads and Air Traffic
By DR. FRANK CRANE

At a meeting of railroad superintendents in San Francisco, E. H. Harmon said: "While there has been no definite move by any of the railroad systems as yet to launch a supplementary air service, we are giving study to the subject and must be prepared to take the necessary step, as in the case of motor transportation."

Lindbergh, when he flew direct from New York to Paris, and Chamberlin and Levine, when they flew from New York to Germany, gave an immense impetus to American air traffic.

That traffic must be advanced by government subsidies or by private enterprise.

Mr. Clapp, a financial writer, has called attention to the fact that the railroads of the country, being in the transportation business, are the logical concerns to take up air traffic.

The railroads in many cases are fostering motor bus transportation, and there is no reason why they should not go into air transportation.

It is their business to carry passengers and they have abundant capital.

Air transportation is coming. The principle of the people of the United States is to advance this as much as possible by private initiative, and the railroads are the logical ones to take up this matter.

Mr. Ford has already directed his attention to air transportation, and when once the business has been gotten upon a profitable basis many other capitalists will be glad to engage in it.

Lindbergh always referred to himself and his plane as "we." This means that the machinery is quite as essential a factor in flying as the man.

We must have men of courage and daring, but we must also have machines of dependability.

The railroads are in the machine business. They have already brought the locomotive up to a high degree of efficiency and they are the logical ones to take hold of and improve the airplane until it becomes a commercial essential.

The effort of Congressman Bloom to establish an air bureau with Lindbergh in charge, is also a step in the right direction.

THE LIFE OF THOMAS A. EDISON

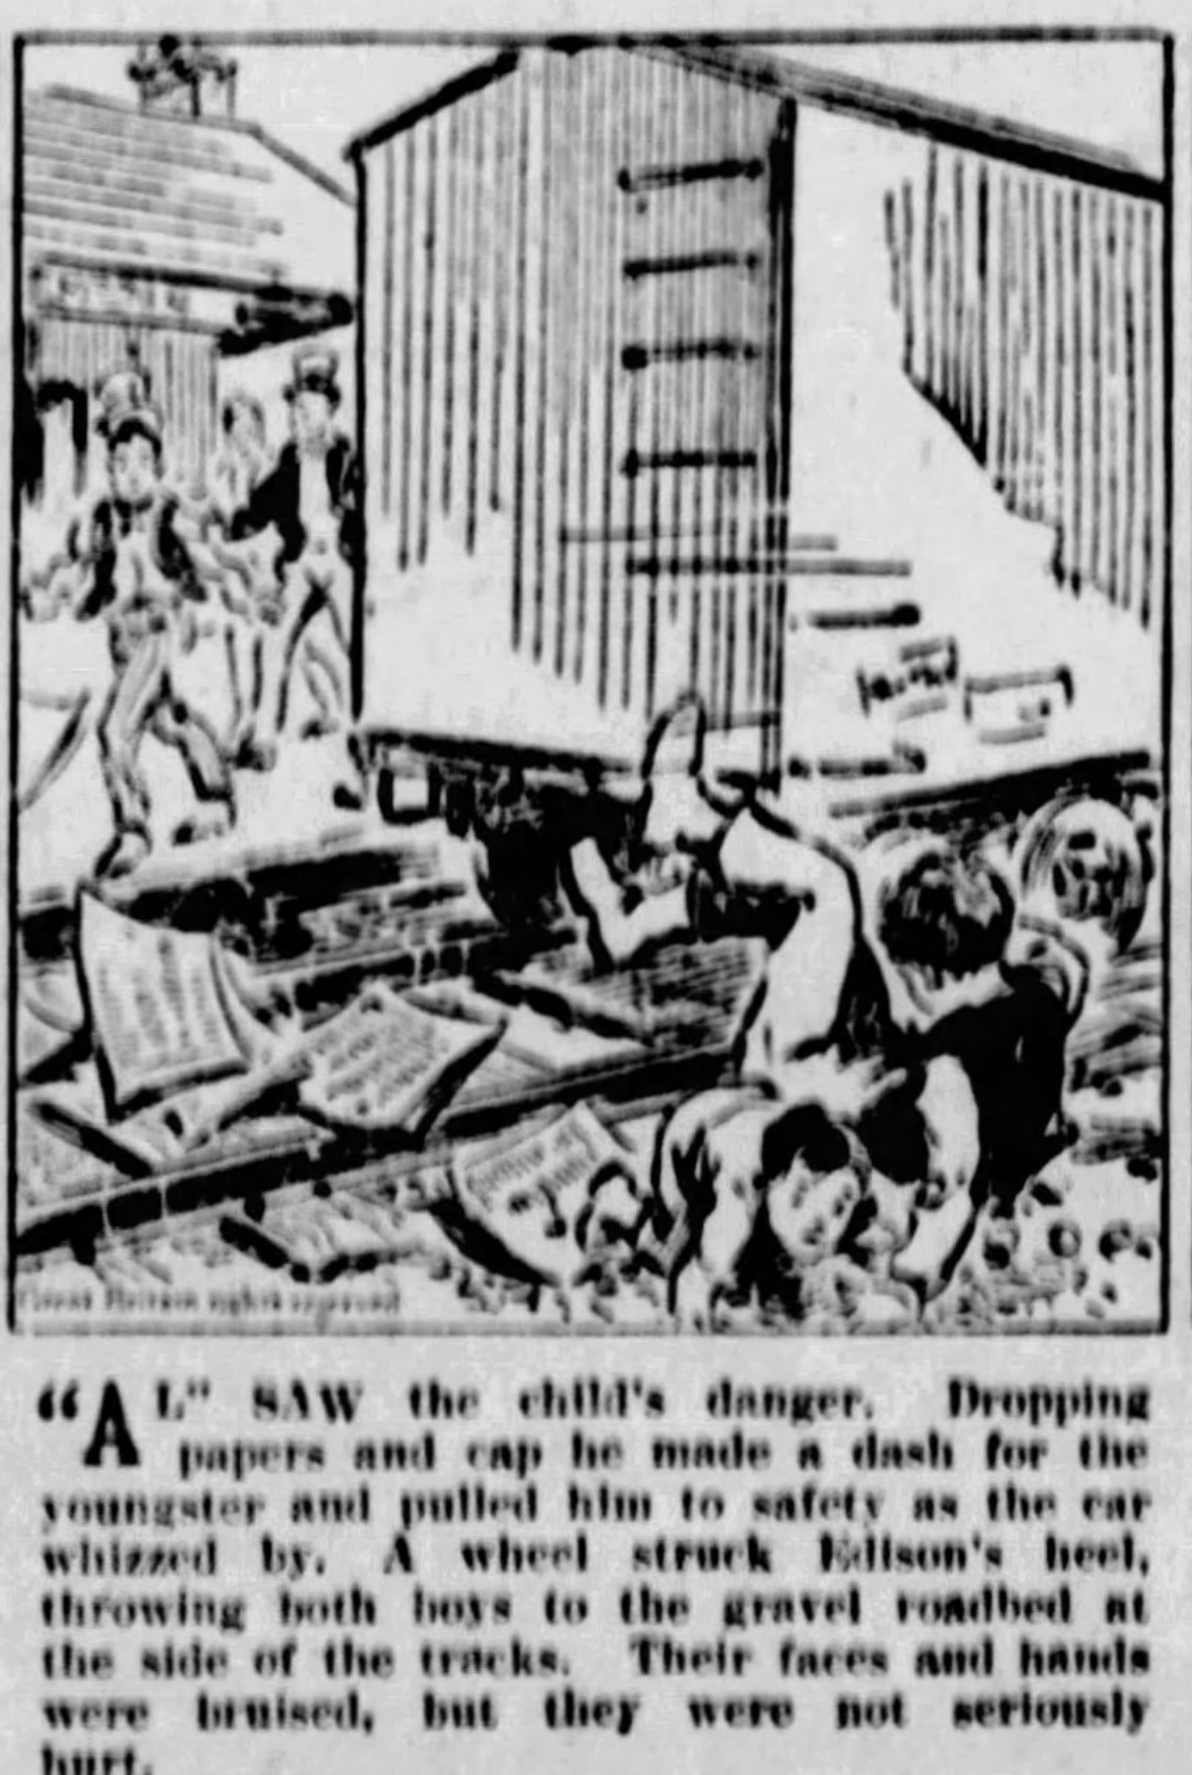
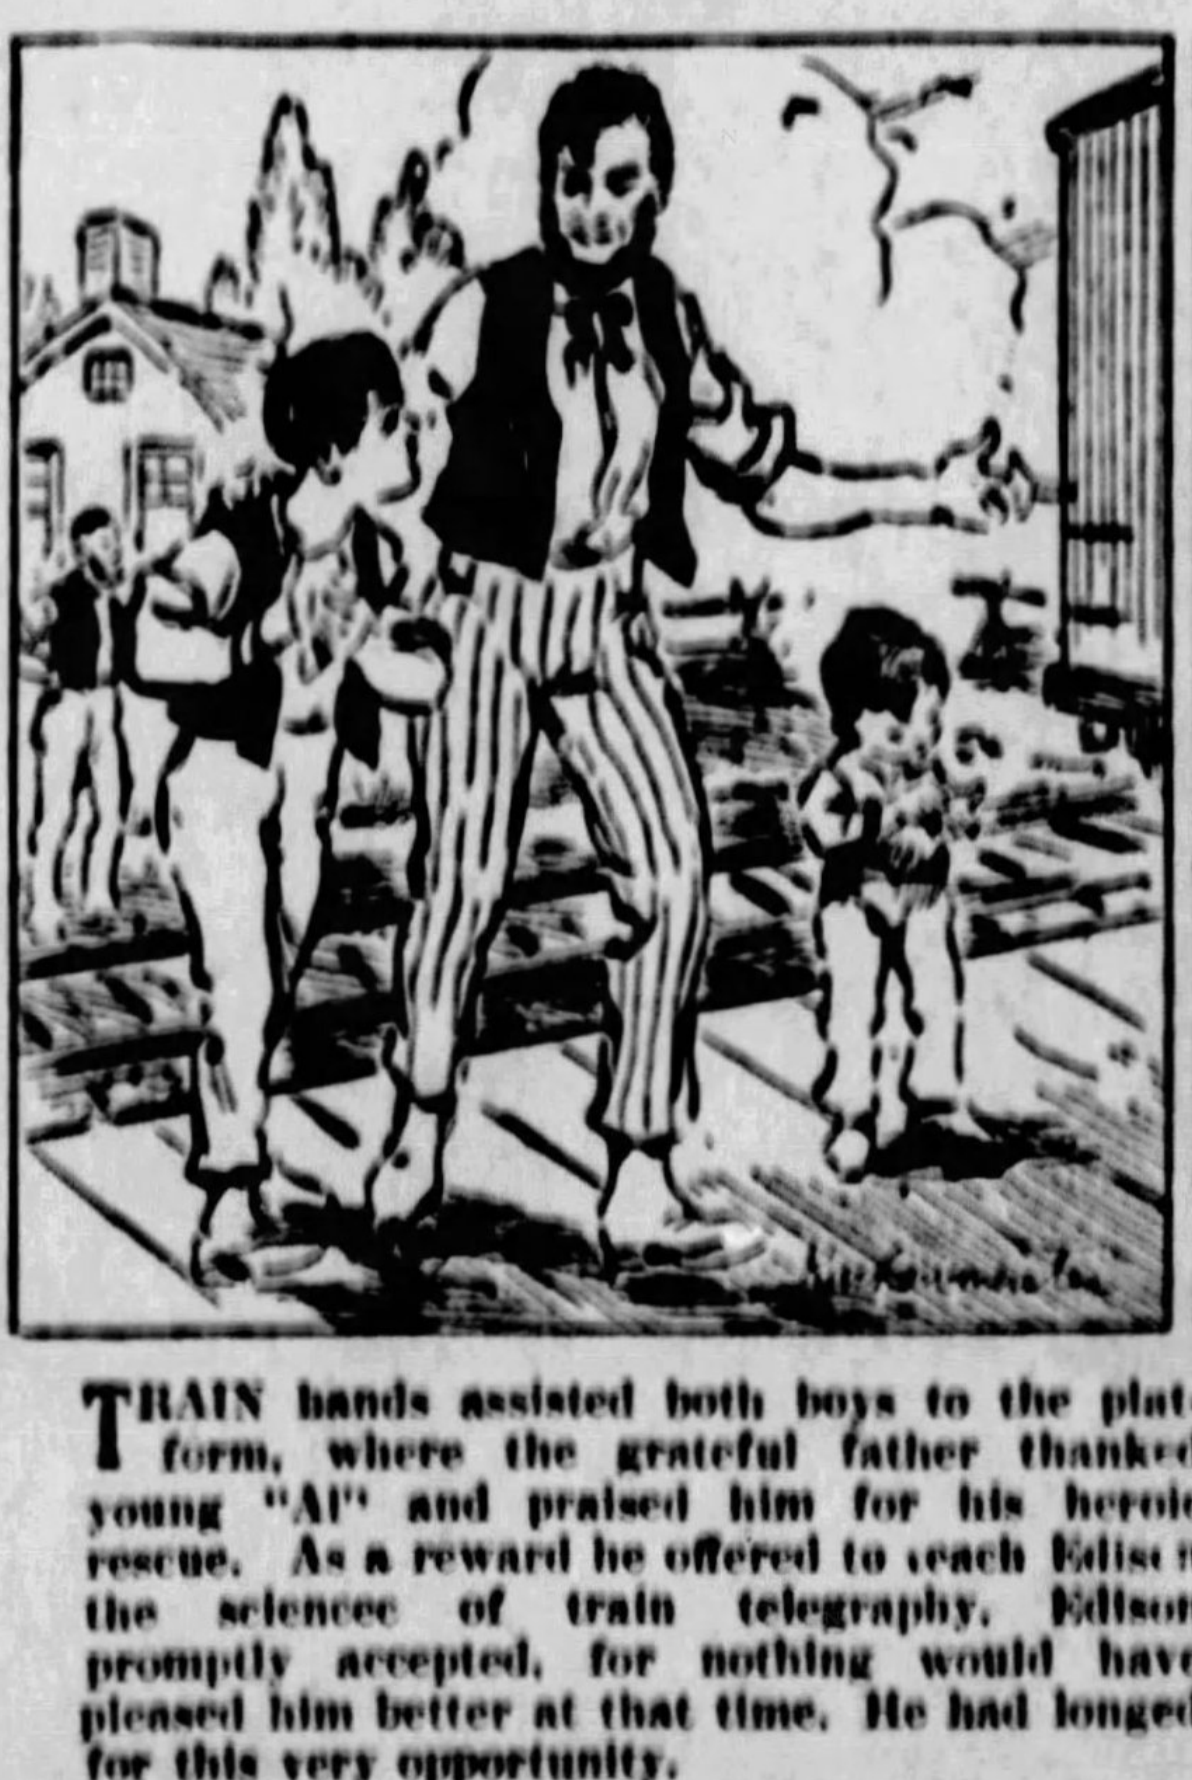
MOUNT CLEMENS
© 1927, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

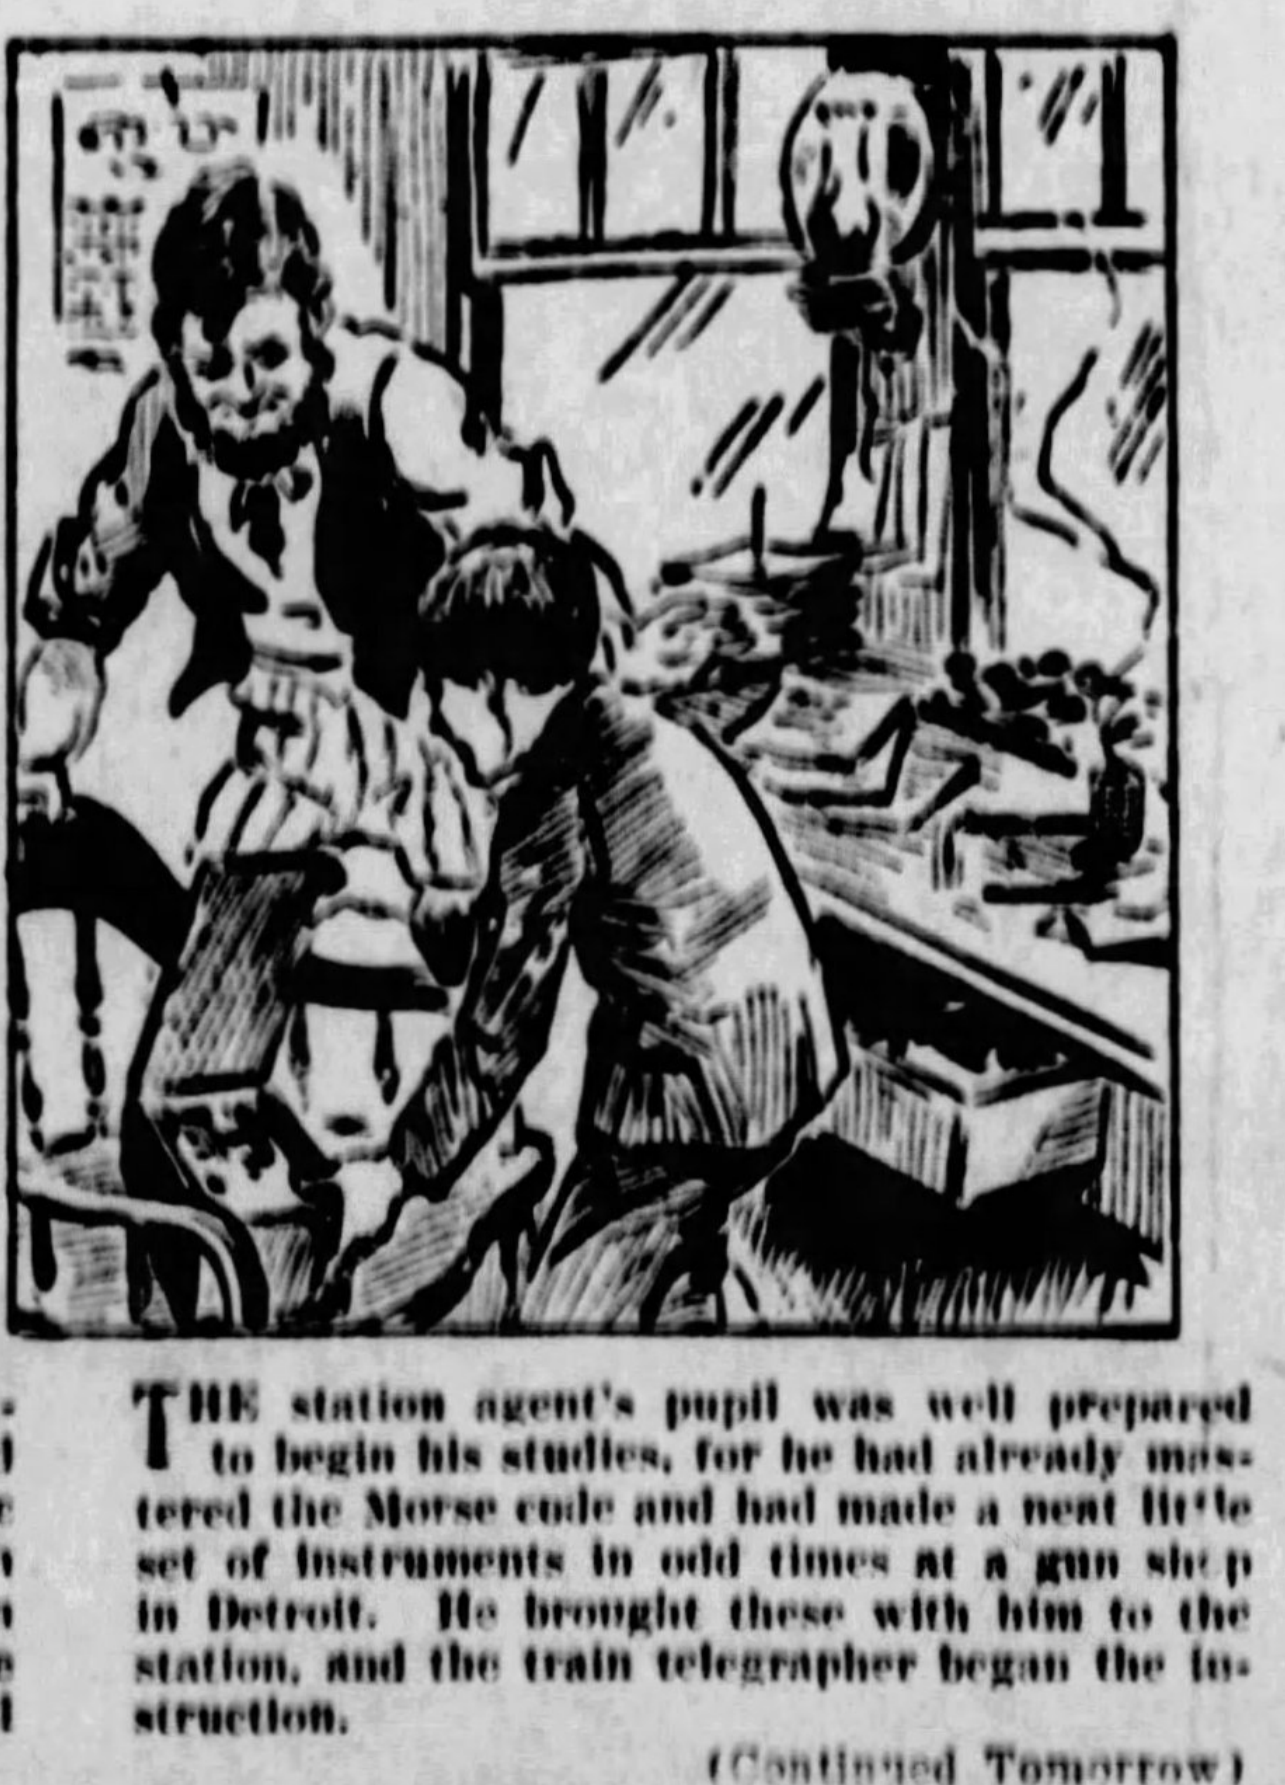
EDISON'S courage and quick thinking started him on his way as a telegraph operator. One day, while the "mixed" train on which he was newsboy was shunting at the Mount Clemens station, the station agent's little boy ran out on the track right in the way of a rapidly rolling box car. He did not see it bearing down on him.



"AL" SAW the child's danger. Dropping papers and cap he made a dash for the youngster and pulled him to safety as the car whizzed by. A wheel struck Edison's heel, throwing both boys to the gravel roadbed at the side of the tracks. Their faces and hands were bruised, but they were not seriously hurt.



TRAIN hands assisted both boys to the platform, where the grateful father thanked young "Al" and praised him for his heroic rescue. As a reward he offered to teach Edison the sciencee of train telegraphy. Edison promptly accepted, for nothing would have pleased him better at that time. He had longed for this very opportunity.



THE station agent's pupil was well prepared to begin his studies, for he had already mastered the Morse code and had made a neat little set of instruments in odd times at a gun shop in Detroit. He brought these with him to the station, and the train telegrapher began the instruction.
